A Singular Bequest

Its Purpose Could Be Only Inferred

By MAY C. ETHERIDGE

When my mother died, leaving me alone in the world, I felt so desolate that I considered it essential for me to do something to divert my mind from my trouble. I should be obliged to make my own living, but I possessed a few hundred dollars and could act bring myself to begin the work till my money was all gone.

Scanning a newspaper one day I saw an advertisement of a lady who desired a companion with whom to travof a road. The applicant must be between twenty and thirty-five years old, educated and of a cheerful disposition. Besides her expenses, she would be paid $50 a month.

It seemed to me that this would be a good opportunity for me if I could obtain the situation. I came within the limit of age, for I was exactly twenty. As to the cheerful disposition, I here my misfortunes without inflicting them on others, but I surely did not feel cheerful. I answered the advertisement and, having been invited to call upon the lady, found her a widow, much broken down in health, nervous and irritable.

I was so disappointed at the prospect before me that I de lined the position. This seemed to excite Mfs. Southerland's desire for my services, and she doubled the offer of salary. Since 1 would be at no expense I should return with some $1,200, which, with what I already had, would give me a little nest egg. So I agreed to go.

Mrs. Southerland's son, a young man of twenty-five, brought her on to the fore to prepare her stateroom for her of this report.

Southerland was evidently much harassed by his mother, whose nervous alive. During the last week of her life condition had evidently communicated she became aware that she had but a itself to him. I could understand this situation, upon me, and from the moment I enand I confess the young man won my tered the room where he was I knew earnest sympathy. "I suppose you have been talking to truth. Roy. He is a good son to me, but he tion. does not realize that I am perfectly competent to take care of my own affairs. Besides, he considers me very irksome and I'm sure is glad to get rid of me. However, he is more dutiful than most sons, who don't hesitate to fall in love with the first pretty face they see, and those who have poor old lonely mothers will not scruple to marry and leave their mothers out in the cold. But Roy can't do that without for a few moments, then in a changed my consent unless he is willing to give | voice said: up the family fortune, which my husband left entirely to me to dispose of as I please, and Roy knows that the moment he takes a wife to usurp my first place with him he will lose every cent of it." This was but an expected sequel to what Roy Southerland had told me and was not a very pleasant beginning of my term of service. Without making any reply to the remarks I asked the lady what I could do for her to make her comfortable. This diverted her mind from her unappreciative son, and she told me of so many things she wished for that I had all I wanted to do to provide them. I had accepted this situation in order to recover from a condition of my own and found myself called on to bear a depression of another. One would suppose that I had made matters worse for myself. But this, in one respect at least, was not so. My own distress fell to the ground before the greater suffering of another. Mrs. Southerland was a hard mistress, finding fault I not known her for some time I could with every one, including her own son, but there were moments when, her nerves having come to a period of rest, and declared that if he wished to mar- was accepted.

ry a society girl she would not stand in his way. We had not crossed the cean before she showed not only great lependence upon me to do things for her, but began to rely upon me for companionship and for sympathy. Her son had provided her with reading matter, and she desired me to read to ber, but I saw at once that the books he had selected were far above his mother's requirements. I found lighter works in the ship's library, which I read to my charge and by doing so not only kept her from harassing me, but I was enabled to pass such time as I levoted to this work pleasantly.

During the latter days of the ocean voyage I got Mrs. Southerland on deck occasionally, and she was benefited by the pure air of an ocean whose currents were unobstructed, but when we entered the smoke and perpetual rains of London she fell back to her previ-

One duty fell to me that I found very lifficult. Mrs. Southerland directed me to write every few days of her condition to her son. Of course she read the letters I wrote. I tried telling the young man that his mother was doing well and improving steadily. This letter she forced me to write over, telling him that she was no better and would never be any better. I obeyed the order, but since I was commissioned with the posting of the letter I opened it and put a postscript stating that the health report was his mother's and not mine. In my next letter I stated that the patient was feeling poorly. I was directed to write it "tolerably well for a broken down old woman."

Since I wrote in the mother's name the son replied directly to her, but his letters invariably contained thanks to me for acting as her amanuensis. He seemed constantly solicitous about his mother, and it was evident that he was a very good and affectionate son.

We reached Switzerland as the hot weather elsewhere was coming on, and I took my charge to a small hotel on Lake Geneva. I had hoped the Swiss mountain air would do her good, and I do not doubt it would have done so had it not been that her vitality was gradually failing.

During our stay in Switzerland I was told by physicians whom I had called in that she would last but a few weeks, steamer, where I had gone shortly be- I wrote privately to Roy Southerland

Buttered.

Always fond of a practical joke, Lord Charles Beresford tells in his "Memoirs" of an occasion when he and his friend Vyner entered the grand dining room of one of London's swell hotels where two men were engaged in a leated argument:

"There was in the great room a sidepoard, and a dish filled with pats of butter stood on the end of it. I picked up a pat of butter on the end of a pencil and told Vyner that if he would come outside 1 would throw the pat of butter to a surprising disstance.

> ".Why go outside?' said be. Why not take a shot at those two fellows who are arguing so busily

"'And so I will,' said I. "The pat of butter described a beauriful yellow parabola at high speed and lighted upon the eye of one of the disputants. The impact doubled him up, and he thought that the other man had hit him, and he was rendy for fight. Drawing his right fist back ery slowly and carefully, he struck his friend full on the point of the nose The next moment they were both roll ng on the floor, fighting like cats. My ompanion and I were laughing so much that we couldn't separate them, and they finally had to go to bed for a veek to recover themselves of their wounds.

A Doubtful Compliment.

Landon Ronald, the noted musician, tells the following story about himself: went into my club one day, looked into the reading room and saw a great friend of mine talking to one of the ugliest men I have ever seen in my life. My friend called me over and much to my regret, as I distike ugly things in life, introduced me to the man in question. He turned out to be guite a decent fellow and paid me the usual silly compliments which all protessionals receive: I conversed with him about five minutes, and when I had had enough he reiterated the statement that he was delighted to have met me, being one of my greatest ad mirers, and added. 'In any case, Mr. Ronald, I was most anxious to know you because I am always being mistaken for you!" "-London Globe

Not In His Line.

Sir Donald Mann has no time to spure, as a reporter who went to see him found to his cost. There was some talk of a railroad line to run north from Toronto to a junction with the Grand Trunk at North bay: After Sir Donald had been talking for some little time the reporter said, "By the bye, Sir Donald, where is North bay?" Sir Donald looked at the newspaper man. Then he looked toward the door "I'm not here to teach reporters geography," be said.-Argonaut.

A Joke on Offenbach.

Offenbach, the famous opera bouffe composer, bad an insatiable thirst for success and fame, combined with a vanity that occasionally played him a sorry trick. Once he was going down the Rhine on a steamer, among whose passengers was the Duke of Nassau. home bequeathing you everything, but a fact of which the composer was in blissful ignorance. As the steamer upproached its last stopping place the bank of the river was seen to be covered by a dense throng of people, who were shouting and waving their hats A band on the pier was playing a march from one of Offenbach's operas. As the boat touched the pler Offenbach stepped to the rail and bowed and waved his bat to the people in acknowl-Edgment of this flattering ovation.

"It is glorious to be received in a foreign land like this!" be remarked to his companions.

But his self complacency received a rude shock the next instant when the duke's adjutant appeared and said in a rough and unfeeling manner:

BASEBALL COURTESY.

A Home Run That Saved Murphy and Delighted the Ladies.

Some years ago, as the freakish luck of baseball would have it, Matty won two successive games at the Polo grounds by his own personal exertions. In each game after eight thrilling innings the Glants swung into their tinal stanza on the losing end, and in each game Matty himself drove a home run into the stand and won the battle. Next day a certain theatrical man approached Matty and wanted to arrange for moving pictures of the next game, with the stipulation in the contract that Mathewson must make a home run in the ninth, with two out and the bases full!

Don't believe any one could be so shy on baseball knowledge? A few years ago in Chicago Charlie Murphy received a letter from a very prominent clubwoman. She said that her attending the previous day's game, had been so delighted over a home run made by one Mr. Sheckard that she had decided to see this delightful pastime called baseball, that she would bring all the ladies of a big feminine club with her, that she inclosed check for boxes and that the only stipulation was that Mr. Sheckard should repeat the home run that had so pleased her son.

Mr. Murphy pouched the cash, received the ladies with great courtesyand silently prayed. Nothing doing in the home run line till the eighth, when Artie Hofman poled one into the stands and came home amid the excited yells of the enthusiastic fans. while the eestacy of the ladies knew no bounds. Mr. Murphy immediately rushed to the boxes where the stately clubwomen were assembled. "Ladies," said he, "Mr. Sheckard, although will ing to perform as you desired, has generously resigned and waived the home run in favor of Mr. Hofman, whose flancee is present this afternoon and has been just dying to see him do it."

And the clubwomen, with pappy squeals of "How perfectly romantic." accepted the change in the program. giving it, in fact, their full approval .-William A. Phelan in Baseball Magazine.

Sad Fate.

On one occasion as services were held in a country church, the good minister was teaching and preaching about the glorious heaven, there would be no sickness, so no physicians would be there. A few days later one of the country doctors was found very sad and wailing aloud. On being ask ed what ailed him he answered:

"Oh, I have found out now that I can't go to heaven."

His friends seemed somewhat sur prised, and one said: "Well, doc, you must be a pretty bad

A Broader Sphere for Religion-New Field for the Rural Church.

By Peter Radford

The true christian religion is essentially social-its tenets of faith being love and brotherhood and fellowship. While following after righteousness, the church must challenge and seek to reform that social order in which moral life is expressed. While cherishing ideals of service, the rural church which -ttains the fullest measure of success is that which enriches as many lives as it can touch, and in no way can the church come in as close contact with its members as through the avenue of social functions. The country town and the rural community need a social center. The church need offer no apology for its ambition to fill this need in the community, if an understanding of its mission brings this purpose into clear consciousness. The structure of a rural community is exceedingly complex; it contains many social groups, each of which has its own center, but there are many localities which have but one church and although such a church cannot command the interest of all the people, it is relieved from the embarrassment of religiously divided communities.

One thing is certain, and that is that the church cannot take away the dance, the card party and the theatre unless it can offer in its place a satisfying substitute in the form of more pleasing recreation.

Universal Instinct for Play.

In providing for enjoyment the church uses one of the greatest methods by which human society has developed. Association is never secure until it is pleasurable; in play the instinctive aversion of one person for another is overcome and the social mood is fostered. Play is the chief educational agency in rural communities and in the play-day of human childhood social sympathy and social habits are evolved. As individuals come together in social gatherings, their viewpoint is broadened, their ideals are lifted and finally they constitute a cultured and refined society. It is plain, therefore, that the of the universal instinct for play. Chronicle. If the church surrounds itself with social functions which appeal to the young among its membership, it will gap in rural pleasures and will reap threaten to injure the American Interesting Experiments Made to Determine the Action of Liquid and Frost on Material.

One of the largest construction companies in this country is making experiments to determine what is the action of sea water and frost upon concrete. According to Science Conspectus, the company made 24 columns, each 16 feet long and 16 inches square, reinforced with iron bars near their corners and in January, 1909, immersed them in the water at the Boston navy yard. At high tide the water almost entirely covers them, but at low tide they are completely exposed. Thus in cold weather the columns are alternately thawed and frozen, as the tide rises and falls. The columns are made with various qualities of concrete-mixed dry, plastic, and very wet-and also with different qualities of cement. Experts are studying the effects of the addition of waterproofing materials; clay and other substances are added from time to time, and the effect is observed. BROUGHT TO SINGLE SHEET

War's Effect on European Newspapers Is Manifest in the Size of the Issues.

No one can have failed to observe how greatly the size of his daily paper has dwindled, how, in fact, everything which entails the consumption of paper exhibits a strict ecoonmy. This is owing to the shortage of paper due to the war, and it is quite possible that if the war lasts for any considerable time practically all English daily papers will consist of a single sheet. Already this step has been necessitated n France. Some 15,000 tons of news and white paper in reel made from wood pulp are consumed each week in this country. Already the consumption has risen 25 per cent owing to the abnormal demand for war news-it would certainly have been greater were it not for the curtailment in size. Most of the paper used in England-about 11,500 tons-is manufactured in this country, but about 2,600 tons comes each week from the continent and 900 tons from Newfoundland.

Birds Fly From Battle.

One of the war correspondents has noted the complete absence of birds from the battlefields of northern France and the consequent profusion of spiders and other cognate crawling things. Birds always desert scenes of heavy gunfire; and, what is more, they often do not return for many years. All birds left the theater of war in South Africa, and it is only now-14 years later-that they are returning. Meanwhile South Africa has suffered from a vexatious plague of ground insects-"tecks," as they call them over there. It is not supposed that the African birds left the country, but that they merely retired to some remote and peaceful part of the veldt.

hours; Mark, one hour and a quarter; Luke, two hours and a quarter; John, one hour and three-quarters; Acts; two hours and a quarter. Without this continual reading it is impossible to get the general thought of the book you are studying.

In this general reading through of the book your purpose is not to analyze, nor is it even to get an outline, but to get an impression; therefore, pay no attention to chapter marks. One is sometimes hindered in Bible study by stopping at the end of a chapter. For instance, John 7 ends with the words: "And every man unto his own house;" chapter 8:1 reads: "Jesus went unto the mount of Olives." Now, suppose we end with the first clause, have we not stopped in the midst of a beautiful thought? The thought is this: That while every man had his own home to which to go, that while the foxes had holes and the birds of the air had nests, yet Jesus had no place to call his own, so he went to the mount of Olives. To obviate the difficulty of which we are speaking it is well to read the Revised

Now begin to read the text carefully, prayerfully and thoughtfully. Chapter 1, verse 1, gives us two points -the author of the book and the persons addressed. Now write down on Sheet one, "Paul, 1:1;" and on Sheet two write "the saints which are at Ephesus, and the faithful in Christ

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Nearly all ambitious farmers have established orchards or wish to have them. There is plenty of encouragement for them at this time. Amateurs especially are determined to take advantage of the high prices and the good market demand for fruit. Horticulture is likely to receive a great deal of attention during the next few years. Commercial orchards return a profit of $200 to $500 an acre and apparently the market demand for all kinds of fruit is unlimited. Apples, pears, plums of the country where timber grows, and the less hardy fruits do well in the south and in the far west. It is feasible for any land owner to Both tree fruits and small fruits are ing Sale. commonly planted too close for the best results. This comes from a desire to get just as much as possible from the land, and a failure to look ahead to see what the trees or plants will be several years after the planting. This is particularly true in the home orchard. Very often we see fruit trees planted ten or fifteen feet apart, when they ought to be thirty. One tree that has room enough for a healthy growth of top and roots is more profitable than three half starved trees occupying the same space. The Real Show Down.

Because of our rapidly approaching town meeting on Feb. 16, there is a good deal of discussion among voters as to the real merits or demerits of the liquor question. Time has largely passed for abusive treatment of the issue, for men are now beginning to think for themselves as to what is right or wrong, and having once decided, to act accordingly. The average voter can no longer be won by a slap on the back, by a cigar from a self-styled "friend," or by a treat of that which "made Milwaukee famous." The question is being more and more recognized as a moral and economic issue rather than as a political issue.

One after another the claims of benefits which the licensed liquor traffic brings to a community have been refuted, until when we come to "real show down" in the matter there is little left to be said in favor of the license question.

Last Friday night in Auburn there met in debate on the relative merits of Prohibition and license, two men who had been carefully selected by their respective friends to discuss this matter. Mr. J. Frank Burke, attorney for the New York State Anti-Saloon League, defended the affirmative, and Mr. C. A. Windle of Chicago, editor of The Iconoclast, defended the negative of the question: "Resolved, that Prohibition is fundamentally right, and being so it is fundamentally Christian in character, and that it is not only a remedy for intemperance, but it is the best remedy ever suggested for the state to apply to the question." The debate was opened by Mr. Burke who spoke for one hour and was then followed by Mr. Windle who spoke for one hour and a half, after which Mr. Burke was given half an hour for rebuttal. No decision was rendered in the debate, the audience being allowed to decide for themselves as to the relative merits of the question. The speaker brought by the liquor interests from Chicago to defend their side of the question, is one of the most prominent and supposedly strongest speakers that they are able to muster. Naturally then from such a source the bystander seeking for real information would expect to hear the best arguments that could be put forward. Mr. Windle is a fine looking type of man, and proved himself a fine orator and a gifted speaker, but the most pleasing part of his speech to the large crowd filling the Auditorium, was the great came to the real show down, the best put forward was unable to bring Address with two references, forward arguments that would hold water. Again and again his attempts New York City. to register a good word were exposed by his opponent to be the veriest subterfuge. Lest the readers of this article may claim that this opinion was held only by the temperance people, let me quote a remark made by a professional man of Auburn. one who stands very highly in the city, and is known as a license man, in sympathy with the liquor interests. He was asked as to his opinion of the debate by a friend, and replied: "Oh, the church people (presumably meaning the temperance people) had it all over Windle. There was nothing to it." When men, representing the liquor interests in this community or any other, come to you asking your support of license, ask for their reasons, and after they are given go home and think it over. See how many of them are real, how over Hagin's store, Genoa. Inquire many are valid. In opposition to these very few place over against them the bad effects of the business which no one need to have even presented to him. When it comes to the "real show down" are you willing to waste your vote in the interests of a business which depends for its existence upon our young men who must be recruited each year from the list of those before temperate? Think this over carefully before you east your ballot. At the "real show down" are there any reasons for the business existing in Genoa, King Ferry, or elsewhere in the country?

Genoa Presbyterian Church.

Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Ih response to a call from the church Board of Educaton, the sermon Sunday morning will be in keeping with "Vocation Day" which day is to be observed throughout our whole church on this occasion. The service is to be devoted to interests of this Board, whose purpose it is to interest young people in the Christian life, and in

Sunday school immediately following the morning service. Because of the removal from town of our assistant secretary, Mrs. Carl Reas, auction at Covey's Corners on the John Howell has been chosen to fill > Christian Endeavor at 6:30. This service is to be an unusually important one. The churches have been asked to observe Christian Endeavor Day throughout the country. An especially good program is being prepared and it is hoped that every young person will make it a point to be present for the meeting.

Evening service at 7:30. Because of the very disagreeable weather last Sunday night the attendance was very small. Let us be as faithful to our church as we are to any other obligations and be in our place every time it is at all possible. The church of their presence. These are comparaneeds you. Next Sunday evening the theme will be the Fourth Commandment. Men are especially urged to come out to these evening meet-

Mid-week service at 7:45 Thursday evening. Come and enjoy with us these informal meetings together, where we can discuss some of the problems before us all. .

Chautauqua Supervisors.

An item in THE TRIBUNE a few weeks ago said that the Board of Supervisors of Cayuga county had completed their work for the year 1914, and had adjourned after a session of 56 days-"well and faithfully NOTICES. done," without a doubt, and worthy of commendation, but allow me to Express load of 28 head of Iowa say that the Chautauqua county young. their work in eleven days of regular session-five days of which were done in the week of Sept. 29 and six sions during the year-14 days all told, and the necessary work of the board was all thoroughly well done.

They have been doing the same way for a considerable number of years. The actual number of working days of the board has not exceeded an average of fifteen a year during the past ten years of which I have had a knowledge. Chantuaqua county is fifty per cent greater in population and assessed valuation than Cayuga county. S. Howe.

Senior Philatheas Meet.

The Senior Philathea class of the Presbyterian Sunday school held a business meeting at the home of their teacher, Miss Flora Alling, for the purpose of electing officers.

The following officers were elect-

President-Miss Clyde Mastin. Vice Pres. - Miss Charlotte Bush. Sec.-Miss Virginia Bush. Asst. Sec.-Mrs. Wm. Mosher.

Treas.-Miss Lillian Bower. Press Reporter-Miss Emma Bush. Committees along different lines f work were appointed.

Several new members were admitted to the class.

The class decided to pledge a certain amount for the pastor's salary, also to give something toward the proposed lighting system.

The girls feel that they did an immense amount of business in a short time and that these meetings should be well attended by all the members of the class.

 THE POULTRY MAN.

Custor oil is useful in cases of diarrhea in poultry. A dose will relieve the intestines of irritant matter, the cause of the trouble, and cool and clean the bowels,

The male chicken is a cock, the male goose a gander, the male duck a drake, the male turkey a tom or gobbler.

February is generally the beginning of the laying season for both ducks and geese.

Keep up the fight against lice. Do not let the good work of last month end your warfare. You did not get them all by any means. Go at them again.

Poultry culture calls for brains, energy, experience and capital.

PARASITES THAT INFEST POULTRY

For practical purposes lice and mites may be divided into three classes, according to their life habits and the best means of destroying them. The first and least harmful class is that made up of the large body lice which live upon the skin of adult fowls and annoy them chiefly by the irritation tively easily killed by lice powders sifted through the feathers, or by the dust baths which all fowls enjoy if given opportunity to take them. Given opportunity to take these dust baths, adult fowls will need little help in combating this class of parasites.

The second class is composed of those which burrow into the skin or beneath the scales of the fowl's body and legs, The depluming mite which burrows into the skin at the base of the feathers and causes these to drop out and the mite which causes scaly leg by burrowing beneath the scales of the feet and shanks belong to this class. These cannot be reached by dusting powders and must be attacked with some grease or oil that can penetrate to their habitations. Any nonirritating

Scaly leg in fowls is a filth disthat burrows under the scales and when it starts soon infects the whole flock. Where it exists clean up thoroughly, whitewash walls, roosts, nests, dropping boards and disinfect floors. If scale is thick soak the fowls' legs in sweet oil, remove crusts gently and apply sulphur ointment or a mixture of three parts lard and one of coal oll. Repeat until the disease dis-grease or oil may be used, ordinary lard being as good as anything, though it sometimes needs re-enforcing with mercurial or blue ointment in the proportion of about one-fourth part of the latter. This can be rubbed in and reaches the pests. As a liquid dip for legs kerosene or coal oil is efficient and handy

The third and most destructive class of parasites is represented by the common red mite. These mites do not stay upon the fowls during the day, but live in cracks and behind loose boards about the nests and perches and come out at night to feast upon the blood of their victims. Careful search will find them in any neglected henbouse, and no fowls can thrive where they are present. These are to be killed by the lice paints or sprays and by whitewash. For painting perches and small surfaces kerosene to which has been added ope-fourth part of crude carbolic acid is cheap and effective. Any hard grease like tallow may be melted and applied to perches by means of a brush; this will fill the porce of the wood and lasts longer than the liquid

Charcoal For Poultry.

Charcori is an excellent corrective of he cylis of injudicious feeding and also is a cond remedy in bowel disorer in pourcy. Having wonderful ab urbent powers, especially for gases, cally a small quantity should be put in by hoppers at a time, on account of its absorptive nature. It should be kept in a thoroughly dry vessel with a cione fitting cover, so as to exclude the air. If chiarcoal is heated well before given to poultry it will have a be equal to fresh charcoal.

Salaries of the Past as Compared With Those of Today.

Our imaginations are so nimble in this world of dollars that we have already ceased to notice the bagatelle of a vaudeville salary of $3,000 a week. such as some of our actresses are said to have received. We are already calculating on the salary of the future. The salary of the past was not so ambitious. It was a thing to worry over.

not to speculate upon. In the late fifties of the last century Mrs. Drew and her mother received $16 a week for the two. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert received the same sum. At this time the custom was to give two plays a night, with singing and dancing between. The regular actors also did these specialties They supplied their own wardrobes as well, and as the theater going public was smaller there was necessarily a constant change of bill. The $16 was undoubtedly well earned.

The first person to receive a satury of three figures was Rose Eytinge, the most popular emotional actress of her time. Her first salary as leading woman had been $25, and at the time she considered it a great sum, for she had started on the stage at $7 a week.

Hamlet called the players "the abstruct and brief chronicles of the time." and indeed in no other business today do we find so clearly the characteristics of our age. No other profession is more overcrowded or more of a gamble, yet those members of it who succeed in finding engagements should have little complaint to make against the high cost of living, with such changes in their remuneration within our memory.-New York Tribune.

BUILD HOMES FOR CITIZENS

English Municipalities Erect Buildings That Rent for Exceedingly Moderate Sums.

A shortage of houses at Newport, Monmouthshire, England, is encouraging private enterprise and stimulating the public authorities to supply the necessary homes, according to the United States consul at Cardiff, Wales. The official architect of Newport has presented a scheme to the town council for constructing 248 houses, 16 feet wide, containing two bedrooms, in blocks of six, four and two, at a cost of $924.63 each, and to rent at $1.82 per week. It is also proposed to erect 87 houses with a frontage of 25 feet, with three bedrooms, at a cost of $1,070.63 each, to rent at $2.04 per week. The land on which these houses will be erected varies in cost to the municipality from $1,703.27 to $2.189.92 per acre.

The Cardiff municipal government has adopted the small dwellings acquisitton act, 1899, which authorizes the city to advance money for enabling residents to acquire the ownership of houses in which they live, provided the value of such house and lot does not exceed $2,000. Three-fourths of the market value of the house and lot will be advanced, to be repaid by installments spread over a period of 20 years, the rate of interest being four per cent a year. A Cardiff householder living in a house of the value of $2.000 will henceforth be able, if in possession of $500, to borrow $1,500 from the city and acquire the fee simple of the property.

ALL ARE SHOWING INTEREST

Progress of City Planning Most Gratifying to Those Who Have the Subject Deep In Mind.

The other day I asked George B. Ford, the well-known city planner of him along progressive city planning lines, and he replied: "The recent interest which the real estate bodies, in particular the more enlightened real estate men, have been taking in city planning.

"The increasing number of real estate men at our conferences," he said. "and the sessions devoted to city planning at the convention of real estate exchanges at Pittsburgh, promises more for the wholesome extension of city planning interests in America than almost anything that has yet taken place.' I also am most favorably impressed with the interest shown by me chambers of commerce and members of boards of trade throughout the country, and the fact that it was even recognized at the recent convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America."-The Living Church.

Use Hardy Plants.

In gardens of large extent, such as usually obtain in rural districts, shrubs and other plants should be chosen that need little care or attention. Those that really need nothing more to carry them through the year alive than the winter's rains are ideal, and the nearer all approach this standard the more popular they should prove. Plants from similar climates, as Australia and South Africa, for example, are sure to prove satisfactory in most parts of California. Those from Japan, Europe, and the eastern part of our own country need too much humidity both in soil and atmosphere.-Los Angeles Times.

Back to the Land.

When the country has schools equal to those of the cities, roads and highways comparable to streets and boulevards, when sanitary methods prevail that are equal to those in congested centers, and transportation of agricutural products from small stations to the central market is as economical in time and money as that between large cities, then, and not till then, will there be a real exodus "back to the land." When this happy day arrives, and it is rapidly approaching, large centers of population will be almost deserted at night.

Training Building Officials.

Facilities are now provided in every large city and important center of population in Germany not only for the technical and business training of bullders, contractors, building mechanics and construction engineers, but also for the instruction of prospective building inspectors and other public officials, to whom will be intrusted the enforcement of state and municipal regulations relating to buildings and construction operations of all

PEOPLE TO BE TRUSTED.

The reason why governments have not done and are not doing their duty toward the suppression of alcohol is, in the last analysis, says Congressman Hobson, "based on the absence of public opinion on the part of the masses as to the true nature of alcohol and the appalling results that come from its use." And Dr. T D. Crothers, the noted expert on alcoholism, declares that "if the actual effects of alcohol were known by the people, prohibiting its use would follow as a natural and reasonable demand." To bring to the people knowledge concerning the nature of alcohol and its effects upon the individual, the family, the state, is the purpose of the organized campaign of education now being carried on throughout the land from remote countryside to halls of congress. Given the facts, the intelligent people of this nation will soon settle the liquor question and settle it right. Bring the truth to the masses!

JAILS ARE EMPTY.

The Telegram (Wheeling, W. Va.), speaking enthusiastically of the changed conditions in Wheeling, tells us that "On the 8th of July the prisoners were so thoroughly cleaned out of the workhouse that when the jail officials sent for some men to clean the jail there were not enough men in prison to do it, and the jail officials had to do the work themselves."

One instance is related of a former leader of the wets who is in the grocery business. A man who had owed him a grocery bill for four years came in the first pay day after the saloons were closed and gave him $10 on his account. He explained that now that he could not spend his money for booze, he would have it to pay his honest bills. Similar incidents are related by the hundreds from all over

This, in the last analysis, is paid by starving wives, besotted husbands, helpless orphans, betrayed maidenhood, blasted careers, wreck, ruin, despair and death."

WHAT DOES HE GET?

A New York business man puts it

"Suppose two workingmen, quitting on Saturday, each with, say, $12 in his pay envelope. One goes to the corner saloon and spends $4 for drink -going home to his family drunk, and with $8 in his pocket, while the other goes to the corner and deliberately throws $4 out of his pay envelope into the sewer-going home sober, and with $8 in his pocket. Which What did the first man purchase with his money?"

ENORMOUS WASTE.

The man of this world is no longer indifferent to the mountainous waste represented by the saloon and its attendant vices. The statesman more than the preacher, the ballot box more than the pulpit, is called upon to confront this awful waste of human energy, this dissipation of earth's resources, misdirection of man's toil. It is by the decree of the economist, of the good statesman, the boasted practical man of business, the manager of railroads and the directors of banks, that the saloon has got to go.-Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

NO JUVENILE CASES.

Recently a superintendent of the department of Juvenile courts of the Kansas W. C. T. U. wrote to the juvenile court judges of the different counties of the state in an endeavor to learn the status of the work in each community. One judge reported, "We have no probation officers because we have needed none. During the past three years we have had no juvenile cases." Another judge wrote, "No children have ever been sent to institutions from this county.".

GOOD BUSINESS.

The London Daily Chronicle, recording the fact that a large employer of labor has decided to pay the total abstainers among his men 10 per cent higher wages than the drinkers, states that he does this as a purely business proposition and in the interests of efficlency; he has no special ambition as a guardian of morality,

New Ways of Making Water Safe

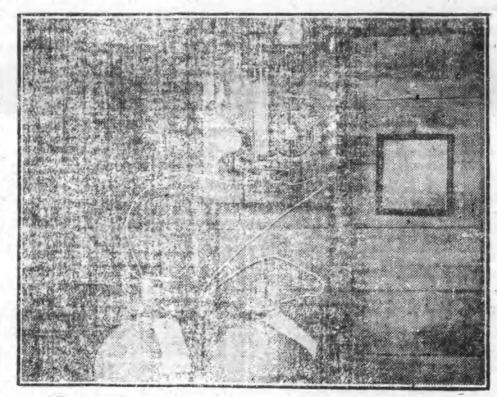

PUBLIC HEALTH HINTS

Prepared Each Week For the Readers of This Newspaper by the New York State Department of Health.

THE cold months of the year, and particularly the late fall and early spring months, are the times when water supplies are most likely to spread disease. All cities and villages should look to the safety of their water supplies at this season. The modern methods of CHLORINE DISINFECTION make it easy to secure a safe supply at

The fall rains and the melting of the snow in spring are likely to wash a great deal of polluting material into lakes and streams which may be fairly clean at other seasons of the year. Two towns in New York state, Warrensburg and Hudson Fails, have already suffered this autumn from outbreaks of water borne diarrhea.

No RUNNING STREAM or SMALL POND which has houses and barnyards on or near its banks or to the shores of which campers and picnickers resort can be relied upon to be at all times safe. In LARGE LAKES disease germs which may be washed in often die before they reach the intake of the waterworks. Even in large lakes, however, currents caused by the wind or in other ways may carry pollution the liquor traffic for the revenue it for MANY MILES. A typhoid epidemic at Auburn was caused some years ago, by pollution carried for four miles down a stream and for ten miles across a lake.

The safest way is to PURIFY all surface waters from streams or ponds before using them for drinking. This can best be done by building sand filters, which keep the water always clear and bright as well as pure. Filtration, however, is expensive, and water supplies may be made SAFE for communities which cannot afford to filter them by the very simple process of disinfection with blenching powder or chlorine. Chlorine given off from powder or added directly to the water solution or as a gas quickly DESTROYS ALL DISEASE GERMS without giving any taste to the water (if it is properly used) and without injuring it in any way. The amount of chlorine used is very small and the cost very slight.

The State Department of Health has a small chlorine disinfecting plant which it can send at a few hours' notice to any town in which water borne typhoid or other disease breaks out. For some of the victims, however, this will be TOO LATE. Wise city and village and town authorities will install their own disinfection plants BEFORE THE GARM IS DONE.

Health Questions Answered

is the better husband and father? Prepared Each Week For the Readers of This Newspaper by the New York State Department of Health.

> HE editor of the Health Hints will always be glad to answer questions of general interest bearing on public health problems, acdressed to the State Department of Health, Albany. Two such questions recently received are sufficiently important to be discussed in this column.

How Measles Is Spread.

A reader of the Health Hints in a small town writes: "We have had an epidemic of measles in the school here, and my little boy has just come down with it. We have a good health officer, and he is very careful to quarantine cases, and my children are careful and I am sure have never layed with other children that were sick. How could Johnny have got it? Do you think it can be the milk?"

REPLY.

Measles is one of the diseases which have never been known to be spread by milk. It is probable that the little boy caught it from one of his companions, who was in the EARLY STAGE of the disease before any physician had seen him. Measles is most catching at the very beginning, before there are any signs that anything is wrong except a running nose. When there is an epidemic of measles going on the only safe rule is to keep children away from other children who seem to have colds in the head. Measles takes about fourteen days to develop after the infection occurs and before the first symptoms appear. Any children who may have been exposed to infection should be watched for two weeks and if they appear ill in any way at the end of that time at all should be suspected of having measles. Above all things, Johnny's smaller brothers and sisters, if he has any, should be protected from infection, for measles is often a VERY SERIOUS disease for very young children.

Danger From a Tuberculous Neighbor.

A correspondent from a city writes: "A family has just moved into the apartment next door, and there is a young man in the family who has tuberculosis. We can hear him coughing all the time, and I am afraid that my children will catch it if they meet him in the hall. Isn't it wrong for such people to live among other people where they are a source of danger all the time?"

REPLY.

Whether a consumptive is a source of danger to family and neighbors depends entirely on how he takes care of himself. The germs of consumption are discharged from the mouth in the sputum and in the fine spray thrown out in coughing. If a consumptive is careless and spits on the floor and on the street and coughs in the faces of people he meets he is a very REAL DANGER. Any person has the right by national Prohibition?-Liquor Journal. law to report such a careless consumptive in writing to the local health officer, and the health officer must investigate the case, and if he finds the case a daugerous one he can appear before a magistrate and have the consumptive committed to an institution.

If, on the other hand, a consumptive always uses a sputum cup and mixture when cool, and pour into a never coughs except in a paper napkin or handkerchief and never uses | mold. TUNA DISHES.

The tuna, which has been called the turkey of the ocean, is a most appetizing fish and one ing the popular salmon. It is often canned under the name of tunny. There is a most delicious flavor about this fish which certainly does resemble the breast meat of turkey. It sells at about the same price as ordinary salmon, but is far superior to it as to flavor.

It may be served cold right from the can with slices of lemon or combined in various hot dishes with eggs, bread and milk as a loaf or souffle.

Tuna Sandwiches .- One cup of tuna, finely chopped, two teaspoonfuls of creamed butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a teaspoonful each of tarragon, chervil and gherkins. Put into a bowl and blend lightly, adding a dash of salt, paprika and nutmeg Spread the mixture on very thin white bread.

Tuna Salad.—This is a salad which will rival the tasty chicken salad. Mix together three cupfuls of tuna. one cupful of chopped celery, one hard cooked egg, chopped, and one green pepper, adding a half-cupful of French dressing very slowly. Let stand several hours before serving and then add a fourth of a cupful of chopped olives and serve with mayonnaise dressing, The tuna is not an oily fish, so that the addition of the two dressings gives the desired richness to the salad.

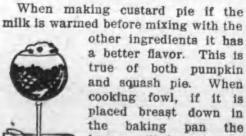

Tuna in Peppers.-Cut six peppers in halves lengthwise, remove the seeds and soak in cold water. Beat four eggs until light, add a cupful of sweet milk, two cupfuls of tuna, a cupful of bread crumbs and seasonings. Pack into the peppers and sprinkle the tops with well-buttered crumbs. Brown in the oven and eat hot.

The peppers should be soaked in cold water and parboiled ten minutes before they are stuffed.

Tell not abroad another's faults Till thou hast cured thine own. Nor whisper of thy neighbor's sin Till thou art perfect grown.

GOOD THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

a better flavor. This is true of both pumpkin and squash pie. When cooking fowl, if it is placed breast down in the baking pan the breast will be juicy instead of dry and tasteless, as it so often is.

Just before serving hot chocolate, beat in a tablespoonful of whipped cream to each cup. If cream is not to be had the white of an egg will add to its appearance. The children are pleased with a marshmallow floating on top. If you remember to put in a slice from a clove of garlic into salads there will be that indescribable something which makes the salad most appetizing and which, if omitted, will lack something.

A pretty decoration for cheese balls is cherries cut in quarters without entirely separating the sections, pressed into the top of the chaese ball just like the hull of a strawberry.

A delicious pudding sauce is the following: Beat until thick tha yolks of two large eggs, then add the beaten white of one, and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Place in a double boiler and cook, stirring until thick. Pour into an earthen' bowl and beat until cold, then mix with this a cupful of whipped cream. If used with puddings a teaspoonful of vanilla is added. This sauce is good with fruit salads.

Banana Parfait.-Peel and scrape two or three bananas and press the pulp through a ricer. There should be a cupful of the pulp. Scald the pulp with two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, the juice of half a lemon, chill, then fold in one cupful of whipped cream, a third of a cupful of candied fruit, cut very fine and soaked over night in orange juice.

Cafe Parfait.—Steep a half cupful of coffee in a cupful of cold water and simmer until reduced to one-half the amount; strain over two eggs well beaten, add a half cupful of sugar and cook in a double botler until thick and smooth. Beat a pint, of cream until stiff, add the coffee

THE MOTHER OF LINCOLN BEACHEY, FROM THE TOWER OF JEWELS, 435 FEET ABOVE THE EARTH, AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, WATCHES HER SON LOOP HIS ONE THOUSANDTH LOOP

When Lincoln Beachey, a son of San Francisco, on the occasion of his homecoming after breaking all world records as a daredevil looper of 999 loops, performed two entirely new and death defying stunts over the completed palaces of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition it was his aged mother who for the first time waved him on to fresh achievements. Mrs. Beachey held a place of honor, 435 feet up in the air, on the tiptop of the wonderful Tower of Jewels. From this aerie she was able to watch every erratic move of her daredevil son. She cried out only once. That was when he wrote the figures "1000" against the clouds, high above the two miles of completed exhibit palaces, significant of the looping of his one thousandth loop.

To the Voters of Genoa.

Gentlemen:

are to voice our opinion at the polls tion for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, on the question of license or no on Jan. 23. D. D. G. M. Arthur Lanlicense for the sale of intoxicating don and staff installed the following liquors.

Who of us are interested in, and favorably for license? First, the men who desire to sell the liquor and next those who wish to drink it. There still is another class in our town, the dealer or trader in various commodities, who seems to feel that by the sale of liquor in the town it brings to them a class of trade that by no-license they would not get. Possibly this may be so, but I believe they have not considered how this will work out.

As to the men who are anxious to sell, if they conform to the requirements of law, they may feel they are conducting a legitimate business, but certainly the desire for gain must blind their eyes to good moral society conditions. In the event of which the Rebekahs served a very license securing the balance of power, should any wrong or crime result Rebekahs as they have been a great from the sale of liquor, those who help to the subordinate lodge. vote for it would each and all be partners in and individually responsible for the crime.

For the patrons of the bar, those who pass over their earnings for the drink, I have no hard words; I have for them only sympathy that they have such an uncontrollable and irresistible appetite that leads them to spend their money and degrade their manhood. I believe there are none of you but that in moments of sober reflection regret that you ever became slaves to so degrading an appetite. But, men, you who have sons do you wish them to follow in your footsteps and become the victims of the appetite at the expense of good citizenship? You have daughters who soon will be sought for life companions to some man. Do you wish them to accept the attentions of young men whose intellect is depraved and whose manhood is destroyed by patronage of the bar? Of course you answer No! No! Then let me appeal to you to help in making it possible for the young people to start on an even race for an ennobled life and good citizenship by yourself putting in your ballot for no license.

To the dealer and tradesman who seem to think that license gives them increased business and profits, kindly consider one moment If you cater to the trade of the whiskey element and draw the lines there, this is a game where you don't have a lone hand; two can play it. We, and for the town of Genoa, Cayuga the no-license people of our town, County, N. Y., on Tuesday, Feb. 16. will take it for granted that you do 1915, to-wit: not want our trade. Consolidation of Schools.

The plan for the consolidation of district schools, which has been successfully adopted in different towns of the State are found to effect a large saving for taxpayers, was discussed last week in the annual New York State Tax Conference held at Albany, N. Y. As average New York State towns views of the schoolhouses in the towns of Danby, Caroline and Dryden were shown by Dr. T. E. Finnegan, assistant commissioner of education, in connection with a lecture on the 'Consolidation of School Districts.'' Despite the fact that transportation would have to be furnished in the event of the consolidation of the schools, Dr. Finnegan explained why the new system would be much cheaper as well as more efficient. The olan will be discussed at the next special meeting of the Board of Supervisors, and it is altogether probable that it will be adopted in the near future in Tompkins county. Weekly Ithacan.

ALFALFA'S MANY USES.

A Valuable Feed For All Classes of

Farm Animals. [Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.] The widespread opinion that alfalfa is one of the most highly nutritious of feeds for all classes of farm animals has been confirmed by chemical analyses made by the United States department of agriculture and various state experiment stations. The following table shows the comparative value of different kinds of feed, based upon their relative content of digestible and nourishing substances, such as protein. carbohydrates and fats.

In expressing these values in dollars and cents the investigators were of course compelled to assign somewhat arbitrary prices per pound for each of these substances, since the market for various kinds of feeds fluctuates:

Actual feeding value of different feeds

based on amount of digestit	ne		·	4.	L	14	7.8	113.
	V	al	u	e	1	36	21	ton.
Fresh alfalfa					ě.			$7.00
Fresh clover								5.30
Alfalfa hay
Clover hay
Timothy hay								9.50
Cowpea hay
Wheat bran
Shelled corn

From this table it will be noted. for example, that the feeding value of alfalfa hay is more than twice that of timothy hay, exactly that of shelled corn and only a little less than that of wheat bran. This was worked out in another way by experiments in the Tennessee agricultural experiment station, where alfalfa was used in place of grain in feeding dairy cows. These experiments showed that one and onehalf pounds of alfalfa took the place of one pound of wheat bran. With alfalfa hay at $10 a ton and wheat bran at $20 a ton the use of alfalfa resulted in a saving of $2.80 for every 100 pounds of butter and 20 cents for every 100 pounds of milk obtained from the herd. In Nebraska 2.41 pounds of beef were produced daily on a full ration of corn and alfalfa as against only 1.48 pounds on a ration of corn and prairie hay.

In popular practice alfalfa hay has been found so satisfactory that approximately four-fifths of the country's crop is consumed in this way. There are however, other uses to which it may be put. Notable among these is its value as a soiling crop. After each cutting it renews its growth with great readiness, and there is practically none of the danger from bloat which makes it somewhat disadvantageous as pas ture for cattle and sheep. Hogs, on the other hand, are more apt to injure the stand than to be injured by it. As ensilage alfalfa is perhaps not as satisfactory as in other respects. It is apt to be slimy, and the percentage of loss from spoiling is frequently appreciable. The rendiness, however, with which the hay may be cured and utilized renders the making of alfalfa into silage ordinarily unnecessary. On the other hand, within recent years alfalfa ment has gained considerable popular ity. This meal is ground up either alone or mixed with other concentrates. such as molasses, bran and corn chop. It can be fed with less waste than the hoy, and the cost of transportation is, of course, very considerably diminished when shipments for large distances are necessary. Since a pound of alfalfa hay contains no more nutriment, however, after it has been ground up into meal than it did before. there does not seem to be any particular advantage in the process when the crop is intended for home consumption. Among the minor uses for this very useful crop may be mentioned feed for all kinds of poultry. Alfalfa meal fed in a mush as a part of the daily ration tends to keep up.egg production during the winter, and in the summer time it may be cut green and fed to the chickens, or they can be allowed the range of an alfalfa field. The crop is also of service in connection with blossom in one sesson makes it pos- Hang the barrel or log, as the case sible for bees to gather successive may be, from a rafter or other strong crops of honey, and statistics indicate support in a well ventilated room. FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

The following rules to prevent the spread of the infection are laid down by W. Scott Matthews. Illinois food commissioner:

Do not visit farms or districts where the disease is prevalent or suspected Do not purchase feed or bedding from infected districts. Do not use feed which is liable to lacerate the mouth. Keep dogs tied up. All stray animals, including birds and pigeons, should be killed. Do not permit visitors other than officers or veterinarians to inspect your animals. All buildings, feed lots, yards and equipment should be kept in a clean and sanitary condition. Drinking troughs should be particularly looked after. Keep all live stock off the high-

Wash and scald all milk cans as soon as they are returned to the farm.

The following disinfectants will destroy foot and mouth germs in one hour: Good whitewash; solution of carbolic acid, 1 per cent; solution of washing soda, 3 per cent, or hydrochloric (muriatic) acid. 1 per cent.

Disin/ectants such as biehloride and slaked lime are liable to dry and crack the hoofs and should not be used on the feet of

If the disease is prevalent in your vicinity spray barns thoroughly either with compound cresol solution or a solution of chlorinated lime made according to these directions: Chlorinated lime, twenty-two pounds; water, fifty gallons.

Water used should be lukewarm. Strain the solution before placing it in the sprayer. Spray the barns soon after the cattle are turned out each morning.

The germ is not easily killed by cold. Boiling will destroy it at once. .

WINTER KILLING OF ALFALFA

No Plant Yet Found Proof Against All Degrees of Temperature.

Agents of the department of agriculture have spent much time in Siberia searching for some north Asian species of alfalfa that cannot be winter killed. There has been much complaint of the winter killing of alfalfa, and it is probable that there always will be some such complaint. The agents of the de partment of agriculture have not found a plant that is proof against all manner of temperature changes common to northern regions.

Now and then an alfalfa field will be pretty well killed out by cold weather, and another field on the same kind of soil and just across the road will come through the winter in very good price When this happens, you may set it down that the winter killed field has been badlly handled by the grower in the summer before.

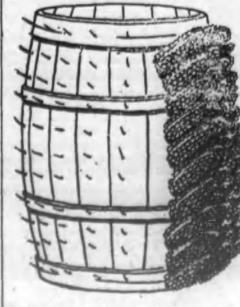

Here are some of the reasons for the winter killing of alfalfa. Pasturing it down to the ground before winter sets in; cutting it too closely late in the season and letting it go into the winter while making a heavy growth. The heavy, green growth caused by warm fall weather and long continued fall rains is a frequent cause of winter killing.

There are some winters, too, when the snowfall is very light and the weather is very severe, and when this combination occurs alfalfa is likely to suffer greatly. Like wheat, alfalfa winters better where it can shelter under a snow blanket. Many growers stick to the practice of mowing down the last crop, letting it lie as it falls and refusing to pasture the field after this cutting:

A still better plan and one that is very popular is to not cut late in the fall, but to leave a growth of from six to eight inches high. This holds the snow, helps in protecting the roots and prevents the heaving and settling of the soil that comes from alternate freezing and thawing. This freezing and heaving of the soil are among the reasons why alfalfa winter kills, as it loosens the roots and causes them to die from exposure.

Drying Seed Corn. Drive nails into a barrel or short log about every three inches, and on to each one push the cob end of an ear of corn. Many bushels of corn may be put in a big barrel in this manner.
