A WORD FOR MOTHERS
It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shortens life.
If your work is tiring; if your nerves are excitable; if you feel languid, weary or depressed, you should know that Scott's Emulsion overcomes just such conditions.
It possesses in concentrated form the very elements to invigorate the blood, strengthen the tissues, nourish the nerves and build strength.
Scott's is strengthening thousands of mothers—and will help you. No alcohol, Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Sunday morning: Service at 10:30. Sermon on "How to Study the Bible." Sunday school at 11:45.
Christian Endeavor at 6:15. The last two meetings have been well attended and full of interest. Let us continue in this present enthusiasm by regular attendance and by taking part in the service. The girl's quartet will sing.
Sunday evening: Service at 7 o'clock. The fourth sermon on "The Teachings of Paul."
The Philathea class will meet with Miss Helen Slocum on Tuesday afternoon.
Prayer-meeting on Thursday from 7 to 7:45 p. m. Choir rehearsal at 7:45.

Dr. Geo. B. Stewart, president of Auburn Theological seminary, is expected to preach for us on Sunday morning, Dec. 5. Let us fill the church and hear him.
The church fair passed off briskly. The ladies are certainly to be commended for the excellent supper (more accurately speaking the dinner) which was served. Their booths were very tastily arranged. They worked hard for the results obtained. Supposing that the people of King Ferry and vicinity who receive the Christian benefits of the church should all do their part in putting the church on a solid financial basis, how much more efficient we could be for doing the work of the church. Are we doing our part in the support of the church of Christ?

Merrifield.
Nov. 22—Farmers are storing their cabbage as there is no market for it.

The railroad company is building a house just north of the station for the workmen to reside in.
The marriage of Daniel O'Herron of this place and Miss Margaret O'Connell of Ellsworth will be solemnized this morning at Our Lady of the Lake church at King Ferry. A wedding breakfast will be served at the home of the bride's parents. Glenn Shorkley has the wall built for an addition to his house.

Extension School for Farmers.
A community demonstration school in agriculture for Genoa will be held early next year, in Academy hall, lasting for five days. The sessions will be held from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 4 p. m.
Instruction will be given on subjects most important in this locality, including Poultry, Dairying and General Farming. The work is conducted by members of the extension staff of Cornell Agricultural college. The demonstration school aims to bring to the farmer a short course in farm practices that have proved effective by experiment and are recommended by the College of Agriculture. The sessions are devoted to regular class work, with lectures, discussions and practice periods.
Any farmer will be eligible to attend the school who is registered in advance. Registration fee $1. Fifty farmers are already registered. Give your name to Herbert Gay, D. C. Hunter or G. B. Springer.

The minister of a small Missouri town called the grocer on the telephone the other day and gave him the following order:
"Send a dollar's worth of meat out to my house. If there is no one at home, just poke it through the key-hole."—Harper's Weekly.

North Lansing.

Nov. 23—Our Indian summer weather was short. We would have liked it to linger.
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beardsley and daughter Camilla with the mother, Mrs. Ella Beardsley, were in Ithaca last week one day.
Bert Ross, with his father, Perry Ross of Locke, visited at Sugar Hill last week.
Mrs. Helen Bower is still in a weak helpless condition.
Warren Newman, who is attending High school in Auburn, spent his Thanksgiving vacation at home here.
Andrew Brink is better, but not out yet.
Mr. and Mrs. Millard Edsall recently entertained friends from Ithaca.
Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan of Auburn were recent guests of their aunt, Mrs. Kate DeCamp.
Herbert Sharpsteen of Cazenovia seminary spent his vacation at home. The evaporator is still running with plenty of apples.

Lines from Ledyard.
Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Avery heard Mme. Fremstad and her company sing in Auburn on Monday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Ward Lamkin leave here on Wednesday morning for New York in their car, and will sail from there on Saturday for their winter home in Florida.
Mr. Godfrey, who ran one of the big auto trucks on the state road work, left for his home in Albany with his truck last Sunday. Others are preparing to go this week. Quite a strip of road will be left unfinished and the road men may be sure of a welcome when they come back next spring.
Mrs. Delos Aikin, who has been very ill for several weeks, is still in a serious condition.

Base Ball Benefit Dance.
On Friday night, Dec. 3, will be held the first of a series of entertainments which the Genoa Base Ball association are planning to hold during the winter season, in an effort to raise sufficient funds to finance a team the coming season, that will be a credit to the town.
Committees are busy with arrangements for the first party. McDermott's full orchestra of Cortland has been engaged. Friends and fans are selling tickets in advance, and judging from the sale of tickets so far this will be the largest party held in this section in many a year.
Every effort will be made to make this dance a big success and all who attend are assured a good time. Some handsome prizes have been subscribed to be given for prize waltz and door prizes. Remember the date, Dec. 3, and give the movement a boost.

National Grange Officers.
The National Grange in session at Oakland, Calif., last week elected the following officers: Oliver Wilson, Peoria, Ill., master; W. H. Vary, Watertown, N. Y., overseer; Edward E. Chapman, Ludlow, Mass., lecturer; Mrs. Eva S. McDowell, Wellesley, Mass., treasurer; C. M. Freeman, Tippecanoe City, O., secretary.
About 2,000 delegates and members were in attendance.

Why He Laughed.
"What are you laughing at?"
"I was just thinking of my poverty."
"Well, what is there in poverty to make you laugh?"
"It just struck me that if I should by chance strike it right some day how many thousands there are who could honestly say they knew me when I didn't have a dollar."—Detroit Free Press.

A Fine Concert.

The second number of the Genoa entertainment course was given last Friday evening in the Presbyterian church by the Ithaca Conservatory orchestra. The large audience present completely filled the auditorium and the applause throughout the evening would indicate that all were highly pleased with the program.
The orchestra was composed of thirty pieces. Two violin soloists, a vocal soloist, a piano soloist and a reader assisted with the program. W. Grant Egbert, the well known violinist and instructor in the Conservatory, was conductor.
The orchestra numbers were a delight to the audience and not only reflected much credit upon the players, but upon the conductor as well. After the closing number, the demand for more was so insistent that they were obliged to respond. The playing of Miss Cummings in the Concerto in E major for violin and orchestra, won many favorable comments.
A surprise number on the program was the violin selection by Miss Helen Doyle, who was greeted with applause as she appeared. It will be recalled that Miss Doyle is the young lady who received the prize this summer at the San Francisco exposition, offered by the National Association of Music for the best violinist under 30 years of age, of purely American training. This is something of an honor, and Genoa people were greatly privileged to hear her.

Lansing Farmer Ends Life.
Despondency over money matters is believed to have been the reason why Brink Mapes, about 45 years of age, a farmer residing half a mile from Rogues Harbor in the town of Lansing, ended his life Monday by shooting himself with a revolver. Mapes and his family lived on the farm owned by John Morgan, and he has been considered a worthy and industrious man.
Shortly after noon Monday Mrs. Mapes called her husband to dinner and when he did not answer she went to the barn to look for him. At first she was unsuccessful but after searching for a few minutes she found the body of her husband lying in the hay loft. Mapes was dead with a bullet wound in the head. A revolver was on the hay by his side.
Mrs. Mapes notified neighbors and Sheriff Charles A. Mackey was called. After viewing the remains and questioning Mrs. Mapes and several of the neighbors the official expressed the opinion that worry over money matters caused Mapes to end his life.
He is survived by a wife and nine children.
A private funeral was held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning from the Mapes home, near South Lansing. Interment at West Groton.

Supper and Bazaar.
The West Genoa Ladies' Aid society will hold their annual bazaar and chicken pie supper at the Grange hall, Five Corners, on Friday evening, Dec. 10, 1915.
The ladies have many acceptable Christmas presents ready for your inspection and extend to every one a cordial invitation to attend and take advantage of this opportunity of purchasing them. There will be the regular "Fish Pond" and also a "Parcel Post Booth." 18w2

Red Cross Christmas Tokens.

New York, Nov. 18—With shipments to 500 agents in various parts of the state to-day, from the office of the State Red Cross seal sale, the number of seals distributed has been brought up to 15,000,000.
Rochester, which last year won the national pennant, awarded to the city selling the largest number of seals per capita in any city of its size in the country has placed a first order of 3,000,000; Buffalo heads the list this year with an order of 5,500,000; Syracuse and Yonkers 750,000 each; Troy, Albany, Poughkeepsie and Binghamton plan to sell 400,000 each.

The exceptionally large orders this year are due to the very wide use which is to be made of the sale-by-mail plan which has been demonstrated to be the most satisfactory method of putting out the seals. In the rural districts this method has met with large success and the county agents in Herkimer, Oneida, Ulster, Chautauqua, Delaware, Otsego, Wayne and Cayuga are sending out thousands of letters containing seals into the country districts.

The standard of five seals for each inhabitant has been set by the State Charities Aid association, agent for the state outside of New York City. Over 40 cities and villages reached this standard last year and it is expected that this number will be greatly increased in 1915.

Genoa Presbyterian Church.
Morning service at 11 o'clock. At this service a treat is in store for us. The message will be delivered by Rev. Geo. B. Stewart, D. D., President of Auburn seminary. Dr. Stewart has been here before and his coming to us should insure a large audience. Come and bring your friends.
Sunday school at close of morning service. You are invited to meet with us to study God's word. Those having small children in their home are urged especially to come and bring the little folks.
Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p. m. Topic: "Home Mission Work to be done in our Community."
Evening service at 7:30. Song service followed by message from the pastor. The song service is proving better each week.
Thursday evening service at 7:45. Topic will be study of Joel and Amos, announced for the meeting this week. The service this week was in nature of a Thanksgiving service.

Every One Chases the Turkey at This Time

"Giva da turk," grins the red shawled little Italian woman, picking her way through the wet alleys of the city market place. She reaches the stalls where live birds are being sold to these hardy souls who are equal to the task of carrying their purchases home, squawking and struggling, through the city streets. Madonna Bella does not hesitate, however. She picks out the fiercest bird in the whole pen and runs her capable fingers through his feathers to feel if he really is as fat as he looks. Then she waits, her broad smile growing broader every minute, as the dealer weighs her treasure. The men and boys, to whom the day before Thanksgiving is one of the most entertaining in the whole calendar, stand around, shouting their glee, and finally Madonna Bella reaches out a strong hand, seizes her bird by the legs and thrusts it into the folds of her apron, departing proudly down the street. Next after her is a delegation of mirthful, rosy cheeked boys from the settlements come to buy "a good one" for Miss Sallie. It requires many moments of heated discussion before they can all agree upon just which one is good enough, and then more consultation before they decide that the association funds are being used to the best advantage in the purchase of the bird that is chosen.

Thanksgiving teaches one thing—namely, that there is no need for a universal language. When there is a universal need the words take care of themselves. Italian, Greek, Norwegian, Russian and German, they know "folk" or "turk."

All day long the procession fills the streets. Boys with live birds under their arms, followed by shrieking crowds of children until they disappear to some dingy doorway; women with big bundles done up in burlap or old newspaper, which Sherlock Holmes, at least, can tell easily are turkeys by the size of the claws sticking out; limousines rolling noiselessly to the doors of shining emporiums where the democratic national bird costs at least 10 cents more than it does if you take it home alive from the public market, but it isn't half as much fun; beautifully dressed women selecting the finest for the family feast of Dives; tired commuters rushing into the market and dashing out again, spilling nuts and celery and cranberries, but clutching without possibility of error the fattest turkey there is left in the market—this is the day before Thanksgiving in the big city.

Nobody cares what the price is. It may be 25 cents or it may be 30. It makes very interesting reading two weeks beforehand. Father especially—and mother, if she is a member of the Housewives' league and feels a moral responsibility in these matters—likes to know whether he'll have to pay 5 cents more this year or only 3 more than he paid last year. But do you think the cost matters on the day before Thanksgiving? Does it matter to you?—New York Tribune.

Thanksgiving day ought to mean much to churchgoers. It is the one day in the year on which sectarians sink all their differences and unite in a common worship before God.

Turkey Not From Turkey.
It is unfortunate that such a truly American product as the turkey should have received such a name. Just how it came to be christened "turkey" is a matter of conjecture, but one early writer says: "It appears to have been intended as a satire upon the solemn strut of the bird, which might appear to give it a resemblance to the pompous stride of a Turk. Most assuredly it did not arise from the native place of the bird, which has no connection with eastern Europe or Asia. To suppose the bird melanctris, mentioned by Greek writers, to have been the turkey is quite a mistake. When discovered in America it was seen both in a wild and domestic state."

Not Many "Vermont Turkeys."
A standard form of printed bill of fare used by restaurants, hotels and steamboats always announces that the turkey is from Vermont. Vermont farmers have done great things in recent years in improving breeds of turkeys and in marketing choice kinds, but the state does not account for 1 per cent of the trade in fine turkeys.

It was a beautiful and appropriate custom in the old Puritan churches to endeavor to reconcile upon Thanksgiving day any disputes which might have occurred among the members. Although it is possible that little if any trace of this excellent custom is found in most churches today, it lives in the reunion of families.

The Night After Thanksgiving.
'Twas the night of Thanksgiving, when all through the flat
Not a creature was stirring, not even the cat.
And Jolinnie lay sleeping upon his small cot—
He might have been dreamless, but then he was not.

He saw in his vision a table piled high
With sauces and dressing and pudding and pie,
And there in the center, upon a long plate,
He saw himself lying in elegant state.

He was browned to a turn and was stuffed
For a king,
With his legs in the air, while each arm
Was a wing,
And he tried to turn over and dash from the place,
But he couldn't move muscle, much less win a race.

And a dozen big gobblers sat there in a ring,
And they pecked at his legs and they dug at his wing;
He tried to call "father" and "mother," but vain,
While they still kept their pecking and causing him pain.

At last, with an effort, he made a big splash,
And off from the table he went with a crash,
And when he awakened his parents both said,
"Good Lord, John Augustus, can't you stay in your bed?"
—Joe Cone in Boston Herald.

REASONS FOR THANKFULNESS.

For the manifold blessings that Almighty God has showered upon us during the past year; for prosperous industries and fertile fields; for contented homes and peaceful maris; for the growing recognition that whatever is of solid benefit to a single division of our people must in time be of benefit to the people as a whole; for the extension of education and the fostering of the arts and sciences; for our preservation from flood and famine, plague and drought—for these tokens of the benignant and beneficent care of a watchful Providence it is becoming that the people should gather to offer thanks to Almighty God.

While in sorrow and compassion we view the misery and devastation which a world war has brought to our fellow beings across the ocean, while we look aghast at fields dyed with the blood of brave men and wet with the tears of women and little children, at homes destroyed, at commerce palsied, at proud cities leveled to the dust and progress giving way to desolation, our minds must turn in gratitude to him who has kept our nation whole and unharmed.

Bobby Burns' Thanksgiving Grace

Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some would eat that want it,
But we hae meat, and we can eat,
Sae let the Lord be thankit.

We have especial cause of congratulation in the advancement of science and virtue in our midst. It is fitting that we should, as a people, acknowledge our obligations and render our thanks to the gracious Author of all our mercies.

What Bessie Is Thankful For

I's dot a pretty dolly,
An' I's dot a nice new hat;
I's dot a picture book an' ring
An' much more fins' 'an dat.

I's dot a playhouse by the creek,
Where my papa loves to fish,
An' it's dot a little broken chair
An' a pretty broken dish.

An' we's dot a turkey dinner,
An' peach an' pum'kin pie,
An' pudding, too, wif chocolate,
An' heaps of fins, oh, my!

I's dot so much I's fankful for,
Lots more'n I can tell,
But mos' of all I's thankful for
Is 'at all of us are well.
—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

HE OUGHT TO BE GRATEFUL.

What Better Fate For the Turkey Than Making a Whole Nation Glad?
What finish more honorable and impressive for a bird than to be fated to die to make happy an entire nation?
For this brief golden period the eagle is only a remote symbol. The Thanksgiving bird is magically transformed into a tempting thing of appetizing odors, an eye entrancing vision of glistening brown and bronze and bringing in its train attendants of the field that crisply show ivory white and pale emerald and translucent, liquid ruby.

In the turkey at this season there are the pride of country, the religious sense of a nation and its sustaining hopefulness, the racial family spirit that "makes the whole world akin" and provides the very essence of pleasing plenty.

Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pie.
In the Woman's Home Companion Fannie Merritt Farmer, cookery editor of that publication, presented a number of November recipes, among which is the following for pumpkin pie:

"Mix two-thirds cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful ginger and one-half teaspoonful of salt, and add one and one-half cupfuls of steamed and strained pumpkin, two eggs, slightly beaten, one and one-half cupfuls of milk and one-half cupful of cream. Bake in one crust."

Indians Like Turkey Feathers.
Turkey feathers rank next in importance to those of the eagle with all Indian tribes, while the Apaches, the Pamunkeys and Cheyennes chose the turkey's feathers for all ceremonial headdresses and ornaments. The Pamunkey tribe also used turkey feathers for ornamental purposes on their clothing, as well as for their headgear. To this day when they don their native costumes the turkey feather is preferred as ornament by many of the Indians of America.

Be thankful for plenty of work, a heart to work, strength for work and fellowship in work. Those who will find it most difficult to be thankful are those who do not know the luxury of work.

AMERICA'S THANKS.

We thank him who has made and preserved us a nation.

Who hid this continent from the eyes of the world until the time for its revelation had come.

Who summoned hither faithful men, believing in God and in men as the children of God.

Who preserved the brave colonists from famine, pestilence and sword; from internal dissensions and from foreign foes.

Who united the hearts and minds of the various peoples in their demand for liberty and their declaration of independence.

Who made wise the counsels of their counselors and strong the arm of their defenders and gave victory to the weak battalions.

Who pacified the strifes and vanquished the jealousies which separated the several states and joined them in one indissoluble union.

Who suffered not the evils of slavery to end in the nation's death, but raised up prophets of liberty to awaken the consciences of the people.

Who has brought to our shores the oppressed of other lands and made it a refuge, a school, a home for the needy and the aspiring of all nations.

Who has given us wisdom in the past to provide a free school and free churches for a free people.

Who inspires in our own day clear sighted, brave hearted men to battle without truce or retreat against open violence and insidious corruption, against the perils of popular ignorance and the perils of concentrated wealth.

Who inspires other clear sighted, brave hearted men to toil in peaceful vocations without stint for public education and public virtue.

Who has given to us an open Bible, a living church and a common faith in a righteous and a redeeming God.

Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and his wonderful works to the children of men!—Outlook.

GOING ROUND THE WORLD.

The Gain or Loss of One Whole Day In Making the Trip.

In sailing around the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met a little earlier every morning.

On the other hand, in sailing westward the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast.

This strange fact, clearly worked out, leads to the apparent paradox that the first named ship has a gain of two whole days over the latter, if we suppose them to have departed from port and returned together.

Official National Anthem.

Do you know the official national anthem, which is supposed to bring the patriot to his feet?

No doubt you think you do, even, as has been proved again and again, when more than two or three Americans are gathered together, that no one knows more than a phrase or two of the words, but do you rise for "Hail Columbia," "My Country," "Tis of Thee," or the "Star Spangled Banner"?

Of course I hear the army and navy folk, familiar with regulations, say "Star Spangled Banner;" but, judging from the actions of audiences at vaudeville and movie shows recently, with most it is a tossup between all three, with the odds favoring evenly "Hail Columbia" and "My Country."

Naming a Race Horse.

Some years ago at a sale of racing yearlings the Duke of Portland and another peer bid together for a fine animal, and the contest between them was very keen.

"If we go on at this rate," said the other peer, "we shall be paying far more than the creature is worth. Suppose we buy it between us?"

The Duke of Portland agreed, and later on they had a discussion as to what the horse should be called.

"Well," said his grace, "as we are going to share it, why not call it 'The Last?'" - London Mail.

OLD AS THE RACE STORY OF THE DAY

Setting Aside a Period for Thanksgiving Is a Custom of Remote Antiquity.

THE idea is prevalent in the United States that our Thanksgiving is peculiarly an American custom of New England origin. This is true in part only. The general observance through many years of a set day on which to give thanks to Almighty God for his blessings has made the custom distinctively American; but its origin long antedates the settlement of the western continent, and we must look elsewhere for it.

The festival appears early in Jewish history, and, as it was connected with the land and its possession, may have had a Canaanitish prototype. Its celebration was annual, and each festival continued through seven days. At the beginning "two vessels of silver were carried in a ceremonious manner to the temple, one full of water, the other of wine, which were poured at the foot of the altar of burnt offerings, always on the seventh day of the festival."

Analogous to the Jewish festival and possibly borrowed from it was that of the old Greeks, the Thesmophia. This was a feast to Demeter, the goddess of the harvest. It lasted nine days and consisted of sacrifices of the products of the soil with oblations of "wine, milk and honey."

The Circle of Our Love.

The strange sweet life we have and own. So wondrous is from friends we've known. And those afar and those above, Complete the circle of our love; And when we think of these, and pray, We keep, in sooth, Thanksgiving Day!

Thanksgiving Fable.

A turkey one day observed a peacock in the farm yard and immediately began to find fault with it. "You vain, conceited bird," said the turkey, "you are proud of your looks, and yet you are of no value in the economy of nature. Why do you strut around and regard all others with disdain?"

Not Copied From the Jews.

Undoubtedly our present Thanksgiving day has its prototype in the Plymouth thanksgiving festival of 1621. It has been asserted repeatedly that the Plymouth festival was suggested to the Pilgrims by the Jewish "Feast of Ingathering." That is not probable, as the differences between them are more striking than the likenesses.

Slow to Find Favor in South.

In the South Thanksgiving day was practically unknown till about 1855, when Governor John of Virginia urged the observance of the day in a letter to the legislature; but the idea met with hot opposition, on the ground that it was a "New England superstition," and the small favor it found was completely wiped out by the Civil war.

Pessimist Always With Us.

"Well," said the cheerless person, "Thanksgiving is all right, but I believe I prefer an old-fashioned Fourth of July." "Why?" "It's cheaper to celebrate. A pack of firecrackers costs a lot less than a turkey."

A Thanksgiving Poem

THANKFUL, each morn, for the bright light of day; Thankful for interest in work and in play; Thankful for those who e'er greet me with love; Thankful for white clouds and blue skies above; Thankful for raiment and thankful for food; Thankful for bird-songs, and flow'rs in the wood; Thankful for showers to freshen the earth; Thankful for sweet sounds of gleeful child mirth; Thankful for e'en Sorrow's softening touch; Thankful for little and thankful for much; Thankful for snowfalls, so peaceful and white; Thankful for moonlight and dark, restful night;

Thankful for laughter and thankful for tears; Thankful for each of the lengthening years; Thankful for all Thou hast given to me— Heart that can feel deep, and eyes that can see.

Margaret G. Hays.

Thanksgiving Luck

Thanksgiving comes upon the trail Of Autumn's russet gown, And, never mind how much we rail At price of turkey, pig or quail, We'll eat our dinner without fail And chuckle when it's down.

"ONE LONG, HAPPY, HEARTFELT SIGH." Nobody ever counts the cost Of chicken, pie or duck When in Thanksgiving morning's frost The appetite we thought we'd lost Comes back, for only then we wish We might have emptied every dish, And even if the price was high Our one long, happy, heartfelt sigh Is for our great good luck.

Thanksgiving day is a festival for elderly people. The movement on that day is toward the home where the father and mother, the grandfather and grandmother, live. It matters not if we have made a home for ourselves and if it be ever so happy, it is to the home of boyhood or girlhood that we turn on this day.

Thanksgiving's Uplift

Persons who are modern and ungrateful refuse to be preached to. They do not go to church on Thanksgiving day. They stay at home and read novels or newspapers and yawn and wish the shops were open or that some one would come in for a game of bridge, or perhaps they go to the matinee. But when the shadows fall there is no sense of serenity or of peace such as broods over a household where every member has received a spiritual uplift from the observance of a day of thanks.

The proclamation of our president each year demands that we give thanks not only as individuals, but as a people. If you are dissatisfied with the result of the election you are probably saying, "Could anything be worse than the political situation this year?"

The Basis of Thankfulness. The unqualified acceptance of life, with all its mystery and pain, all its labor and weariness and yet with all its sweetness and joy and all its latent potentiality—that is and forever must be the basis of true gratitude, the one great theme for thanks. Unless you are grateful for life itself you cannot be truly glad for anything that life contains.

King Edward Liked Turkey. The late King Edward VII. of England, traveling in America in 1890, conceived a liking for roasted turkey with oyster and chestnut dressing and with cranberry sauce and for Albemarle pippins and Baldwin apples. In after years, when he came into possession of Sandringham, he caused arrangements to be made by his steward whereunder those delicacies were forwarded from America at regular times.

"Think of your mercies, children," is a very good quotation to bear in mind whenever troubles threaten to overwhelm us, and really if you do think of your mercies you will surely find that the troubles and the mercies are about evenly balanced in most lifetimes, even though during their visitations we do not always think so.

RESULTS.

If you want good results you must necessarily employ good methods and the same holds good in the buying of clothing—if you want satisfactory results, buy good clothing.

The name "Egbert" has been associated so long in this community with everything that is good in clothes, that you cannot think of one without thinking of the other.

If this word "good" appeals to you, may we not have an opportunity of showing you these "good" Egbert Clothes?

Turkey Soars Above the Eagle Today

For Thanksgiving is the day and the turkey is the viand that are peculiarly American. The eagle may appeal to our hearts, but who would swap the Thanksgiving turkey when it is a question of the rest of his body?

An Automobile Thanksgiving By Kate Upson Clark

"HATE 'em!" good old Deacon Phipps was in the habit of saying, whenever he saw an automobile. From the first moment the new invention appeared, scaring his steady old horses almost to death, and breaking up one of his best farm wagons, Deacon Phipps had no patience with any kind of a motor vehicle.

As time went on, and many of his neighbors bought automobiles, his horses became wroth to them and turned never a hair when they whizzed by; but the good deacon did not relent. Whenever one passed him on the road, throwing, perhaps, a shower of dust or mud upon his modest carriage, and leaving behind it a trail of ill-odor, he would mutter (under his breath) words which no good deacon should ever, ever use.

The deacon and his wife grew old, and their six children all married, excepting Rhoda, the youngest, who stayed at home to take care of them. The four sons were prosperous, and the older daughter had married a very rich man and lived one hundred or more miles away. Two sons had become farmers and lived quite near. One was a merchant in a large town perhaps fifty miles distant. The fourth one was a minister, settled in the same town with the merchant brother. To the infinite disgust of Deacon Phipps, all of these sons, excepting the minister, owned automobiles, and Thomas, the merchant, actually sported three or four. When his father found this out, he came almost to the point of breaking off relations with Thomas.

In the old days, the family had used to gather on the day before Thanksgiving, and the large, airy chambers of the ample Phipps household could accommodate them all. Now the children and the grandchildren had increased in number until such gatherings were no longer possible. The uncles and aunts had died or had become infirm. There had been some pretty lonely Thanksgivings at the hospitable Phipps farm.

It was during the week before the great day that Deacon Phipps was sitting before the open fire in his big, comfortable sitting-room, and pondering over this melancholy fact.

"Tain't right," he grumbled to his gentle wife, who sat knitting beside him. "Tain't right to have families scattered so at Thanksgiving. I wish we could get our folks all together, Susan, just once more. Here you an' I are vergin' onto eighty, an' we hain't had our folks all together for goin' on ten year now. Here's this great house, dinin' room fit to seat thirty, an' this room to spill over into for as many more, and countin' Sister Judy an' Brother Ben, all the sister an' brother we've got left, bless 'em!—except Betty, an' she's tied to the house by her kitchen hip, an' always will be, it's body-aid and leg-aid—only count up forty-one, but we can't get 'em together.

"Well," he mused on, "we'll try to get a dozen or so of 'em an' call it a family party, but you an' I an' Rhody, an' the help are strong an' hearty, an' could take care of 'em all, if they would only come. But I don't see any way."

"No, there isn't any way," sighed his good wife, "but you hadn't oughter complain, Silas. Ye've got a sight o' blessin's, an' we'd oughter think o' those we've got an' not hanker after those we can't have." Which was good doctrine, though it could not quite stop the deacon's grumbling.

Miss Rhoda Phipps was quite equal to the task of taking care of the old people. A strong woman helped her in the kitchen, and there were neighbors near by who were ready to do extra work. Job, the good middle-aged man who had taken care of the horses for many a year, was no mean hand at household as well as stable service, and at this special Thanksgiving season Miss Rhoda kept them all busy until the pantries were piled thick with dainties. Mrs. Phipps thought that there was too much food prepared.

"Why, Rhoda, what do we want with twenty apple pies and six turkeys and ten chicken pies and a gallon of cranberry sauce?" she cried.

Deacon Phipps Was Restlessly Peering Up the Road.

"We never in the world can eat them up before they spoil! As near as I can make out, there are only about ten coming, anyway."

But Miss Rhoda said she "would risk it," and laughed her mother back to her post-beside the fire.

By ten o'clock Thanksgiving morning the whole farmhouse was in speckless order. Aunt Judy and Uncle Ben had promised to come early, and so had son John and his family. Deacon Phipps was restlessly peering up the road, long before the proper time, and Mrs. Phipps was almost as impatient as he.

Presently over the brow of the hill came a great touring car. The deacon scowled, but as he heard, first the sweet Gabriel horn, and then the rough roar of the Klaxon, his face relaxed a little. Who were in the car? It was not the family of son John. Surely it was Thomas and his minister brother, with several members of their families, and Mrs. Phipps fairly cried with joy as she saw them.

"There is another load just behind us," they shouted, as they drew up before the door.

"Another load!" There were half a dozen loads before the final toll was taken, and when two strong, big Phipps sons lifted out from one of the cushioned limousines poor, lame old Aunt Betty, who could not have dreamed of coming in anything except such a softly padded vehicle, the tears were dropping all over Mother Phipps' best white lace jabot.

Such a Thanksgiving! Every single one of the Phipps children and grandchildren was there! The good deacon's voice trembled with joy as he asked the blessing, and poured out his thanks before God.

"But you know, father," said Thomas Phipps, slyly, "there are several of us who couldn't possibly have come if it hadn't been for those automobiles that you hate so."

The deacon hemmed, and bristled a little, but in the face of the loud merriment which greeted this perfectly true reminder, his few rather growling remarks could not be heard.

"You know there really isn't much danger from automobiles nowadays, father," proceeded Thomas Phipps diplomatically. "The chauffeurs are better taught than they used to be, the machines can be stopped more easily—oh, in every way they are improved."

"Improved!" shouted the deacon, unable to restrain himself longer. "You can't pick up a paper without readin' about some shockin' accident through carelessly driven automobiles. Improved! They can't be improved. They are inventions of the evil 'one himself. You can't tell me! I read the papers."

"Wait a minute, father!" laughed Thomas, amid the eager looks of all the others, who were evidently full of suppressed excitement. "We—well—we—feel as though we all wanted to see more of you and mother than we have seen lately, but we don't feel safe to have you travelling around on the cars any more, and your horses can't take you as far as most of us live, so we have clubbed together and have bought you the strongest and handsomest limousine car that we could find. We have put a sum at interest in the bank to pay for the keeping of it, and we have had Job taught how to run it. You know he has been away a good many afternoons. Well, he has been learning how to run a car. You can trust him, and now you and mother can heat a big soapstone and climb into your limousine and come and see us all, and we expect you to do it. Now what do you say to that, father?"

What could the old man say? He turned red, stammered, looked at his wife, who was smiling significantly, and then had the grace to accept and thank his children for their munificent gift.

All of Deacon Phipps' neighbors laugh a little when they see him riding by in his splendid automobile. But they are wise enough to sober up when they catch his eye.

Thanksgiving

Let us be thankful for the loyal hand
That love held out in welcome to our own,
When love and only love could understand
The need of touches we had never known.

LET us be thankful for the longing eyes
That gave their secret to us as they wept,
Yet in return found, with a sweet surprise,
Love's kiss upon their lids, and, smiling, slept.

AND let us, too, be thankful that the tears
Of sorrow have not all been drained away,
That through them still, for all the coming years,
We may look on the dead face of To-day.

SHOW KINDNESS WHILE YOU MAY

Expressions of Gratitude Timely
Made Denote Proper Feeling of Thankfulness in the Heart.

Far down in your heart you are thankful about anything, will you show the kindness to everybody connected with you and to your own personality by giving an honest, sincere expression of your gratitude? The man who dies with all the thank-yous in him is as deserving of pity as the one who stifles all the music. Don't be afraid to say "Thank you," and say it loud.

I HAVE in mind a family that allowed the mother of the large circle to wear herself out with unceasing work. She worked so long and hard that she never had time for considering a rest. The members of her family regarded mother's work as a habit. They accepted her working and never thought that she needed relaxation or a change from the monotonous grind of keeping a home. They added to her burdens by bringing others home with them. Mother smiled and worked a little harder. Then one day mother did not come down to shake the fire and prepare the breakfast. She had closed her eyes and they were so tired that she never opened them.

I wish you could have heard the belated gratitude at the funeral. I wish you could have seen the consternation and despair when the children and father looked at each other and said: "What are we going to do without her?" They were filled with regret. The ears could not hear the thanks that they poured out. They should have shown their gratitude every day of the year and in time. Look over your own life. Are you speaking and acting in time?

YOU are living in a great country and are indeed fortunate in having freedom, the right to think and to act, opportunity, countless chances to forge to the top if you have it in you. You have libraries, playgrounds, schools. You have your mind, your dear, sympathetic souls in relatives or friends and the ideals which are necessary to any human being's happiness. Do you fully appreciate the good fortune that cast your lot over here? Are you taking the trouble to express your thanks every once in a while? You ought to do this. It is good to get it out of your system.

HAVE you health? Be thankful in the right way. Do not throw to the winds of indiscretion your precious heritage. Do not insult your good health by eating, drinking, breathing the wrong things. Cut out dissipation and lead a sane, balanced, clean, normal life. Prize that good health. Sometimes it leaves in high dudgeon and never returns. And all the poulticing and nursing may not bring back to you that which should be appreciated every hour of the day. The way to thank your good health is to be kind to it.

MENTIONED ideals a minute ago. Have your ideals suffered from disuse? Where are your ideals? Are they stowed away in camphor to be brought out on Sunday when you go to church? Why are they not being cared for in the way that is the only valuable treatment for these wonderful things? Give your ideals a chance! Let them have daily influence on your thoughts and acts. Bring them into the light of day and make them important contribution factors of your happiness and success as a human being. You may not be getting so much money as your next-door neighbor or your hat may not have the label of an exclusive maker in its crown, but as a human being filling a niche in the great scheme, your ideals should be thanked every hour. Thanking them is really shaking hands with them.

If you are a woman who rides in a street car, do you thank the enlightened gentlemen who rise to give you a seat? Or do you make them very scornful of the weaker sex by taking it as your due? I have seen many men converted to the paper gazers and the seated masculine row by the neglect of women to thank the men. Say it graciously and as if you meant it. Good heavens! The cause for a thank you of this kind is growing more remote. Let us cherish it.

A STRANGER is entitled to a thank-you when he has rendered you a service. Do not be an insufferable snob and accept help silently because you have not been introduced or because his forefathers might not have come over in the Mayflower. Say thank you smilingly and be human!

DO not forget to thank in the right way the children. It is only in the respectful use of a courtesy of this kind that children will admire and emulate.

Indeed, the thank you of every day is that which makes things go smoothly. It is such a little thing that it should never be forgotten. Try saying thank you once every day. Look around. You will find something which should elicit your gratitude.

AND thank you for listening.
BARBARA LEE.

The Shame of the Cross

By REV. WM. WALLACE KETCHUM
Director of the Practical Work Course, Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—He endured the cross, despising the shame.—Heb. 12:2.

The cross, which Christ endured and the shame of which he despised, was not the idealized and sentimentalized cross of which we hear much today. It was a cross made of rough-hewn sticks of timber; an instrument, like the gallows, upon which criminals were executed.

And yet, Christ, we are told, notwithstanding this, despised its shame. What shame? The shame of being put to death as a common criminal. For it was as such, you will recall, he was condemned to death, and as such he died in the eyes of the law; though he did nothing worthy of death, and Pilate his judge found in him no fault at all.

When we apprehend that Jesus Christ, the Holy One of God, suffered the reproach, the dishonor, the contempt, the infamy and ignominy of a common criminal's execution, we begin to know a little of the shame of the cross. We understand something of what Paul means when, speaking of Christ becoming obedient unto death, he adds, "even the death of the cross."

But there is a deeper shame than that of which we have spoken. It is the shame that came to him through dying; his death identified him with the result of sin, for death is a consequence of sin. "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." So, while Christ suffered the shame of dying the death of a common criminal, it was greater shame for him, the Son of God, in whom was no sin, to die at all.

The teaching of the philosophers that death is natural to man, is not the teaching of the Bible. The body is not the prison-house of the soul from which escape is desirable. The body and soul united constitute the complete man. This does not mean that when the dissolution of soul and body takes place, the soul does not survive the body. The Scriptures teach it does; but they also teach that man's complete personality consists in the union of both soul and body, and that this will be realized at the resurrection of the just. Death then is not natural, but unnatural. It is the resultant of sin, and so for Christ to die was a disgrace, a reproach, a shame. Death had no dominion over Christ; no claim upon him for he was without sin. "No man," he said, speaking of his death, "taketh my life from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again." He alone of all men could say this. Other men die because they must, for "death has passed upon all men." He became obedient unto death; he yielded up his spirit; that is, he allowed death, the great conqueror of mankind, to overcome him. He suffered its shame.

But deep as this shame was, the shame of the cross was still deeper. It was the shame of our sin. For there on the cross, "He bore our sins in his own body"; there, "the Lord laid on him the iniquity of us all"; there, "he suffered for our sin, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God"; there, the holy spotless lamb of God "died for the ungodly." Thus, "the one who knew no sin," became identified, not only with the result of sin by death, but with sin, being "made sin for us." It was this, more than anything else, that constituted the shame of the cross of our Lord. Its baseness and dishonor was your sin and mine, which he there put away by the sacrifice of himself.

Was it for crimes that I have done,
He groaned upon the tree,
Amazing pity, grace unknown,
And Love beyond degree!

I wish we might catch the picture given us of our Lord in the two words "despised" and "endured." The first word shows him so far above the shame of the cross that he, as it were, looked down upon it. Literally, the word means "to think down upon"; that is, to think lightly of it. What a wonderful Christ! Because of the joy set before him, he could think lightly of the awful shame of the cross. Truly, our master "came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many."

The other word, "endured," pictures him as voluntarily, patiently, suffering on the accursed cross. We see him held there, not by the cruel nails that pierced his hands and feet, but by his own indomitable will and supreme love for us. Human hands placed him there, but divine love kept him there. Surely, his crucifixion from the human side was murder, for with wicked hands they slew him, but on the divine side it was sacrifice, God giving his son to be the savior of the world and the son giving himself that we might have life through him.

The Thrice-A-Week Edition OF THE New York World

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

There has never been a time when a newspaper was more needed in the household. The great war in Europe has now entered its second year, with no promise of an end for a long time. These are world-shaking events, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, has been compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues. The Presidential contest also will soon be at hand. Already candidates for the nomination are in the field, and the campaign, owing to the extraordinary character of the times, will be of supreme interest. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-A-Week edition of the New York World.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper [and THE GENOA TRIBUNE together for one year for $1.65. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

If you have anything to sell, or you want anything, have lost if you found an article, make it known through a special notice in THE TRIBUNE.

ANCONA KNOWN AS RESCUE SHIP

First Passenger Liner Torpedoed Since the Arabic.

WENT TO AID OF SANT' ANNA

For Several Months Before Italy's Entrance Into War Ancona Was Engaged In Carrying Italian Reservists From This Country and Supplies For Italian Government.

Following the sinking by a large submarine of the Italian liner Ancona, it was recalled that recently Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, announced that he had received an official communication from Berlin to the effect that German submarines had recently sunk twenty-three vessels, including four transports, belonging to the allies in Mediterranean waters. The Ancona is the first passenger liner torpedoed since the Arabic.

The Ancona was a comparatively new steamship, and since the entrance of Italy into the war she had carried large quantities of munitions, horses and reservists from this port. She last left New York on Oct. 17 and arrived on Oct. 29 at Naples, where most of her cargo was unloaded.

The Ancona was a twin screw vessel of 6,000 tons displacement. She was 482 feet in length, 58 feet in beam and had a depth of 34 feet. She was built at Belfast, Ireland, in 1908.

The Ancona had been in the Italian line service for six years and without her cargo was valued at more than $1,000,000.

Rescued Sant' Anna's Passengers.

The Ancona played a prominent part in the rescue of passengers from the burning Pabre liner Sant' Anna in mid-Atlantic on Sept. 12. She went to the Sant' Anna's aid and took off more than 600 passengers. The Sant' Anna carried more than 2,000 passengers, but succeeded in checking the fire and proceeded to the Azores without further assistance.

For several months before Italy's entrance into the war the Ancona was engaged in carrying home Italian reservists from this country and supplies for the Italian government. On one of her trips from New York to Naples late in August last year the Ancona was stopped by the British at Gibraltar, and twenty-four Germans and one Austrian were taken off.

Late last summer the Ancona left here for Italy with 75,000 bushels of wheat, 2,000 tons of hay and 500 horses for the Italian government. On the same voyage she carried 300 Italians in the steerage, who went back because it was said at the time that they could not get work on the New York subway.

All Her Crew Italians.

When the Ancona left New York on her last voyage from there, Oct. 17, she was in command of Captain Pietro Massardo. All of her officers, engine room force and members of the crew were Italians, who shipped from Italy.

Next to Gibraltar, Bizerta, Africa, where the survivors were landed, is probably the best fair in the Mediterranean for U. boats to prey on the merchant ships and troop ships of the allies. Lying opposite the southernmost point of Sicily, where the African coast swings out until a channel of scarcely 200 miles is left between the mainland and the island, it offers an ideal scene for submarine operations.

Largely because of its strategic situation Bizerta, next to Tunis, is the greatest French naval base on the Mediterranean. It has a large bay, protected by Cape Blanc, from the storms that blow in from the strait, while about fifty miles to the eastward lies the great French commercial port of Tunis.

DREDGES GAINING ON SLIDES.

Hops to Cut Through Gaillard Slide in Another Month.

Progress of dredging operations in the new channel of the Panama canal at Gaillard cut has been so satisfactory that it is now virtually assured that there will be a channel ten feet wide by thirty feet deep through the slide area by the middle of December.

The dredgers have been removing debris at a rate exceeding 1,000,000 cubic yards a month—an average of 35,000 cubic yards a day. The canal engineers say that one favorable sign is the ability of the dredges to maintain the channel they cut and that the tendency of the bottom to bulge upward gradually is ceasing. They point out, however, that there is probably a month of dredging ahead before the waters again meet at the neck of land, which is 200 feet wide and 40 feet above the water level.

It is stated that, while the channel probably will be open by the middle of December, the canal will not be in condition for use before the first of the year.

Once Was a Sufficiency.

"Never again!" announcement of juggler who tried at Washington to catch pound turp dropped from top of twelve story building on fork he held in his mouth. Fork knocked out of mouth, all his front teeth loosened and were saluted.

The Call of the West

The haze on the far horizon,
The tint of an autumn sky,
The infinite ocean of wheatfields
With the wild geese flying high,
The hum of the busy binder,
The laugh, the song, the jest,
All of earth's wild freedom—
This is the call of the west.

The crisp frost air of the winter,
The sun in a tropic sky,
The snowshoe tramp by the river,
The "curlier's call" "Tee hi!"
The northern lights in the heavens,
The healthful land and the best,
The nearest to life that's nowhere
Except in the land of the west.

'Tis a land of hope and promise,
Where a man is known by his worth,
To the Russ, Iclander or Saxon,
No matter the land of his birth
To each and to all there's a welcome
In this land of liberty blessed,
Oppression and tyranny elsewhere,
But not in the land of the west.

'Tis a land that is free from tradition,
Where a man meets a friend as a man,
Where people are up and are doing—
They can, for they know they can!
'Tis a land that is fast becoming
The home of the wanderer's quest,
Where the patriot sings with devotion,
My country, the land of the west.

And far, far away o'er the ocean
A sweetheart, a sister, a wife,
Is longing and waiting and wishing
To obtain a renewal of life
In this land, where for all there is plenty
That they may enjoy with the rest
The fulfillment of hope and of promise—
This is the call of the west.

TO MAKE DEADLIEST WAR EXPLOSIVE IN AMERICA

Small Amount of New Liquid Spreads Death, Fire and Poison.

Baron Raymond de Bulow, head of the Russian branch of the Bulow family, who came to America not many seasons ago to place violets on the California grave of his sweetheart and who is worth a little matter of $20,000,000, is coming here again, this time not to consecrate an undying love, but to manufacture the most deadly explosive ever invented by man.

This explosive, which spreads death, poison and fire wherever it is used, is the invention of a Russian chemist long a resident in Argentina, where the baron has been for the past year.

Though not a soldier, Baron de Bulow is a grandson of Cavalry General Bulow, who fought with Napoleon and went to Russia after Napoleon's downfall, while a brother, who fought with Wellington and Blucher, went to Germany and founded the German family now represented by Chancellor von Bulow.

As described by the baron, the new explosive is a dark brown liquid, which combines three deadly elements in its composition. In addition to possessing extremely high explosive power, it ignites everything within its range, even solid material, while at the same time discharging a poisonous gray gas.

It is said only minute quantities need be used in shells, hand grenades and even in glass tubes to make the resulting destruction terrible. Then, too, the explosive is cheap.

Experiments recently made in Argentina are said to have produced these astounding results: A thimbleful of the liquid was thrown among a number of animals.

There was a terrific explosion, which instantly killed the animals; then everything about them burst into flame, which consumed their bodies, while a vapor arose and spread, in which nothing could live.

HOGS CHEAP IN BERLIN.

Supply So Great That the Price Drops $7.50 to $10 a Hundredweight.

So many hogs were hurried into Berlin stockyards for sale the last day before the maximum price order became effective that prices dropped $7.50 to $10 a hundredweight from those which have been prevailing and in some cases were under the maximum which has been established.

The federal council will consider the advisability of fixing maximum prices for eggs and cheese.

VALUE OF 1915 CROPS IS $5,500,000,000.

The nation's principal farm crops this year are worth about $5,500,000,000, exceeding by more than $500,000,000 their value in 1914, the previous banner value year in the country's crop history. The cotton crop is not included in this estimate. There has been an unprecedented harvest, many of the crops exceeding their best records, and high prices, due to the influence of the European war, have contributed to swell the total value.

Statistics showing the size of the various crops, preliminary estimates in most instances, with figures giving last year's crops in bushels, are as follows:

—Dr. S. E. Persons recently observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate of the Cazenovia Presbyterian church.

—The peach season in the Western New York fruit belt produced total shipments of 4,187 cars, which if placed in one train would have been 32 miles long.

—Harold Bell Wright, the famous author, a former resident of Sennett, has given $100 toward a fund for the restoration of an old cemetery in the village of Sennett.

—There resides at West Eaton, Captain Edward D. Lewis, one of the few surviving captains of whale boats, who half a century ago, sailed out of Bedford, Mass.

—New York requires from 500 to 700 carloads of from 1500 to 1800 to the car of Christmas trees to supply the annual demands. Prices average from $200 to $300 per car.

—A Watertown restaurant cook claims that that city holds the pie-eating record. The cook says that in twenty-six days she baked 508 pies, which were eaten by patrons of that restaurant.

—Two women of venerable age have recently died in this state. Mrs. Martin Luther died at her home near Sidney, aged 100 years, 3 months, 15 days. For 92 years she resided in the house where she died. She remembered of conversing with old Revolutionary soldiers in her youth. Mrs. Henry Beebe, who was 100 years old in August, died at her home in Clinton.

—Some loads of cabbage pass through town and a few loads of apples are also noticed. Potatoes seem to be held by the growers and they are being sold at 90c. in ten bushel lots by one of our produce dealers, who is also selling onions at $1 per bushel. Loads of teasels have been passing through the village now and then. This is the best paying farm crop in this vicinity this year, and many farmers wish they had this crop instead of cabbage.—Skanateles Free Press.

The Place For Lovers.

Ian MacLaren wrote that Gaelic is the best of all languages for terms of endearment, that it has fifty ways of saying "darling." The old tongue of the Isle of Man, a picturesque island almost equally near to Ireland, Scotland and England, is said to be even better furnished with terms for the use of lovers, that it has or had ninety-seven ways of saying "my dear."

Irish Language.

The "natural language" of the Irishman is the Gaelic, the old Celtic tongue, which is still spoken, to a certain extent in Ireland, Wales, the Highlands of Scotland and northern France, where the remnants of the Celts are still dwelling.—New York American.
