D. W. Peckham of Chicago is in town, called here by the illness of his brother. Fred A. Peckham died at the hospital in Auburn Sunday afternoon. March 14, 1915. Mr. Peckhan has been in poor health for several years and for some time past has been suffering intensely. A week previous to his death, he was removed to the hospital in the hope that he might be able to undergo an operation which it was believed would result in his recovery, but upon examination it was decided that there was no chance for recovery. While it was very hard for his wife and family to be separated from him these last days it was a comfort to know that he was not suffering. Mr. Peckham is survived by his widow, one son, Mr. Arthur Peckham of Minneapolis, Minn., and one daughter, Mrs. Byron Hitchcock of Scipio. Mr. Peckham was well known in this vicinity, having lived at Poplar Ridge and nearby for more than thirty years, He will be missed from his home, and his friends, who often called upon him, will miss his cheerful words, for in spite of his suffering he always of Philadelphia, The Sun of London, The greeted them pleasantly. THE BOY FARMER

Or a Member of the Corn Club

CHAPTER III.

AM'S mother would not agree to let him do the blasting of the stumps. She feared, and with much reason, that because of his inexperience in handling dynamite be might blow up himself. So Sam nad agreed, though he didn't like the, idea of paying $3 for work that he could do himself.

A man named Nolan had been hired to do the work and he had come out Saturday afternoon to make a beginning. Sam was anxious to learn about the work so that in future there'd be no need to hire some one else to do it. He drove across the field, hitched his horse at a safe distance and went over to watch the proceedings

Sam's companions, who had also heard the first report, came up to took on. It was interesting to watch Nolan deftly place his blasts so that they always brought up the stumps. Sometimes they popped up in the air like a cork out of a bottle; at other times they split into pieces and went burtling through the air. Under the largest stump in the field Nolan put a double charge of dynamite.

"Better get clear," he said to the boys when he was about ready to touch it off. They all backed away to a dis tance of thirty or forty yards and waited. He lighted the fuse and ran over to where they were standing.

"Get down," he said, "behind some thing or on the ground."

All except Joe Watson promptly dropped down flat behind a little ridge. "There isn't any danger this far off,"

he said and remained standing.

no move he grabbed bim around the ankles and gave a jerk. The boy came down with a thud, and at the same instant there was a roar. Something sang over them like a bullet and exactly in the path where Joe had stood a moment before.

"Well, you may thank your lucky stars," Nolan remarked to Joe as he got up, "that Sam pulled you down. You see that big piece of stump layin away out yonder? That's what whistled over here, and if you'd 'a' been standin' it would 'a' broke you in

Joe was pale from fright at his narrow escape. "My," he exclaimed, "but I owe you a big debt, Sam! You saved me then, and I don't think I'll ever act the fool like that again."

It was now the middle of the afternoon, and as the boys wanted to return home early for one reason or another Sam stopped work for the day, and they all drove home at a brisk

On the next Monday Sam was present at the meeting of the Boys' Corn club and became a member. Bob Fagan was also there and joined, though he was doubtful about getting his acre cleared of stumps by planting time. In addition to the cash prizes already offered, several firms and corporations announced at the meeting that they would give premiums to the successful rious kinds. Among them were a registered Jersey cow, a pair of registered pigs, a corn planter, a trip to Wash ington, a trio of prize poultry, a gold watch and an automobile Sam went home happy that day and more firmly resolved than ever to win some of the prizes. All the week he worked after school hours joading and hauling mannre from the stable to the farm. He was so busy that he had no time to talk even to his mother and sister about his work. But at the supper table on Saturday Mrs. Powell in quired how he was getting along with the work

"Doing tine," said Sam. "I've got the field and the fence rows cleaned up and the fences made pig tight and two ton. What varieties would you advise acres fertilized and ready to be plowed. The next thing I'm going to do is to have the land broke, cross broke and harrowed."

"Going to do all the field that way?" asked Florence Powell.

"Oh, no," Sam replied, "I can't prepare all the land us I did the two acres. I haven't time this year, but I'll put some fertilizer on all of it and have it

"What are you going to raise on the two acres?" his sister inquired, becoming interested.

"One-acre is going to be in corn. It's going to be my contest acre, and I'm going to try to win some of the prizes of the Boys' Corn club. On the other acre I'm going to plant Irish pototoes at first; then maybe June corn and black eyed peas."

"My, but that'll be three crops on the same ground in one year?" exclaimed Florence. "Can you do that, Sam?" Yes, and that's not all," said Sam.

"After I guther the corn and peas I'll put in a crop of turnips or rye.

in corn?" asked Mrs. Powell. all I'm going to plant five acres in the name of it, but it is about two corn. Then I'm going to plant five weeks earlier than most cotton, and series in cutton; one in Kathe corn, one it's got five long locks to each boll," In trian polators and one in cape "That's the cotton for you, Sam."

That takes up all the land except the orchard and the acre that we're going to use for a garden and watermelon we'll need and a lot to sell besides. The corn and cape are for the stock and the Kathr corn for the chickens. if we don't raise such stuff we'll have it to buy, and that's expensive. Besides, most of these crops I speak of will be gathered pretty early, and I can get a crop or two more on the and. When I cut the cane I'm going to plant sweet potatoes on that parch."

"I know where you can get some seed Irish potatoes," suggested his mother. Sam smiled. "Did you ever stop to think, mother," he asked, "that what you call seed potatoes are just the fittle dwarfy culls and not really fit for anything?"

"Why, no," said Mrs Powell, "I never had thought about it. but it seems like there is something in it."

"Of course there is," said Sam. "A bulletin the department sent me says they've tried all the different ways. and the best way is to use good sized potatoes and cut them in halves to

"The agricultural department must be a pretty good thing," observed Mrs.

"It is a good thing," said Sam, "It works all the time to belp the farmer. but lots of farmers won't let it help them. As for me, I'm not going against anything when I know it wants to belp me and can help me if I let it. The de partment of agriculture keeps men traveling all the time all over the world collecting new plants and flowers and fruits and grains suited to our different limates and soils. It experiments and finds out which varieties are best suited to certain soils and the best way to cultivate and how to fight insect pests. It does all this and lots more that it would take me hours to tell you about. I wouldn't want to farm if there wasn't any agricultural department to help me. It would be too slow finding out things by myself. I've got a whole lot of bulletins on farming. and I'm going to use the money I get for hauling manure to buy some books that I want to read and to subscribe for a good farm paper. A good farm onper is the next best thing to the agricultural department." "Have you selected the corn and cotton seed that you're going to plant?" "Get down, you dummy; it's going asked Mrs. Powell when Sam had fin- the earliest times to the present. It is with those old trees. They look mighty off," said Sam sharply, and as Joe ished his glowing account of the de-

> "No. I haven't yet," he replied. "But that's one thing I must look after next week. I'll see the agent and ask him about it, but I expect our state experiment station can tell me more about the best seed to use in this part of the country.

"Hello, Mr. Burns!" greeted Sam, coming up to the government agent on the street. "I've been wanting to speak to you about seed corn and cotme to get and where can I get them?"

Well, as for the corn seed," replied Mr. Burns, "I'll order that for you, as I want all the boys to have the same kind of seed. After this year you must select your own seed, both cotton and corn. Don't depend on senting off for seed. If you do you'll sarely be padly disappointed sometimes (iet good on rieties to start with and you can unlid them up by selecting seed from the tinest and most productive Diants. "Speaking about cottousced," the agent continued. "as grant a plan as any is to get seed from somehody in your neighborhood. You atways find at least one kind of cotton in every community that is far ahead of all other kinds. Everything seems to suit it exactly. If you can get seed from a variety like that out your way and then select your own seed afterward you'll soon have the most productive cotton that can possibly be grown in your locality. "I am much obliged to you," said Sam, "for getting the corn, and I think 1 know where I can get some good cotton seed close at home. A fellow's "No, mother." Mam explained. "in got a kind down there; I don't know aid the agent, "the kind that matures early, before the holl weevils get a lick at It. Being a big bolled kind makes it so much the better. How about "I want to try to raise everything your land? Are you getting it in good condition?"

"Well. I think the acre for the contest is all right," Sam replied "I put one ton of ashes and two tons of manure on it, then had it broke deep. cross broke and harrowed. Three tons is a big lot of fertilizer to put on one acre, but I don't think I can get too much on that land."

The agent's eyes brightened. "Good!" he encouraged. "You'll make a furmer if you keep up that lick. That land's in fine shape, and it'll soak up all the moisture from the rains and snows that fall from now until spring 'The idea is to store up all the moisture you can for use by the growing crops to summer when rain is scarce. The only way to do that is to get the land plow ed deep and thoroughly pulverized. Whenever you see a patch of ground that's been plowed five or six times to kill out Bermuda or Johnson grass you always see a fine crop growing on it when everything around it is a failure. It seems as if farmers ought to learn from such examples."

"When is the best time to break land?" asked Sam.

"Oh, it ought to be done in the fall," Mr. Burns replied. "Get the land ingood condition and sow a cover crop for winter of eye or oats By plowing the land in the fall you break up the nomes of insects and thru them out to freeze. A big majority of the insects that work on crops spend the winter

n the fields and around the fence rows. no if you don't want to be bothered with insects break the land and clean out the fence rows in the fall." "I've made a little extra money hanl-

ing manure from a stable," Sam explained, "and I'm going to spend it for she began to look on her son as a very some good books along the line I'm remarkable boy. When they first look studying. Could you suggest one or ed at it in February it was an an two good ones, Mr. Burns?"

"There are any number of good books on farming and kindred subjects," said the agent. "You should get a catalogue. But I would suggest that you get 'Coburn's Swine Hus bandry' and 'Book of Alfalfa. These books are by a real farmer, and be knows what he's writing about. The are nearly all dead anyway." first, of course, is about raising hogs The second tells all about alfalfa, from Sam "You just wait till I get through real interesting, too, much better read | slabby now, but they'll come to life it ing than some of the novels that they call best sellers. full of helpful suggestions." "Don't tell me any more," Sam exclaimed. "I want to read them all. and my money won't hold out. But I'm going to buy those five and study them, especially the ones on hogs and alfalfa." "Well, bees are worth studying, too," said Mr. Burns. "I don't know much about them," replied Sam, "but I shouldn't like getting Once you understand them they give no trouble, and the honey they make is almost clear profit."

"If that's the case I think I'll get a ew hives."

"One or two will be sufficient to start with. If you take care of the swarms you'll soon have as many hives as you

"What I want to get more than anything else," continued Sam, "is some registered hogs. Do you know where could get a sow or some pigs?"

"No; don't believe I do," said the "Want registered stock, do "Yes, sir; it doesn't take any more to raise them than it does scrubs, and they are better and sell for more." "That's a good idea," remarked Mr. Burns. "You're on the right track. I see you've got some plans, Sam. What are you figuring on doing?" "Well," replied the young farmer. for the first thing I'm going to peg along on the little farm of mother's and do the very best I can with what I've got and with what I know." "And then what?" asked the agent. "Next fall and winter sister and I are going to complete the high school course. Then I'm going to make another crop, and if things go well I'll take a course at the State Agricultural college and let sister also take a course there in domestic science."

"And after that what?" queried Mr

"Well, after 'that I'll take up the work that I have already started and carry it out to a finish. I want to make mother as comfortable and independent as possible. I want to make the land productive and put up good fences and buildings. I want to have everything convenient. I want to stock the place with the very best there is in every line—Jersey cows. Berkshire bogs. Angora goats, Plymouth Rock Chickens, Peking ducks, Bronze turkeys Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y. the place with the very best there is in and even a collie dog Of course don't mean to say that these breeds are better than others, but I like them and know they are good."

Mr. Burns did not inugh at Sam's de sire for a shepherd dog.

"There is need and room for all you mention." be said, "even to the dog." "But that's not all," Sam continued. "I want things around the house to be pretty and pleasant. I want books and magazines and pictures and a big yard full of flowers. Don't you think a per son can have such things on a farm?"

I don't think anything about it," re plied the agent. "I know it. You can have them and should have them. The farm is, first of all, a place to live, and It should be made as pleasant's place as possible.

"You haven't named a thing that is out of reach, Sam. And it is very thoughtful of you to keep your mother and sister in mind in all of your plans They certainly are proud of you and have reason to be."

"When I get all that work done," said Sam, "I'm going to buy a farm for my self and do with it just as I intend to do with mother's. After that I don't know what I'll do. I haven't planned any further, but I guess there'll be new dreams by that time.

"Yes, there will, Sam." said Mr. Burns. "There will always be some thing new calling you to further en deavor. But you'll take a delight in it just as you have delighted in this other It's a man's work you have set your self, and it's worth doing,"

Sam Powell went home with the agent's last words running through his mind. He couldn't forget them, nor did he for many and many a day

CHAPTER IV.

I I was the 1st of April when the Powell's moved back to the fittle farm, and there was a look of rea: happiness on Mrs. Fowell's face when she was once more settled in that quiet nook. The farm lay buck from the public road and was screen ed from view by a grove of trees in the pasture The weather beaten farm house was also sheltered and shaded by a cluster of wide spreading oaks.

But Sam and Florence were no less pleased than their mother to be in the country again To live in the country and to know the ways of nature is to love it aimaya

Before morting, however, they all had made several trips to the old home and done much work in the garden. orchard and field. The old orchard. after receiving special treatment, by Sam, surprised Mrs. Powell so that promising sight. Dead weeds and bri ers stood shoulder high, sprouts had grown up around the trees, and it look. ed as if there was but little life left in the orchard, so many were the broken and dead boughs.

"You might as well chop down the old trees," said Mrs. Powell, "They

"Don't you believe it!" exclaimed

"Yes, I know that," replied his moth er, "but I don't think these old trees will bear any more."

"Maybe not." said Sam, "but we can try them. I can plant young trees in the place of the ones that are entirely dead."

So he set to work, mowing down oriers and weeds and raking them into plies and burning them. When this was done be took a saw and a pair of prunting shears and began on the trees. "No need of it," said the agent All the dead and broken limbs were cut away. The orchard had been neg lected so long that there were many dead houghs, and it was a different looking place when Sam finished pruning. The next thing be did was to buy some chemicals and make a solution after a formula given in one of the government builetins. With this solution and a hand sprayer he went over the orchard and sprayed each tree from top to bottom. Next be broke and barrowed the ground, and the old orchard had one more chance to live and thrive. for it was well pruned, the ground in fine condition, and the spraying had Miled all the insects that were on the

Sam, like his mother, felt rather doubtful about the orchard, but when they moved there in April they found the old trees a mass of pink blooms.

"Look, Florence!" exclaimed Mrs. Powell when she saw the trees looking so beautiful. "Sam is sure a wonder. I didn't think he could do it."

"Oh, I'm a regular Burbank," said Sam. smiling.

"Who's Burbank?" asked Florence. "Burbank," Sam replied, "is called the plant wizard. He can do anything with plants. He took the cactus and made it grow without thorns. He took two wild berries and made a large berry that is good to eat. He took the little wild daisy and originated the large Shasta daisy. He has made potatoes and tomatoes grow on one stalk, and be bas grown a white blackberry. That isn't all. He has done hundreds of wonderful things with plants."

THE NEW STATE constitution—1.

Is New York to Be a Short Ballot State?

In 1916 the voters of this state will go to the polls for the regular state election and will find on their ballots the names of candidates for Governor. Lieutenant-Governor, State Senator, Assemblyman-and that's all so far as the state ticket is concerned, for the Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Comptroiler, Attorney-General and State Engineer and Surveyor will be appointive by the Governor under the new constitution and will be footballs of partisan politics no longer! And the state machines will lose their ancient and easy control over those minor. offices and will no longer be able to make feeding troughs of patronage out of them except on those rare, though not unheard of occasions when they find a very weak man in the Gover-

Governor Hughes Payered Short Bellot. When Governor Hughes first proposed this shortening of the ballot in 1909 message, he said:

"There should be a reduction in the number of elective offices. The ands of democracy will be better attained to the extent that the attention of the voters may be focussed upon comparatively few offices, the incumbents of for administration. This will tend to picnic. promote efficiency in public office by increasing the effectiveness of the voter and by diminishing the opportunities of political manipulators who take advantage of the multiplicity of elective offices to perfect their schemes at the public expense. I am in favor of as few elective offices as may be consistent with proper accountability to the people and a Short Ballot ..

"It would be an improvement, I believe, in State administration if the executive responsibility were centered in the Governor, who should appoint a cabinet of administrative heads accountable to him and charged with the duties now imposed upon elective state

At that time many people at Albany and elsewhere received the idea with honest surprise. It seemed like taking power away from the people. It seemed undemocratic. It seemed to curtail the franchise. It seemed to confer too great power upon the Governor. Ut would as a matter of fact add only 10% to his power and leave him still only one quarter as powerful as the Mayor of New York.) There was a good debate on the proposal in the Assembly that year but it hadn't a ghost of a show to pass and probably the people of the state wouldn't have stood for it then.

Party Leaders Convinced.

Yet now after only five years it has passed the Assembly by an overwhelming vote, its general principle has been approved by the Republican, Democratic and Progressive platforms, and under the leadership of men like Elihu Root, Henry L. Stimson, Jacob G. Shurman and Seth Low, it is expected to pass the Constitutional Convention rather easily! Governor Hughes was the only Governor in the country to preach Short Ballot in 1909, whereas fourteen Governors, including Governor Whitman, are demanding it this power away from the people? That, after all, is still the real question. For no matter how much better it will be to have a single-headed instend of a six-headed administration. no matter how devious has been the history of these minor elective offices in the past, no matter how ineffective and inefficient the present system can be proved to be, the big point is-will the Short Ballot take power from the Woodrow Wilson, who founded the Short Ballot movement and is President of the National Short Ballot Organization, says: "I believe the Short Ballot is the key to the whole question of the restoration of popular government in this country!" Instead of taking power away from, it will restore power TO the people, in his estimation. Roosevelt and Taft make similar statements (which indicates, by the way. how wholly non-partisan the movement ish The whole Short Ballot philosophy-and a rich and encouraging philosophy it is-is based on the contention that to have a multitude of little elective offices is not as democratic as it looks but on the contrary actually is undemocratic. Their slogan is "The long ballot is the politicians' ballot, the Short Ballot is the people's ballot." This is the first of a series of nine arlicles prepared jointly by the Municipal Povernment Association, the County Govtrament Association and the New York Short Ballot Organization on questions to come before the Constitutional Conven-

Will the Short Ballot really take

PURIFYING THE

A Basic and Fundamental Func tion of a City.

Essentials to a Pure Water Supply Consist of Proper Catchment Areas, Plant, a Pumping Station and a Distributing System.

Among the basic and fundamental functions of a city there is none of greater importance than that of water supply, writes Frank Koester in "Modern City Planning and Maintenance." However beautiful and attractive a city may be made, if it runs a befouled and death dealing fluid through its water mains it is but a whitened sepulcher and a mockery. No city without a water purifying system, unless it has a source of naturally pure water, can in reality have any claims to being considered a civilized place of residence. Millions are spent on pumping plants, yet but little goes for purification. An evidence of the fear in which the water of many cities is, held is shown by the numerous and highly prosperous so called spring water companies. The amount of money spent by the individual members of the public of any large city for such water would undoubtedly suffice for a purification plant for the whole water supply of the city.

The traveler abroad can go from city to city without fear of illness as a result of drinking water, but the traveler in America is in danger, especially in certain parts of the country.

The essentials of a pure water supply consist of properly controlled catchment areas to collect the precipitation, an impounding storage basin, a filtering plant and if the supply is not appreciate the values. by gravity to the consumer a pumping station and finally the distributing system. For some cities artesian wells may take the place of catchment areas, The water at no time should be subject to contamination, especially after being filtered. Where open reservoirs are used they should be so protected that no possible access can be had to them except by the officials and em-

The purification of water is accomplished by a number of different processes adapted to the different kinds of water to be treated. Such processes may be briefly classified as follows: Mechanical separation, which is accomplished either by gravity in the form of sedimentation or by adhesion and screening, as with scrubbers, filters and screens. This method is the Call, Phone or Write, one most widely used. Sand filtration as compared with the so called mechanical filtration is a natural gravity filtration method, slower in action and subject to certain limitations-that is, a greater area for purification is necessary-and it is not successful in clearing turbid river waters of the finely divided clay contents. It is, however, the second most widely used method in the United through the heart with a revolver. States and is in Europe proportionately more widely used.

Chemical purification, necessary with water of a certain character, accompanied by the introduction of carbonate of lime, etc., to soften the water and for the removal of iron and object tionable acids.

Biological processes, accomplished by oxidation of organic matter by its use as food for organisms, which effect its destruction, and by the death of the objectionable organisms as the result of unfavorable conditions artificially produced, such as the absence of food and presence of antagonistic organisms, the remains then being removed by the purification process.

Aeration by evaporation of gases held in solution, the cause of objectionable tastes and odors; evaporation of carbonic acid, a food supply for some kinds of growths, and the supplying of oxygen necessary for certain chemical purifications and especially necessary to support growths of water purifying organisms. Aeration is accomplished by exposing the water in thin sheets to the air, as in falling over dams or overflows, and by pumping it up into the air out of a pipe, as in the form of a low or bubbling geyser.

Richardson---Doane.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Layton Mosher east of Genoa on Wednesday, March 17, when the latter's sister, Miss Rose A. Doane, was united in marriage to Ray W. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Richardson.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock, Rev. L. W. Scott, pastor of Genoa Presbyterian church, officiat-20 ing. To the strains of the wedding years bringing this strain to their march, played by Miss Pauline Hurlbut, the bridal party took their places in the corner of the parlor which had been prettily decorated with evergreens and smilax. The bride wore a traveling suit of tan cloth, and carried pink roses. She 32tf John I. We suffer from disease through ignorance. We escape through knowledge,-B. W. Richardson.

A FEW COMPANY DISHES.

When one is entertaining it is nice to serve some dishes which are especially dainty to look at, as well as appetizing. We all like to be original and have something new, and the way to do this is to experiment with combinations and give the world a new dish.

Chestnut Puree for Peppers .- Boll the nuts, put through a ricer when tender. To a cupful and a half of the riced chestnuts add three tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of chopped pimentos (canned red peppers), a tablespoonful of grated onion, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a cupful of rich milk. Parboil the peppers and fill with this puree. Serve around brotled steak or as a vegetable with almost any meat combination. Have the stems and white portion as well as the seeds removed from the pappers before parboiling.

Cardinal Pears.-Cook canned pears in sugar and water with a half cupful more or less of currant jelly. When cold set on oblong pieces or rounds of sponge cake, cover with the thickened sirup and a spoonful of whipped cream. Sprinkle with chopped almonds or shredded in strips.

Apple. Date and Celery Salad .- To serve four salad plates, pare one large apple, core and cut in small cubes. Pour over the apple a tablespoonful of lemon juice and mix occasionally to well cover. Cut five tender stalks of white celery in bits. Pour boiling water over a half-pound of firm dates. Dry and then remove the stones. Cut each date in quarters lengthwise, mix prosecuting, suddenly said: with the apple and celery and add a half-cupful of boiled dressing, or better, and serve well-chilled. Scotch Short Broad .- Cream a cupful of butter, add a half-cupful of light hat found near the scene of the crime. brown sugar and four cupfuls of flour a little warmed. Form the mixture into a flat cake and prick well all over a shop in Bournemouth." with a fork. Sprinkle the top with caraway candies or bits of citron in flower design with the candies and time?"

a half-cupful of mayonnaise, mix again

It is not always success that breeds self-conceit-failure often seems to do the same. Men who have proved notably unable to manage a business of their own, bravely seek election to office and expect to be intrusted with the business of the public; those who have failed to learn, feel that in some mysterious way they are qualified to

THE TEA TABLE.

The custom of serving tea to one's friends in the late afternoon is such a pleasant and hospitable way of spending a few social moments with congenial spirits that it should be a custom ento deprive us of such simple pleasures.

One need not have an elaborate tea service to give this attention; many who wait for those things never enjoy doing nice things for friends. Anyone may have a pretty pot or pitcher and a few simple, pretty cups and saucers. It is not the display of silver and plate that expresses hospitality, but the spirit behind the service.

When one has a pretty tea ball the making of tea is a pretty sight to look at, and a pretty service adds to the pleasure of one's guests. Tea may be tied in small pieces of muslin enough for a pot of tea, these small bags kept in a tight can or jar for months and will always be ready for the quick cup of tea with no "grounds for complaint." For some it is a pretty little entertainment if one is at all imaginative to leave the grounds in the pot so that each may have a few in the cup and have the fortune told from the grounds.

The custom of having the tea table in the room alway set, ready for service, is not desirable, for one likes to feel that the service is fresh and free from all dust and germs. The tea cart is a great convenience, for all the service may be brought in at Small cakes, crackers and cookies are served with a cup of tea. The English custom of serving sandwiches and marmalade is observed by some.

A most attractive little cake to serve with tea is a small butter, thin, round cracker, with a marshmallow on top put into the oven and baked until the mallow is brown. A nut may be placed on top before baking to add to its appearance if so desired. Old fashioned cookies made of sour cream, those that grandinother used to make, with a raisin on top, are delicious with package of chewing gum. As the coua cup of good tea.

REFUSED TO SERVE PRINCE

Waiter in London Club Allowed Distinguished Guest to Remain Thirsty.

A story is told of an experience the late King Edward VII had at the Savage club in London, of which he was a member.

One evening the then prince of Wales took the Grand Duke Alexis to the club, after the theater. Shortly before this there had been some trouble between the Savage club and the licensing authorities. It seems that a representative of the latter called at the Savage club one evening and, in the rush of business, was served with a drink after hours, although he was not a member.

A summons was issued, and there appears to have been a good deal of trouble in the matter, and the waiters were warned to be very careful whom they served.

The prince of Wales and the Grand Duko Alexis went into the smoking room, which was empty, and the prince, after consultation with the grand duke, ordered two whiskies and

"I have to ask your name, sir," said the waiter in attendance. "I do not think I have ween you before." "My name is Albert Edward," said

The waiter immediately referred to the list of members.

"I see an Edwards here," he said, but the name is George, and not Albert. I do not see your name here,

So the prince was refused the drinks and went thirsty—until a fellow member entered and all was set right.

> Malta's "Hood of Shame." A peculiar headdress is worn by the women folk of Malta and is known as the "faldetta." It is said to have originated under the following curious conditions, says the Wide World: During the French occupation of Malta, over a century ago, the natives were subjected to much persecution. Their religion was attacked, churches were rifled and the women and children molested. This state of affairs so grieved those deeply religious people a "hood of shame" for a hundred and new wood for next year's crop. years. This period has now elapsed, which perhaps accounts for the gradual disappearance of the "faldetta" and the increasing numbers of women generally follow European fashions.

. . MAKING THE HOTBED.

Whether on the Ground or In a Pit

Vital Point Is Heating Material. Whether you make the hothed on the ground or in a pit the vital point is the beating material, says a contributor to the Country Gentleman. Sometimes frames built directly against the bouse or near the greenhouse or garage may be heated by hot water or steam pipes from the nearby boiler or even by warm air from the cellar. In the great majority of cases, however, manure must be relied upon. To produce satisfactory results this must be of the right kind and must be carefully han dled. Procure clean, fairly fresh horse manure, and unless it has already a good quantity of the bedding mixed through it get rotted leaves to the bulk of haif to two-thirds of the manure. Mix the two thoroughly to form n compost and tramp it down as firmly as possible in a compact heap, preferably under a shed or cover.

CONTROL OF SOIL BLOWING.

Warning Sent Out to Wheat Growing Farmers of Western Kansas. Prepared by Kansas State Agricultural - oollege.]

This is a warning that has been sent out to the wheat growing farmers of western Kansas. Soil blowing can be controlled, and its control means the saving of thousands of acres of wheat every season.

"The blowing of the soil can be controlled if attended to at the right time," says C. C. Cunningham, in charge of the co-operative experiments for the college. "Best results are obtained by preventive measures rather than by trying to stop the blowing after it once starts.

"Wheat is damaged by blowing only when the soil particles obtain sufficient speed or momentum to cut or injure the plants. This occurs only when the particles are blown a considerable distance over a smooth surface. Every farmer who has had experience with wheat blowing has observed that the first few rods of wheat on a protected edge of the field do not blow, even though considerable soil on that area blows over upon the damaged portion of the field. The survival of the wheat along the edge is due to the fact that soil particles are not blowing upon it from other areas with sufficient momentum to cut or injure the wheat. If by any means the soil particles can be prevented from drifting far enough to obtain the momentum necessary to damage the wheat there will be no loss through the blowing.

"The most practical method to prevent blowing, especially if it is about that certifies its genuineness. to start or even has already begun, is to list one or two furrows at intervals of two to three rods at right angles to the wind. In this way land can be got over very rapidly, and, as a rule, the drifting of the soil can be completely controlled. A number of fields of wheat were saved in this way in 1914, while the wheat on adjoining ones, which were in practically the same condition, was entirely destroyed. After the wheat makes sufficient growth to protect the soil the lister furrows may be leveled with a disk lister cultivator, so that they will not cause trouble at harvest time.

"Straw spread thinly over the ground will usually do a great deal to prevent blowing, especially if it is partly pressed into the soil by a subsurface packer or a dull disk set straight. The former implement is highly effective for this purpose and does little damage to the wheat, but may benefit the soil by making it firmer if it is in a loose condition. The disk is not very satisfactory, but can often be used to advantage in the absence of more desirable implements."

A Handy Bushel Measure.

A good stout bushel basket is of inestimable value around the farm, but the average basket which one purchases for 50 cents to $1 usually is not very serviceable, particularly where it is accorded much hard usage. A very durable substitute may be quite easily made from a barrel. A computation should be made to determine where to saw the barrel through the middle in order to have a receptucle which will hold one bushel.

The wooden hoop around the top of he barrel should be carefully removed and securely fastened around the top of the tub. This will hold the staves

The tub should be provided with rope handles. On opposite sides bore two holes five inches apart and three-quarters inch in diameter. A piece of onehalf or three-quarters inch rope about 10 inches long will make one handle. Tie a knot about four inches from either end of the rope and then pass the free ends through the two holes in the side of the tub and knot, then the loose ends. The knots on both sides of the tub will hold the rope handles in position. in case you desire to make the tub un usually strong, re-enforce it with smooth wire drawn tightly around the tub so that the strands will act as

Let Us Pray

By REV. J. H. RALSTON Mosdy Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT-I will therefore that men pray everywhere.

Very few respond to the desire of the writer of the text. The infidel ridicules prayer; the man absorbed in business affairs sneers at it, the formalist treats it mechanically; the ordinary church member neglects it; the average Christian only occarionally practices it. It is left to the one in a thousand to real ise it fully.

To define prayer is difficult. Revprence, submission to the will of God, sincerity, the spirit of forgiveness, definiteness of supplication, whole-heartedness and recognition of Jesus Christ must go into it. Prayer does not require definition, and the best prayers rarely ever fit any mold of defini-

Some seem to think that the chief blessing of prayer is subjective, that it does any one good to get into the attitude of prayer and to talk to God. Granting that there is much benefit in this, we would make the point that prayer is petition. It is the asking of events that are occurring. No other news-God for things desired. Men do not paper will inform you with the prempte get many blessings that they wish ness and cheapness of the Thrice a Week simply because they do not ask God edition of the New York World, Morefor them-"Ye have not because ye ask not."

Prayer does not depend on location, attitude, or other circumstances. If poign the cathedral is not at hand, the open THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S air will do, even a street corner; regular subscription price is only $1.00 per men pray lying down, standing up, year, and this pays for 156 papers. We kneeling or sitting; garb, social stand- offer this unequalied newspaper and THE ing, favor or opposition of men has GENOA PRIBUNE together for one year for nothing to do with essential prayer. It is the real purpose of the heart

What Will Prayer Do?

It will move the arm that moves the world. The philosophy of prayer is as reasonable as that of any problem of cause and effect. If man prays as he should, just what he prays for will be granted. He stretches his hand over the sea and prays and the waters part; another man calls for fire from heaven and it falls; another prays for the sick and immediately health returns; another prays for the redemption of the drunkard or the prostitute, and behold the former becomes an upright, honest, trustworthy citizen, and the latter becomes worthy to stand in any place in refined society or in the home circle. "More things are done by prayer than man dreams of."

There is only one prayer that the man who is not right with God is justified in offering, and that is. "God be merciful to me a sinner." That prayer is really the surrender of the heart and life to God. The man who prays must have acquaintanceship with God, must have the right to call God Father, and no one can do this who does not believe in Jesus Christ. Men living in sin are the children of the devil and have no right to pray, that is, to have communion with God, except as the publican had. The desire of the writer of the text was the desire that men might get right with God.

Comparatively anything within the will of God is a proper subject of prayer, and that will is readily found in the Bible. To Pray nilly-willy or without regard to the great moral and spiritual issues that may be at stake may possibly be very sinful,

How to Get to Praying.

After the Civil war closed the question arose as to how to resume specie payments, and a wise statesman answered by saying."The way to resume is to resume." So we say, the way to pray is to pray. If a man has reason to believe he is a child of God, he has a right to pray, and the obligation slighted brings guilt on him. God is the only one who can supply his need, and the thing to do is simply to ask God to supply it.

Men could have the dearest objects of life met if they would ask God for them, even the salvation of their dearest friends, even their own children.

When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be: When the devil was well, the devil a monk was he.

So truthfully wrote an old English satirist. That principle applies all through history. When men are prosperous everywhere they do not pray. When they fall into trouble they pray and do it with an earnestness that ignores propriety and circumstance. Was there ever a time in this generation when the world as a whole was in greater distress than now? Men's hearts are failing them for fear. As ever, God is a present help in time of trouble and the call of the day is to pray. Man has failed, civilization has failed, half-skeptical and halfhearted Christianity is threatened with failure. God is the only refuge and in God alone is the strength of man. And shall he not ask for it?

The orbit of Venus now has the least eccentricity and is therefore nearer a true circle than any other orbit. Gun Power at Waterloo.

As to gun power at the time of Waterloo, two facts of guidance: The British drill sergeants of the day taught recruits to hold their fire "until they could see the whites of the eyes of the enemy." That would make the best musketry range. I should say, about twenty-five yards. "Brown Bess" was not of much use beyond sixty yards, judging by all the evidence. As to big pieces, then, as now, naval guns were superior to field artillery, and Nelson loved to get in his broadsides at sixty yards! I believe that 600 yards was counted the limit of effective naval gun fire then. Field artillery range would be less, probably much less. The enormous increase in the effective range of guns since is due, first, to explosives with greater power and more controllable power alloys of metals.-Frank Fox in Lon-

These figures show just the same thing, high points of efficiency in fall and late spring, and a low point in late winter.

When we study the death rates at different times of year we find just the same seasonal change. Year after year the death rate for March is greater than any other month in the year. At this season tuberculosis and pneumonia claim the greatest number of their victims and so do the diseases of the nervous system and the circulatory system. Particularly March is the most dangerous month for old people. All of us are in poor condition after the long winter, the severe cold of outdoors and the overheating indoors, and perhaps after the special strain of a season of specially hard work.

This is the time of year to avoid excesses of any kind with special care. Overwork and particularly worry sap the vitality and prepare the way for disease, and an active but not hurried mind and body will accomplish most in the end.

Alcohol is perhaps the most important of all factors in bringing on pneumonia and hardening of the arteries, and the other diseases of later life. From many quarters in Europe one hears of the enormous increase in the cost of living, of disturbed economic conditions and of the cessation of commerce and industry. But while Budapest is naturally affected by war conditions, she has no great reason to complain. Very few shops have closed their doors. In front of the bakeries and butcher shops there are no large rowds clamoring for provisions. There

s no apparent widespread stagnation. Despite the many great difficulties that must be overcome, the victualing of the city goes on fairly smoothly. To be sure, Budapest feels the adversities of war in many ways. The cost of living has gone up, for instance, but the increasing prices do not exceed those

The city of Racine, Wis., has adopted a novel plan of handling prisoners committed to the county jail. When a man is sentenced to less than sixty days he is not forced to spend his day a jail, but may go about his daily duties, reporting to the jail and sleeping there every night. His meals, too, he must take in the jall refectory. All money earned during this term is turned over by the so called prisoner to his family. Further than that, the sheriff of Racine has upon occasion found a job for a man who had no work when arrested. Assistant Secretary Walter Ritter of the local Commercial club has had a series of pictures taken of the men working under this new system of penal restraint.

$17, $20, $25, $30, $35. The Royal Tailored Look symbolizes American Common Sense. It is the Look of Peace and Prosperity—the favorite Uniform of Civilization.

Next week-March 6th to 13th - is Royal Reception Week in 10,000 Royal dealer's stores—the semi-annual Mobilization Call to America's standing success-army to inspect the new season's fashionsand fabrics.

Every man is urged to attend Reception Week-but no man is urged to buy. For this is Demonstration Week-a get-acquainted week. Half a thousand of the newest woolen weaves are waiting your unhampered inspection. Your local Royal dealer is a commissary to successful men. But the only "arms" he carries during Royal Reception Week are "welcome arms" with a glad hand at the end of each.

Come in and get that Royal Tailored Look!
