THE BOY FARMER Or a Member of the Corn Club

"Well, Mr. Burbank," said Florence, with a happy laugh, "that's a pretty good job on the orchard."

Soon after moving to the farm Sam had his tirst chance to get what he so much wanted-some registered Berkshires. A neighbor who was moving out of the county came by where he was working.

"When are you going to leave?" Sam asked

"Well, I'm about ready now," replied the neighbor. "There's one thing 1 for this year. But Miles Fagan was beginning to learn that he didn't know very much about growing corn. The patch across the fence from his was teaching him bis." Mr. Fagan replied, "if it warn't something.

Sam planted his contest acre with the seed furnished by the agent about the middle of March. The rows were four feet apart and the stalks in the rows eighteen inches. He cultivated it the first time when the corn was just beginning to come up by going over it with a harrow. This did not hurt the plants, except one here and there, and it killed all the fittle weeds the beam." and grass that were just starting. How that corn did grow! It sprang up almost like mushrooms. - It seemed to agent.

"I think I know," said Mr. Burns. "How deep did you break your land?" "'Bout four inches."

"How deep did you break yours, Sam?"

"About a foot, wasn't it, Bill?" Sam asked in turn.

"Well, it wouldn't miss it much," affirmed Bill. "That old plow was up to cation of lime cures this. Crops and plants of all kinds are fed by several elements of the soil, but there are three more important than the rest-nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid.

Nitrogen forms the leaves of plantsthat part of the plant body which breathes.

Potash makes the trunk, stalk and tuber of plant or tree.

Phosphoric acid reproduces-sets the blooms and makes abundant seed and fruit. Sam learned these things from rend ing. But, when he knew them, all he had to do was to look about the farm and learn more things by observation Where trees grew or had grown well he knew that potash was plentiful. It leaves were rank, nitrogen was abun dant. If flowers formed and fell off the plants before they should he knew the soil needed phosphoric acid.

Finally the young farmer formed what he had learned into nine rules and wrote them down in the back of one of his books, as follows:

"1. Nitrogen (or ammonia) encour ages strong leaf, vine and bush growth "2. Potash makes firm tuber, bulb and fiber.

"3. Phosphoric acid makes blooms set and seeds and seed pods form abun dantly.

ain't arranged yet, though, and it's kinder bothering me. I've got a fine registered sow, and she's going to find a litter of pigs some of these days before long. I'd sell her, but I can't get nothing like what she's worth, and 1 can't find a place to leave her."

"I'd like to get some Berkshire pigs," Sam remarked. "What do you ask for the sow?"

"Well, right this minute I'd take $20 for her. The pigs are sure to be worth twice that much."

"That's cheap enough." said Sam, "but I haven't the money. How would it suit you to let me keep her? That litthe pasture down there is bog proof. The creek runs through it, and there's plenty of shade and water and no stock that would bother her."

"That's a good place. I hadn't thought of it. Maybe we can make a deal. I'll tell you what I'll do, Sam. You keep the sow and look after her. and when the pigs are old enough you ship four of them to me and you may have the sow and the rest of the pigs." "I'll do it," said Sam, and the bargain was closed.

About a month later the old sow was going about the pasture with ten pretty black and white faced pigs following. Under Sam's care they grew like weeds in wet weather. When they were old enough to wean, which was tweive weeks, as the young farmer learned from his reading, he shipped the four page to their owner. Of the six pigs oft he picked out three of the finest. two gilts and a male, to keep. The other three he advertised for sale in the county paper, and, the pags being of good stock, he had no trouble in seiling them for $10 each. One buyer, coming after they had been sold, tried to get Sam to put a price on the three he had saved. But the boy refused to sell. Indeed, he was so proud of his pigs that an offer of many times their worth would not have induced him to part with them. And in this he showed that be was wise.

But, proud as Sam Powell was of his thoroughbreds, there was something else to which he was giving a lot of thought and work. That something was the acre of corn that was to compete for prizes offered to the Boys' Corn club.

Miles Fagan had promised his son. Bob, that he might join the corn club and enter an acre in the contest if he would clear the land of stumps. Bob did join, but the corn was not planted this year. For after working with grubbing hoe and az from sunup till sundown for many days, clearing the acre of the big, deep rooted stumps, Mr. Fagan told him anconcernedly that he'd just have to have that patch of ground, if Bob still wanted to plant some corn he'd have to clear another SCTM.

It was a cruel, mean trick to play on a boy and enough to discourage anyetter than the rest, but I tell you they in't none o' his crops to be sneezed

"I don't exactly understand it," liles Fagan replied "but les between on and me. Bill, I guess they must be omethin in the gover ment's way o' toin' things. You know that kid ion't know nothin' about farmin' erept what the agents told im But ook at that acre of corn and then look at mine across the fence And it ain't. In the land. I know that. This land o' mine, if anything, is better than his. It course it's bound to be in the ferilizer he's usin and the way he's culivatin' the ground

The comparison suggested by Mr. agan was enough to make any one top and think. Sam's corn was nearly vaist high and had big stalks, while har of his neighbor in the field across the fence was no more then two feet ugh and the stalks were spindling. But Fagan understood the cause of the difference in the two crops a good heat better after Mr. Burns happened long one day a little later and stopped , talk to him and Sam, who were orking in their respective fields. "Hello, Mr. Fagan" the government gent called out as he rode up. "How it your corn is behind Sam's here?" Fagan grinned. "It's because he lanted earlier." he said. 'How much earlier?"

"Two or three days," replied the riner.

Mr. Burns laughed. "That won't do, ir. Fagan," he said. "Two or three ays' difference in planting would nake hardly any difference in corn.". At this point Bill Googe, who had een plowing near by, came up and

CHAPTER V.

HE suring and summer-in fact. the whole year was a very busy one for Sam. And it was not less so for Florence and Mrs. Powell. Florence often helped her brother when the work crowded, and Mrs. Powell put in all her spare time in the garden, melon patch and orchard.

On the contest acre Sam was forced to do all the work himself. The rules were strict on this point, and after Sam's patch had been laid off and measured by a committee he himself planted the corn and no one else struck a lick in its cultivation

Sam's first planting was the Irish potatoes. He bedded up an acre dragged down the beds almost flat and planted them early in March. Next came the contest acre, and when that was finished he planted four more acres in corn, making five in all, then turned to the cotton

Next came the cane, and Sam sowed this broadcast and very thick, for be wanted to make hay of it. If the stalks grow large and stiff it doesn't make good hay.

The young farmer wound up the first round of planting by sowing the orchard in rye. His idea was to let no bit of ground lie idle, but to keep something growing on it instead of weeds. The weed problem was a pretty hard one for Sam, so many had gone to seed on the place. But he determined that not one should make seed this year So he was the busiest farmer in the whole community. He plowed and hoed constantiy, but it was mostly plowing, for Sam soon learned that poeing is a mighty slow way to kill weeds and grass compared with plow-

People passing along by the Powell place marveled at the clean, well cul tivated little farm But Sam considered other needs of the cross besides cultivation.

The soil of the place was not nearly so poor as the neighbors had said it was-not even so poor as Sam bad thought. The trouble was that the surface of the ground had merely been scratched, and he had remedied this by thorough cultivation Still the crops lacked something, and be found that each acre had certain qualities. As he studied the farm he began to see that each bit of land was strong in certain ways and weak in others.

There was no time to have soil analysis made this year, but he began to study closely the wild vegetation and trees growing about and to read the bulletins and the book he had bought on "How Crops Grow." It wasn't an easy subject by any means. Sam read and reread the book and finally went over it slowly and studied it page by page. Pretty soon he knew nearly as much about the soil he was cultivating as any expert could have told him. Here is what he learned about soil fer. tility:

Acid in soil that causes crops to fire and die is indicated by sorrei growing and imagines that it will have the on the land. Acid can easily be detect. ed also by getting a slip of blue litmus

MEASURING THE STARS.

What Is Meant by First and Second Magnitude, and So On.

The classification of the stars into orders of magnitude, depending on their apparent brightness, was undertaken a little hastily, with the result that many stars have been found which are brighter than stars of the first magnitude. Aldebaran is a typical star of the first magnitude, but Sirius is much brighter. Consequently the system of classification has to be extended.

A star of the first magnitude is 2.5 times as bright as a star of the second magnitude: a star of the second magnitude is 2.5 times as bright as a star of the third magnitude, and so on. Stars which are 2.5 times as bright as a star of the first magnitude are called stars of 0 magnitude, while stars 2.5 times brighter still are said to be of the -1 magnitude, and so on.

Professor Ceraski has made measurements to determine the magnitude of the sun, reckoned in this way. By adopting different methods of measurements he reaches very accordant results, and it appears that our sun is a star of the -36.5 order of magnitude, which means that it sends us as much light as 880.000.000 of stars of the first magnitude.

At the distance of a little over four light years-i. e., about 20,000 times its present distance-'it would be a star of the first magnitude, so that, considered as a star, it is nothing out of the ordinary.-Piitsburgh Gazette-Times.

SAVING A CITY.

BAGGING A HIPPO. How It is Done and How the Flesh of the Animal Tastes. There are two ways of bagging a hippopotamus, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, and neither is justified unless the sportsman is sorely in want of food, for its ment is very poor indeed and wants a good deal of preparation to be palatable to any one except the starving. It has a taste 1 can only describe as fishy, something what beef would taste like after being wrapped up for a couple of days with a Scotch haddock of doubtful freshness,

The hippo may be shot in water. When mortally wounded he will sink Friday Morning, March 26, 1915 and will not reappear on the surface for several hours, consequently a tiring lookout has to be kept for the carcass. If he is only slightly wounded he may charge, but more often he will flee and die in the reeds to serve as food for scavenger birds or crocodiles.

The other and more sporting way is to shoot him on land. This is, as a rule, only possible at night or late in the evening and early in the morning. It would not be wise to find oneself between the river and the wounded hippo, for he at once makes for the water by the shortest route, and he goes so fast that getting out of his way requires pretty speedy feet and great coolness of nerve.

FORCES OF NATURE.

Soft Their Touch, but Constant and Effective Their Work.

What adds to the wonder of the earth's grist is that the millstones that did the work and are still doing it are the gentle forces that career above our heads-the sunbeam, the cloud, the air, the frost. The rain's gentle fall, the air's velvet touch, the sun's noiseless rays, the frost's exquisite crystals, these combined are the agents that crush the rocks, pulverize the mountains and transform continents of sterile granite into a world of fertile soil.

It is as if baby fingers did the work of powder and dynamite. Give the clouds and the sunbeams time enough and the Alps and the Andes disappear before them or are transformed into plains where corn may grow and cattle graze.

The snow falls as lightly as down and lies almost as lightly, yet the crags tumble beneath it; compacted by Ducazel's Method Was Unique, but It Pacified Madrid.

It was in the year 1868, after a battle in the Spanish revolution of that year, and the streets of Madrid were filled with angry crowds that were bent on destroying everything and every one. Suddenly an unknown man appeared at the city hall.

"Give me a band of musicians," he said, "and before nightfall I shall control all Madrid."

He must have been a man of rare personality to have been able to persuade the authorities in that dark hour to give him anything.

But he got the musicians and went out with them to wander through the city. While they played he sang-popular street songs or some old national air. When these bored the listeners he mounted old boxes and told furny tales and got the populace amused and laughing.

By nightfall peace reigned in the city, and the mob broke up and went home to bed. The man's name was Felipe Ducazel, and he was only twenty-two years old when he cleverly achieved this result.

We are told a deal about heroic things in saving countries by long, terrible rides at night or by the sacrifice of oneself by dying in somebody's stead, but few of us hear of any one who saved a town by laughter .-Youth's Companion.

Children In Korea.

With their short waists and full skirts a bunch of Korean girls look like old women. Very quaint are they and very wide awake as you see them squatted on the floor at a Sunday school or church gathering. When they come in with their Bibles and hymnbooks they bow on hands and knees until their foreheads touch the floor, then adjust themselves to their inexpensive, backless floor seat, waiting in quictness and perfect patience until things start.' Children are always placed at the front in these gatherings the girls on one side of the partition which separates the sexes and the boys on the other side. O TO CHURCH!

With the advent of cool weather many churches are planning a revival of the GO TO CHURCH movement which got such an auspicious start in the spring. During the heat of summer there was a lack of enthusiasm in some cities. 'Now ministers of the gospel all over the country are seeking to reawaken the public to a sense of their spiritual obligations.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT THIS COUNTRY IS ABOUT TO WITNESS THE GREATEST RELIGIOUS REVIVAL IT HAS EVER KNOWN. CLERGYMEN REPORT THAT LAST SPRING THERE WAS A MAGNIFICENT ATTENDANCE AT ALL CHURCHES. WHILE THERE WAS A FALLING OFF DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS, IT WAS NOT NEARLY AS PERCEPTIBLE AS IN FORMER YEARS. MANY CLERGYMEN TOOK ADVANTAGE OF THE VACA-TION PERIOD TO IMPROVE AND REPAIR THE HOUSES OF WOR-SHIP,

Now that the clergymen have the people GOING TO CHURCH they should strive to keep them going. Clergymen. should not only make God's house attractive, but they should make the services attractive. They should make their sermons interesting without being sensational. GET AFTER THE BACKSLIDER IN THE CONGREGATION. COAX HIM. HE'LL GO.

THERE IS NO DENVING THE FACT THAT A MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH REGULARLY IS BENEFITED PHYSICALLY, MORALLY AND FINANCIALLY, HE BECOMES CLEAN IN BODY AND IN MIND. From its very institution the American Civic association has devoted itself to the protection of the public against three great nuisances-smoke, poles and wires and billboards. At the recent annual convention of the association in Washington one of the important subjects discussed was billboards. with a principal address entitled "The Passing of the Signboard," by Jesse Lee Bennett of Baltimore, in which he recounted the steps that had been taken for the legal control of the billboard in all parts of the United States. Concerning the sentiment against the billboard Mr. Bennett said; "The feeling against the signboard has become nation wide, and in the past few years the agitation of civic organizations has been so successful as to awaken resentment against it so widespread that from coast to coast and in almost every state and city there are now, or have been, vigorous movements seeking the abolition or regulation of these unnecessary and disfiguring objects.

"There has been much agitation, and from it there has been distilled one thing-the recognition of the fact that what is called the signboard problem is a question more complex than the mere removal of the signs. The signboard has been found to be inextricably intertwined with two questions of even greater importance-the awakening of civic sentiment and the recognition by legislators and judges of the validity of arguments based upon aesthetic considerations."

Commenting on what ought to be the attitude of the law and the courts tovard the billboard, he added:

"It would take our psychologists but a few minutes to show that it is not a question of ear or nose or eve, but a question of the brain and of the very consciousness that is life itself. law should permit any man to intrud or force himself or his business in another man's consciousness to the extent that outdoor advertising has come to permit, an intrusion immeasurably increased by the fact that it is impossible to avoid seeing signboards."

WHAT "MOVIES" HAVE DONE.

Stimulated Growth of Suburbs and Dead Urban Sections.

Five years of the drama in films have given a most impressive example of the valuable support the development of the "movies" has given to real estate. Every afternoon and evening approximately 100,000,000 feet of moving picture films are unreeled for the eatertainment of many millions of people who fill seats in more than 25,000 the aters in the United States alone. In all probability the capital invested in such enterprises would aggregate cloto $500,000,000.

For New York and other large cities. where the moving picture industry 18 deeply rooted, these enterprises have done the service of converting many vacant lots, former dumping grounds, into income payers and in not a few instances helped to restore the life of many moribund theaters, now combined vaudeville and picture play houses, that make easy for their owners the payment of taxes and interest on the realty they occupy.

One of the features of the moving picture theaters, owing to their inexpensive admissions, is that they will thrive in districts which could not support a legitimate theater. Therefore because of this many properties in the suburbs and in the outskirts of cities have been utilized which but for the picture theaters would doubtless be untenanted.

GARBAGE AND REFUSE.

Five Rules For Collection and Disposal Advocated.

Mrs. C. H. Wilmerding of Flushing. N. Y., has given a great deal of attention to the question of garbage disposal. In a recent address which she delivered before the American Civic association she laid down the following five rules as necessary for all monielpalities:

"First .- The city must collect the garbage every day.

"Second.-Garbage, refuse and ash cans must not be allowed to stand in the streets and alleys at all.

"Third.-Tin caus, sticks, paper. broken china or any refuse other than garbage must be kept separate and in suitable receptacle. "Fourth .- Ashes must be kept separate

"Fifth.-Garbage must be sorted and pressed and not allowed to spoll.

"Failure to observe these rules must be reported and fines imposed."

Making the Little Farm Pay By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Intelligent farmers are seeking the widest possible diversineation of prodnets, many of them changing from methods which they have followed from childhood.

The modern system of agriculture requires commercial ideas in marketing and a fair each return for capital. labor and management involved. Mixed farming in a broad way will give this business aspect to the vocation, and therefore studious men and women in the country are making experiments with poultry, fruits of many kinds, vegetables in great variety, different kinds of live stock and new methods of cultivation.

Raspberries and other bush fruits belong in a scheme of this nature and will prove a profitable feature, there being a steady demand for such products at remunerative prices. The investment is small, and the returns come quite regularly after the first year. The work of planting and caring for berry bushes is simple, and failure is almost out of the question. Perries can be grown in an orchard and will return a large amount of money in the years when peach and

PASTURE LANDS.

The more fertile the land the better the pasture, but for economic reasons the rough fields and gulfied hillsides should be the first to be used for grass. The increasing prices of meats and of farm labor will often make the fertile fields more profitable in pasture than in tilled crops. The convenience of water for the stock should not be overtooked in choosing a field for a nasture.

Sowing by Hand and With the Aid of a Disc Drill or Harrow.

Some men can sow seed evenly by hand, while others make a bad failure of the job. The trouble with sowing seed broadcast by hand is that in most cases the seed is distributed very unevenly, in thick patches here and thin hand, too, may sow more seed than is necessary to the acre, or he may not use enough seed. A few experienced men can sow fine seed broadcast almost as evenly as can be done with a mechanical contrivance.

Where seed is to be sown by hand broadcast the surest way to have the ground covered evenly for a perfect stand is to sow lightly both ways of the field. However, mechanical seeders which distribute seed evenly and in set amounts to the acre are cheap and by all means should be used when it is possible to secure them. Of mechanical seeders for small seed there are many different kinds, ranging from the wheelbarrow seeder to the small seed attachments to grain drills. The wheelbarrow seeder is one of the best of these kinds for one man use only. Common sense and good farming practice should teach us that all seed should be planted if it is expected to germinate and produce a crop of good plants. Every year literally thousands of bushels of high priced seed are wasted simply by "throwing" the seed upon the bare surface of the soll to take its chances with rains and elements. The reason so much of the valuable seed is wasted is that it never becomes covered with soil; hence much wise to crowd the orchard, and care of it never germinates and grows. Much is washed away by rains and

FINANCING CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS

Methods of Assessments and of Excess Gendemnation.

THE PROBLEM OF CAPITAL

First Cost of Replanning a City Main Obstacle to Be Overcome-Most Direct Method of Assessing Property Owners Has Distinct Advantages.

The first cost of the replanning of a rity is the principal obstacle which has to be overcome, says Frank Koester, author of "lity Planning and Maintenance." Although there can be no quespatches there. The inexperienced tion of its ultimate worth and almost incalculable value to the city, yet the problem of securing the necessary capital and the proper distribution of the learned profession and that it partially burdens and the benefits to be derived requires careful financing.

is the Short Ballot Democratic?

"Yes," the Short Ballot Organization says, "it is democratic. It is the only thing that 1S democratic?" They have a slogan which runs, "The Long Ballot is the politicians' ballot, the Short liallot is the people's ballot."

To have a long array of elective of fices seems at first sight very demotratic. To propose to cut down the list by making some of these appointive seems like taking power away from the people. But let us consider an extreme case. In Chicago a recent ballot submitted fifty-seven offices to the people. We New Yorkers who are accustomed to ballots of fifteen to twenty offices can easily conceive that fifty-seven is too many to be practical; that no ordinary workaday citizen can reasonably be expected to know who all the candidates are and make fiftyseven separate choices for himself; that so big a ballot makes politics a disfranchises all busy citizens and leaves professional politicians the un-While cities like Paris, London and disputed control. We can see too that have at the top of it the words "For The principal methods adopted are experts only, not for the people."

How Many Officers Will the People Elect?

Granted, then, that a ballot of fiftyseven offices is too long, and inevitably produces government by politicians instead of popular government, how short must the ballot be? Is twenty offices too many? Is ten short enough? Our last Constitutional Convention laid tion. out about fifteen state, county and judicial offices for the citizens to fill in a typical gubernatorial year. Was that too many? That Convention presumably thought that the people ought to look up fifteen sets of condidates and pass careful judgment on each of them individually. But that Convention's opinion is of no importance. What the citizens of the state have actually done with that ballot is more important from a happy family. This six-headed

One State Administration Instead of Six.

The most familiar Short Ballot proposition which will come up before the Constitutional Convention in April is the one which preposes to cut out the tail of the state ticket. That is, to give the Governor the power to appoint the Secretary of State, State Comptroller, State Treasurer, Attorney General and State Engineer and Surveyor. This will leave on the state ticket simply the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, corresponding to the national government where we elect only a President and Vice President. This proposal has been before the State for a number of years. Governor Hughes repeatedly demanded it in his message, and Governor Whitman also advocated it in his inaugural address. Senator Wadsworth fought for it when he was speaker of the Assembly. At the last session of the legislature it passed the Assembly but was buried in committee in the Senate. Practically all the fifteen Republican delegates at large to the Constitutional Convention are thoroughly committed to the principle as are also a great number of the district members. Its passage by the Constitutional Convention , seems reasonably well assured. In fact the need of this Short Ballot measure was one of the first things that was urged as necessitating the calling of the Convention to begin with. Something of the sort certainly must be done, not only for the sake of wiping out a nest of obscure politics but to improve the state administra-

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The year 1914 has been the most extraordinary in the history of modern times. It has witnessed the outbreak of the great European war, a struggle so titanic that it makes all others look small.

You live in momentous times, and you should not miss any of the tremendous events that are occurring. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice a Week edition of the New York World, Moreover, a year's subscription to it will take you far into our next Presidential cani-of the soil too heavily. When the main orchard comes to the bearing period the wisest course is to remove all small fruits, though vegetables may be grown in a limited way.

There are many corners and out of the way spots on a farm which might be utilized as the location of berry and currant bushes. In this way a place would be beautified and hundreds of effort. It is also true that smail fruits give a profitable return when raised on high priced land.

Among the black caps, which are coming more into popularity of late years, the Gregg is the best known late variety. It is a very good shipper and an excellent variety for evaporating when picked by hand. The Kansas is similar to Gregg, ripening a week earlier.

The Ohio is the great evaporating raspberry of the present day. The quality is poor, as it is very seedy, but it yields more pounds of evaporated fruit to the bushel than any other sort. Of the purple cane varieties the Shaffer is an excellent canning berry. The Philadelphia represents the red raspberry more closely than some of the other purple sorts. It is propagated by suckers and yields but sparingly. The Columbian is of the Shaffer type. but ripens a little later.

The Marlboro is a red of common grade and early. It is noted for firmness. The London has vigorous canes, quite hardy and productive. It is a good berty for local market or home use. The Turner is hardy and vigorous. The fruit is sweet and of excellent flavor, coming toward the end of the season.

Perhaps if one had to choose a single variety the Syracuse Red would be placed above all others. It is said to by the largest and most prolific of all. Une of its advantages is that it will grow fruit vigorously from July 1 to Aug. 15. The Herbert is the hardiest Canada and is recommended for northern localities. The Cardinal is another wonderful raspberry, being hardy and prolific.

The red raspberry differs greatly in character from the black cap. The latter is propagated from tips, the ends of the canes when buried taking root and forming the new plant. The red raspherry propagates from suckers that spring up from the roots of the parent plant. With some varieties, espselally the Cuthbert, these suckers are thrown up so freely as to interfere with the productiveness of the parent plants, making it necessary for the pluntation to be renewed after it has borne fruit for two or three years. Any variety may be kept in fruit for many years if the young suckers are clipped off with a hoe, the same as weeds.

A Min't to Dairymen.

melting snows. Some that does germinate on the surface of the soil never makes good plants because the young roots are too near the surface. They are killed with the first dry spell of summer.

Sowing clover and other kinds of seed in February and March on snow or honeycombed ground is well and good if after conditions are such that dollars would be realized with little the seed will sink into the soil deeply and become well covered where it fell without being moved. If the wet, alternate freezing and thawing soil will really plant it, then it will be all right. The surest way to plant small seed of all kinds at any season is to open the surface soil with a disk drill or disk harrow, sow the seed so it will fall into these small furrows made by the disks and then cover with a smoothing harrow. With some disk drills where the soil is medium dry and friable the seed will be sufficiently covcred with the drill drag chain attachments, thus saving subsequent mechanical covering. It is as foolish and wasteful to place wheat, oats, rye, barey, cotton or any seed on the surface soil and allow it to be covered by hance as it is to sow small seed in the old style way without being covered. Small seed must be planted the same as large seed, and when farmers come to realize this important fact less good seed will be wasted and much surer results will be secured.

Garden Hose Reel.

The making of useful garden woodwork is something which is within the ability of any one with ordinary ingenuity. In the accompanying cut is shown a cheap, strong and serviceable garden hose reel. It is perhaps not as desirable as a reel such as one would purchase, but it is useful and particularly desirable by those who cannot see their way clear to buy one. The stand is made of four inch by two inch scantling for the sides and top stretchof all berry plants. It originated in] ers and three inch by two inch for the legs and leg stretchers. Two of each are wanted except in the case of the legs, where four are wanted. The construction of the stand is simple. The sides have to be mortised to take the stretchers and also the legs. The stretchers have to be tenoned to fit into the sides, and the same applies to the leg stretchers and the legs. The only part of the construction which is not altogether simple is that of the legs, which, of course, the on a slope and must be towned scoredingly. the property from the improvement. and the more recent plan of excess condemnation

In European cities where excess conlemnation is practiced the city pur- intended if the people would only conchases by condemnation proceedings not only the land needed for the proposed improvements, whether it be for street, a park or other purpose, but infional Convention should cut its coat before the people of the state. in addition as much more land as is likely to be increased in value by the improvements. After the improvements have been made the land is held and sold from time to time to the best advantage or it is developed and held by the city for a long period until a favorable opportunity arises for its sale. Excess condemnation is highly desirable for sites of schools, parks and the like which are in contemplation. as the city may hold the land over a long term of years in advance of its utilization and be saved the high cost of sites whose purchase is delayed until the city is built up. Excess condemnation, however, as a means of paying for the cost of improvements is open to serious objections. The enhancement in real estate values after the improvements are made is seldom more than half the cost of the improvement, besides which there is the interest on the bonds and the loss of taxes that would have been paid by private owners on the land so condemned. The most direct method of assessing the property owners offers advantages over the excess condemnation system particularly when all the property benefited is assessed, even though it is at a considerable distance from the location of the improvement itself. As the purpose of excess condemnation is simply to enable the city to reimburse Itself for the cost of the improvement by the benefits derived therefrom. assessment proves to be a method for large improvements, just as equitable and effective since those benefited pay the sum directly to the city, instead of having to sell their property to the city and then perhaps buy it back again.

Direct assessment, however, is open to many serious objections, for the amounts must be arbitrarily fixed and may and may not prove fair. Further. the property owners must obtain the capital immediately and the amount is thus withdrawn at once instead of being distributed over a term of years as in the sale of bonds, Experience is necessary in assessing property, since the property owners are entitled to have the burden equitably adjusted and to know in advance what they will have to pay. The assessments should not decrease in direct proportion to the distance from the improvement, but in a more sharply decreasing ratio, the most equitable rate for which should be obtained and applied by those who are called upon to make assessments.

would do. If we find that as an actual fact the people of the state have not offices have been political booty and $1.65. been doing the work which the Constitutional Convention laid out for them to do, then it is demonstrated that the Constitutional Convention laid out too much work, and the proper tics good officers have been repeatedly procedure is not to condemn the people for failing to live up to those manmade requirements, but to cut down the amount of work until we reach the maximum which the people will graciously condescend to perform.

It is begging the question to say that the Constitution would work as descend to do thus and so. The fact would still remain that the people refuse to do it, and the coming Constiaccording to the cloth. Not until the people's work in government is laid out with due deference to what the people will consent to do, will the govas so many people do, that "the people are indifferent." that "we need a civic awakening," an "arousing of the public conscience, etc. Our people, the places on Election Day to kindly name for, you will hardly find one in a ing of stating a good reason for preferring one candidate to the other in each of the fifteen cases.

information by trying to name the fifteen or twenty men he voted for at the last election. That will disclose very promptly whether the citizen was master of his ballot or not. Of course, he knows the name of the governor, the Senator, the Congressman, the mayor of his city, etc., but when it comes to lieutenant-governor, the secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney-general, comptroller, state engineer and surveyor, many of the judges, and county officers, the voter will realize that he took it blind; that he swallowed the slate; that he did what somebody lurking behind the word "Republican" 'or the word "Democratic," told him to do

The very politicians who utter pious prayers to the long ballot and squeal about taking these minor offices away from the people, are the very ones who know down in their hearts that those offices are appointive now, and appointive in the very worst possible way by unseen powers somewhere within the party machine. To transfer that appointive power from private political sources to properly accredited and legally responsible public officers is a movement toward democracy, not is a proven failure. The minor state have been divided up on a geographical, or a racial basis to get a "well balanced ticket." In the round of polidisplaced for no reason that had any connection with their conduct. Even the delegates to the old state convention never took much interest in them and many of the convention practically broke up and went home as soon as the Governorship was settled, leaving a disorderly and diminishing remnant to make the minor nominations. Even serious scandals have been insufficient to bring these officers into prominence

Such obscurity is dangerous. It is a perpetual invitation to corruption, and the invitation has been accepted more than once. None of these minor ernment be brought within proper con- offices are truly political. They are trol. It is useless impudence to say, technical, routine offices, and their incumbents ought to be selected for fitness and kept during good behavior. The national government has one executive establishment; why should the state of New York require six separate and independent ones? It will be an aid to popular control too, to give the Governor power to choose his own instruments for then the people can hold the zens on the sidewalk in front of its Governor responsible for carrying out building and asked them the name of his constitutional and statutory duties. the lleutenant-governor and not one | The appointive system will not necessarily get these offices out of politics. Any citizen can easily test his own but that is not any argument for retaining a system which necessarily keeps them IN politics.

Would Governor Be Too Powerful?

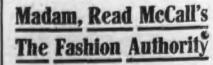

Would this method give too much power to the Governor? Superficially it looks as though the Governor's power was being multiplied by six. But this is not true. The Governor already has a large appointive power amounting to 924 exempt and unclassified positions not subject to civil service restrictions. This amendment would add 164 offices. This is a total increase of 18 per cent measured in numbers. The real increase is more nearly 5 per cent by reason of the fact that these offices are nowhere near as important as many which are now on the Governor's appointive list, such as the Public Service Commission, and the Highway Commissioner. When the legislature passed the Public Service Commissions bill it gave to the Governor a greater gift of new power than this amendment would.

Nor will the Short Ballot amendmeht cause any vast administrative change in the Government. The big change will come in state politics which from the politician's viewpoint will be a dreary desert waste in place

TEXT-My little children, of whom travail in birth again until Christ I formed in you.-Galatians 4:19.

Are No Longer a Dreaded Ordeal Since Western Methods Have Been Adopted.

No longer need the poor little Chinese girl look forward with dread to her wedding day, says a writer in the Strand. Today she can marry the man she loves and not walk blindfolded into matrimony with the man who has been chosen as her husband from earliest childhood. Until the revolution in China in 1911 it was the general custom in the East for the parents to allot their daughters husbands from babyhood, and with the consent of both families a huge party would be given and the children be considered engaged. But it was not permissible for either the future bride or groom to know of the arrangements made on their behalf. The families might even drift apart, leaving the young ones in total ignorance of the existence of each other. Between the ages of fifteen and eighteen the Chinese girl was told that she was to be married soon, and arrangements would be made for the wedding, but the young bride never became acquainted with her future husband till after the ceremony, when her thick, beautifully embroidered, but impenetrable veil was removed. Then would she behold for the first time the husband to whom she was tied "for better or for worse," knowing that she must resign herself to her lot and endeavor to live her life through with a man whom perhaps she could never like. Many a young Chinese bride has been known to attempt suicide, often attaining her freedom through that one open gate-death. But such a thing has not been heard of since China adopted the forms of modern civilization. The Chinese gentleman has learned the art of courting and winning his bride, and the happy couple enter into their matrimonial compact with open eyes. The Chinese are gradually adopting our methods, and the marriage service is no longer a dreary and almost weird ordeal. In fact, in the matter of dress, as well as in customs, the Chinese are becoming very Europeanized.

Once a year, says a writer in the Wide World, the road skirting Sliema harbor is reserved as a race course and the people turn out in thousands to back their favorites. There is no regulation of the course; the crowd simply clears out of the way as the horses come along. The jockeys ride without bridles or saddles and each carries a whip in either handone for his own mount, the other to keep back any horse which may try to overtake him. We saw one of the spectators deliberately trip a horse by putting his leg out, at grave risk to himself. These things, however, incredible as they may seem to sportsmen in this country, are taken as quite a matter of course, and consequently hardly a year goes by without a fatality of some kind. All things considered, it is not likely that the 'go-as-you-please" rules of this Maltese derby are likely to commend themselves to our turf authorities.

DISEASE AND FOVERTY.

Doctor Salesby of London in an article contributed to the Pall Mall Gazette (one of a series entitled "The House of Life") says:

"If we are to successfully attack that most unpopular fungus, the tuberculosis bacillus, we shall have to impugn the popularity of its trusty cousin, the yeast mold. Alcohol makes the bed for tuberculosis, and it is just this making of the bed we should seek to stop."

The following paragraph on the economic side of the liquor question from the same article applies equally well to America. In reading it, substitute 'America" for . "England" and "Britain."

"Over vast areas of our land, where now we might be growing wheat, later to turn into brains and eyes and hands for England, we are growing nothing but whisky. Now, spirits are admirable for the preservation of portions of corpses, but for the preservation of limbs and members of living England, wheat is to be preferred. When our children learn in what the wealth of the nation consists, they will grow no whisky within these shores, but in its place bread, for bone and brains and beauty and bravery and Britain."

SCIENCE SPEAKS.

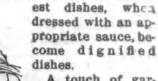

Science says that we are surrounded with myriads and myriads of invisible foes ever on the alert to discover the point of successful attack, and we are furnished with a garrison of unseen friends who ordinarily discharge the function of police and of they are well mixed and blended, and the department of health, but who in the event of an invasion mobilize with extraordinary celerity and precision. A struggle ensues and the victory goes to the stronger. Within the ken of science there is nothing which destroys the physical defenses as alcohol destroys them, just as there is nothing which brings to the ground the defenses of the spirit as drinking does, and as there is nothing to equal alcohol as a producer of crime .-- Rev. SAVORY SAUCES AND GRAVIES.

The making of a savory, well-seasoned sauce, is an art. The common-

A touch of garlic, a dash of tabasco or Worcestershire, a teaspoonful of mushroom sauce and a jar of spices and herbs will give variety to a score of sauces. One of the methods so commonly used that gives a flat, stale and colorless sauce or gravy is the one of stirring milk with flour and turning that into the roasting pan with the gravy. A rich brown sauce may be made by using the very same materials, but combining them differently. Put the flour, a tablespoonful or two, in the hot fat in the pan, stir until well browned, then add the liquid, whether milk or stock or water.

By adding caramel or kitchen bouquet to a gravy the color is made richer or by browning the butter and flour and keeping it on hand to use for thickening sauces and gravies, the same results obtain.

Flavoring Spices .- Take a fourth of a pound of black pepper, two ounces of ginger, one ounce of grated nutmeg, the same of allspice, cinnamon and cloves, all ground, and a half pound of salt. Put these ingredients through a fine sieve several times, to be sure keep closely covered to keep the salt dry. It is a good plan to thoroughly dry the salt before it is mixed with the other ingredients. Add in small quantities as needed to season sauces.

For the plain white sauce, which is so much used for fish, meat and vezetable sauces, prepare by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter, adding two tablespoonfuls of flour when the butter is bubbling hot, then when well mixed add a cup of rich milk. The sauce is varied by the amount of flour and butadded.

regenerated man. Why is Christ called in Scripture the second Adam, if not that he was, so to speak, a new starting point for man, "the pure spring of a redeemed race"? This does not mean merely that he was the purest, noblest and best man who ever lived, but that in his humanity he was much more than any other man from Adam down. In a certain sense humanity was reborn in the manger at Bethlehem. Redemption begins by a new birth in the race which includes all men, at least to this degree, that in Christ dwells potentially all that all men need. There is now a chance, which but for the incarnation of Christ never could have been, that each of us may become regenerated and begin our life over again. But in speaking of the humanity of Christ, it must be kept in mind that in his person there was united the two natures, the human and the divine. Christ was man, but also he was God. We are unable to understand this mystery, but we accept it by faith on abundant testimony, while we adore and praise him that of his fullness all we may receive, and grace for grace.

Birth of Christ in the Soul. III. Just as the Holy Ghost was instrumental in the birth of Christ into the world, so is he necessary to the birth of Christ in the soul. The virgin could not have given birth to the Son of Man had not the Holy of the highest overshadowed her, and it is written that "no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." As the great Puritan divine, John Owen, used to say, "We can have no real design of conformity to Christ unless we have their eyes who beheld his glory." But how shall we obtain those eyes if they natural man beholds no excellency in Christ, and appreciates no need of him as a Savior, until these experiences are begotten in him by supernatural power and grace. We have referred to this before but it needs to be emphasized again and again. IV. Finally, as the birth of Christ into the world marks the most important era in the world, so the birth of Christ into the soul marks the most important era in the soul. It is this which turns the believer "from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God." No converted man would change his experience of salvation and the indwelling Christ for all the world could give him. It is this fact that makes the Christmastide a time of sadness as well as one of happiness and joy. We see merriment about us, yet we shrink from it as from the thought of learn of some one who, as a result of his ministry, has come to interpret point of view of a Christmas in the soul. demned to death. Here also Cromwell in 1653 was saluted with wonderful enthusiasm lord protector of England. He wore no king's crown, but he held a Bible in one hand and a golden scepter in the other, and he was clad in royal purple lined with ermine. But only eight years after this great honor the protector's body was dragged from his grave in Westminster abbey and thrown into a pit at Tyburn, while his head was exposed on one of the pinnacles of this Westminster hall, where it remained for over twenty-five years.

Pleasure in One's Work.

Pleasure in work produces a sympathetic, teachable mental attitude toward the task. It makes the attention involuntary, and eases the strain of attending. It stops the nervous leaks of worry. One of the secrets of lasting well is to avoid getting stale and tired and in a mental rut. Pleasure gives a sense of freedom that is a rest, as a wide road rests'the driver. To know a thing thoroughly and attain mastership in it, one must be drawn back to it repeatedly by its attractions, and must find one's powers evoked and trained by its inspiration. -Prof. Edward D. Jones, in Engineering Magazine.

What's to become of the drinker? The railroads don't want him. From the humblest job to the highest there is no place for him. He is not wanted for any important position either civil or military; he cannot be elected to any high office within the gift of the people; the banks do not want him; the wholesaler does not want him; the farmer has no use for him. Who wants the drinker?

The penitentiary, the insane asylum, the inebriate asylum, the almshouse may receive him in due course of time, but who would aim to fit himself for such a future as these institutions represent? What's to become of the drinker? It is a question to which the youth of today may well give some serious thought .- Union Signal,

There are no party lines in the church when it comes to an estimate of the damage done to life and society by the saloon."

THEY KNOW.

Liquor dealers themselves know full well that because of the nature of alcohol, drunkenness and degeneracy either in the drinker or in his offspring is the natural and logical result of the liquor traffic. They know their business makes dependent and undesirable citizens unto the third and fourth generation. They know and have not hesitated to declare that their customers are the "prospective patients" of drink cure sanitariums.

BEFORE AND AFTER.

Before the days of prohibition, Maine began to cut off her forests and sell them for rum and there was but little money in the savings banks. Now she has more money in her savings banks than the great state of Ohio, with five times her population. She sends her children to school in larger numbers than states which sell llquor. Her debt is about $22 per capita, while that of Massachusetts is about $72 per capita.

STREET SURFACE Processes Followed In European and American Cities.

TO PRESERVE

Much Greater Service Is Got Out of Foreign Highways by Protecting Them In Various Ways and So Facilitating Traffic Than Is the Case In America.

[By Frank Koester, consulting civic engineer, New York.]

After laying an expensive asphalt or wood block street, city authorities in American cities seem to feel that their whole duty has been performed. The street is immediately left to the mercy of traffic and the elements and nothing more is done until some serious repairs become necessary.

A very different process is followed protecting the street and in facilitating traffic, so that much greater service is got out of a street than in America. with various substances whenever weather conditions or other reasons require it.

three cubic yards in convenient locations, being thus at hand whenever needed for use.

Applications are made when the streets are covered with ice, sleet or caused by fog or after heavy rains, when the weather conditions are such that the streets will not readily dry. A twofold object is attained by such sowing: the slipperiness of the street is overcome and safety for vehicles and pedestrians assured, and the surplus water is absorbed by the sand so that it does not lie and rot the surfacing. Thus the greatest objection to asphalt streets, their slipperiness, is obviated. As streets are only flushed at times when the water will readily dry off. there is no occasion to sand the streets after flushing.

When bodies of men are to pass over icy streets, the sand or small gravel to be scattered is first moistened with a solution of salt, as it will then the
