A generation ago administrators, guardians, executors and trustees were individuals. They were almost always inexperienced, very often poor business men, frequently irresponsible and usually careless or neglectful. Already the discerning and well informed are placing such matters with trust companies. Tomorrow everybody will be doing so. Mankind always forsakes ultimately the faulty for the improved.

FOOLS THE COWS.

Dead Nettle Is Harmless, but Makes It self Look Dangerous.

In this case the joke's on the cow She's fooled into the belief that this little, harmless plant will bite her. The plant helps with the joke by masquerading as a dangerous weed, with real teeth, whereas it wouldn't hurt a flea. This plant is the dead nettle:

One of its cousins, the stinging nettle, covers itself with sharp, poisonous hairs. The cow has learned to avoid the weed. So the dead nettle makes up to look like its cousin, and the cow leaves it alone.

The dead nettle grows in waste places all over eastern United States. It isn't as useful as its near relative in the East Indies and in China, called ramie. This relative also is harmless and plays similar jokes on Chinese cows and other grazing animals.

But ramie furnishes a vegetable fiber which is stronger than hemp, as fine and shiny as silk. It is used in making cordage and nets, and paper made from it is used for banknotes.

So when the ramie imitates the sting. ing nettle it is protecting itself from grazing animals so it may grow into money.-Philadelphia North American Weighing the Mayor.

A mayor, particularly an English mayor, is traditionally a man of weight and substance, but there is only one municipality that insists that his honor get on the public scales and prove it. Of the thousands of quaint and curious customs still surviving in England this is perhaps one of the most odd. The mayor of High Wycombe has to be weighed on Nov. 9 of each year, inauguration day, and this custom has been observed for about six centuries. The mayor elect walks at the head of a procession consisting of the councilors, the beadle and the mace bearer. He is clad in cocked hat, silk stockings, blue coat and knee breeches. Upon reaching the town hall the mayor is placed upon the scales by the head constable, and a record of his avoirdupois is solemnly made in a book kept for this purpose.

A Snoring Child.

Snoring is a symptom that should not be neglected in children. It shows that there is some obstruction to the free passage of air from the nose to the throat. The tonsils may be enlarged and so partially close the pas sage at its lower opening. There may be a polypus or some small tumor in the nasal passage itself or catarrh of the throat or nose or both. A physician should be consulted:

Velocity of the Earth.

The velocity of the earth on its own axis exceeds, it is estimated, 1,000 miles an hour. The velocity of the earth around the sun is calculated to be 66,000 miles an hour, and the velocity of the moon is calculated to be 2,273 miles an hour.

A Bit of History Showing How the Term Came Into Use.

When you refer to a popular man in society as a "social lion" did you know that you are drawing on a bit of very remote history for the expression? The lion is anything but a social beast, and the figurative use of his name to designate a popular person came down to us in a most curious and roundabout way.

When Henry III. came to the throne of England, in 1216, there was a curious dispute as to the significance of the figures entering into the armorial bearings of Great Britain. There were three animals, "passant gardant," and they were spoken of as leopards. As a matter of fact, they were supposed to be lions. It was argued that there had been three leopards in the Tower of London in the reign of William the Conqueror and that these had given the motif for the emblem. Or it might have been that the Norman oppressor kept three leopards as a concession to the Saxons he had subjugated. Whatever the facts may be, Henry was satisfied that the conventionalized animals on seals, banners and coins were really lions, and in order to impress the fact he had three live and unmistakable "monarchs of the desert" brought to London and placed in the Tower. It at once became the fashion to visit the lions. When guests from out of the city were being entertained the great treat was that of a visit to the "lions of the Tower." After the sight had become commonplace and the meaning of the animals had been lost to sight the phrase remained. The "lion" was a statesman, actor or some other celebrity who held popular favor. -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WHISTLING JUGS.

Curious Musical Product of Peru's An cient Potteries.

The potters of ancient Peru used to manufacture an ingenious musical instrument which may very properly be called a whistling jug. In collections of antiquities it is called a silvador or silvio. Specimens are obtained from the ancient burial places of Peru. One of these consists of two vases whose bodies are joined one to the other, with a hole or opening between them. The neck of one of these vascs is closed, with the exception of a small opening, in which a clay pipe is inserted leading to the body of the whistle. The closed neck of this double vase is modeled into a representation of a bird's head.

When a liquid is poured into the open necked vase the air is compressed in the other, and in escaping through the narrow opening is forced into the whistle, the vibration producing the sounds.

Many of these sounds represent the notes of birds; one in the collection at the British museum imitates the notes of the robin or some other member of the thrush tribe peculiar in Peru.-Washington Star.

Rice In Ecuador. Rice is the principal article of diet of all Ecuadorians, rich and poor. The country produces excellent rice in limited quantities and imports largely. The crop is harvested in May by stripping the grains with the hands, the average yield being twenty bushels per acre. The rice growing lands are rented to small farmers, who sell the harvested crops to town merchants. The latter in turn send the grain to the rice mill, exchanging 160 pounds of the unhulled rice, if of good quality, A small boy was discussing the dif- for 100 pounds of the bulled product. If of inferior grade a larger toll is taken. This includes storage for six months. Some of the very small growers hull their rice with a flail and winnow it with the wind. The husks are thrown away, but the remaining waste is fed to the horses .- Exchange.

Something to Steal.

An English prisoner had for the tenth time been convicted for theft and to avoid punishment for his last offense had promised to enlist. The judge was greatly perplexed as to what degree of leniency he should deal out. Addressing the counsel, he remarked, "It is difficult to see what use such a man as your client would be in the army." Counsel for the defense seeing that the judge was in excellent humor, deciding a bit of facetiousness might accomplish what a tearful plea would not, replied, "Well, my lord, he might be usefully employed in stealing a march on the enemy.'

And Very Touchy, Too, Is the Devil's Coach Horse Beetle.

My, how very touchy he is! Point turns up his tail and opens his jaws, just as if he were a lion instead of a tiny beetle. He thinks he is going to him, anyway, because he is a very valuable sort of beetle-a tiny garbage man. He's called the devil's coach horse beetle.

WHISKYTOWN CHANGES NAME.

Now Called Schilling After Man Who Refused to Serve as Postmaster.

Schilling is to be the postoffice name of the town of Whiskytown, Cal., between Shasta and French Gulch, on the Redding-Weaverville stage route. The name Schilling has been decided upon by the postoffice department.

Stella is the old postoffice name of Whiskytown. The office was abandoned six years ago when the late John F. Schilling, who had been postmaster for several years, positively refused to serve longer if the department insisted on putting money orders in the office Schilling held out, and the office was abandoned. It has since been re-estab

How to Make Dream Cakes on Your Chafing Dish.

The easiest things in the world to make in a chafing dish are dream cakes, and everybody who likes a rarecan eat, unless he is willing to risk cies their name.

Press half a pound of soft rarebit cheese through a potato curler or a flaky cheese particles. Mix with the cheese half a cupful of sweet cream. Season with a pinch of salt, paprika, a dash of mustard and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Have ready slices of bread, cut rather thick and with the crusts trimmed off. Spread one slice thickly with the cheese, another slice down upon it and then brown the sandwich thus made in a chafing dish brazier in which butter is bubbling. When golden brown and crisp serve piping hot on a small plate. Do not have the sandwiches too large; Ordinary slices of bread, trimmed at the edges, may be cut in two diagonally to make three cornered dream cakes.

For Spring Brides.

A dainty and acceptable gift to tuck into the bride's traveling bag as a little surprise to her when her destination is reached is a boudoir set of cap and ribbon slippers. The whole output may be folded very small in its tissue paper wrapping and will take up scarcely any room at all in the bag-not as much as the handful of rice which is sometimes slipped in by a mischievous bridesmaid. The cap is an ordinary boudoir cap of white point d'esprit, filled with fine white lace and trimmed with the best quality satin ribbon in ments in a very satisfactory manner. pale blue or pink shade. A bow of the ribbon is caught against the cap with a tiny rhinestone buckle.

The slippers have very flexible soles, cut from pale blue or pink goldenrod satin; two layers of satin for each sole, and a thin layer of cotton batting may be slipped between if one fancies a little thicker sole. Two inch blue or pink satin ribbon is sewed around the edge of the sole and fastened together at the back. About two inches of the ribbon are gathered along the upper edge over cord elastic to hold the slipper on the heel.

Ragged Sailors.

Materials.-Two cupfuls flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half cupful sugar, an egg, one-half tea spoonful salt, three tablespoonfuls butter, one-half cupful chopped nuts, twothirds cupful milk.

Directions.-Sift the flour, salt and baking powder, rub the butter in; then add sugar and nuts. Mix to a soft dough with the egg and milk, roll out thin and sprinkle with sugar. Roll up with the sugar inside, cut in slices three-quarters of an inch thick, place on a greased baking tin, brush over with beaten egg and bake about fifteen Delegate to General Conference.

State Comptroller Eugene M. Travis was honored Friday, April 7, by the Lay Electoral Conference of the New York East Conference in being elected as one of the six delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church to be held at Saratoga Springs during the month of May. Mr. Travis is a member of the Hanson Place M. E. church, Brooklyn.

This General Conference is the law making body of the Methodist Episcopal church. It meets once in four years and is its highest ecclesiastical meeting. State Comptroller Travis was a member of the General Conference four years ago. At that conference he was elected vice president of the General Laymen's association of the church which has nearly four million members. He was also chairman of one of the prominent sub-committees and addressed the conference a number of times. There will be about 800 members at this conference gathered from all parts of the world.

An institution in which all local Methodists are deeply interested is their denominational hospital. Although located in Brooklyn, N. Y., K. Chamberlain of the town of the Methodist Episcopal hospital by Scipio bids fair to be the successful no means confines its activities to that city. Through some 2000 Mr. Chamberlain is a prosperous churches, it extends its healing farmer of Southern Cayuga to which ministry throughout a territory end the nomination now belongs, the which includes almost all of New retiring sheriff, Saffrine L. Depew York and goodly portions of five contiguous States.

The 28th annual report of the hospital has just been received by the local pastors. It contains a record which cannot fail to thrill the hearts of all who feel for the sick. Breaking all previous records the institution, in all departments, has ministered to 14,607 persons. Three fourths of the work was done free, or partially so, in accordance with the wish of its founder, George I. Seney, son of a Methodist minister, who contributed the site, and $410,-000 besides, on condition that Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, heathen or infidel, should be admitted on equal terms.

The hospital depends upon voluntary offerings, bequests, and income from private patients. By formal vote in their respective annual conferences, the Methodist churches in the territory described are expected to take an annual offering.

Schumann-Heink in Auburn.

The coming of Mme. Schumann-Heink, the world's greatest contralto, to Auburn for a grand concert at the State Armory on Easter Tuesday, April 25, has created more interest than all the former artists who have appeared in The World's Greatest Artists Course. The great Diva has sent one of her greatest programs for Auburn. The people from far and near are anxious to hear her as this may be her last visit to Auburn. The great sale will open at the Armory Saturday, 9 a. m., April 22. The prices range 50c, $1, 1.50 and 2.00. An elevated stage and 500 more seats will be secured so as to accommodate all. The weather by that time will be ideal and people can come in lautos. Special trains will be run on all lines. Aurora college will send a large delegation.

SCIENTISTS TELL OF PANAMA SLIDES

Say Navigation Is Not Likely to Be Stopped Again.

SEVERAL SUGGESTIONS MADE

Preventive Measures Such as Planting Vegetation and Construction of Proper Drainage System Urged. Look to the Future With Confi-

Navigation through the Panama canal is not likely a tain to be seriously interrupted by slides, and realization of the great purpose for which the waterway was constructed is assured in the near future, according to the finding of the committee of scientists appointed by the National Academy of Sciences at the request of President Wilson to investigate the problem.

A summary of a preliminary report by the committee was made public at the White House. Excessive rainfall was found to be one of the chief causes for the slides, and control of the falling water was the most important remedy suggested. The committee made detailed recommendations for the prevention of slides in future.

"The committee looks to the future of the canal with confidence," the report declares. "It is not unmindful of the labor necessary to deal with the present slides, and it realizes that slides may be a considerable but not an unreasonably large maintenance charge upon the canal for a number of years. It also realizes that trouble in the Culebra district may possibly again close the canal. Nevertheless the committee firmly believes that after the present difficulties have been overcome navigation through the canal is not likely again to be seriously interrupted. There is absolutely no justification for the statement that traffic will be repeatedly interrupted during long periods for years to come. The canal will serve the great purpose for which it was constructed, and the realization of that purpose in the near future is assured.

Precautions Urged by Scientists.

"The committee believes that some sliding ground will continue to enter the canal for several years to come, though in diminishing amounts. Any relatively inexpensive measures which tend to arrest the present active slides or which promise to reduce the charge against maintenance of the canal in the future are therefore fully warranted."

The committee believes that every available and practicable device should be used to turn rain from ground that are about to attack. I am sending you is sliding and prevent its entering adjacent ground, and it suggests the following measures:

"The committee believes that threatening ground bordering the slides, quiescent slides and, so far as practicable, active slides themselves, should be sufficiently covered with vegetation to prevent surface wash.

"Before extensive movements of the ground occur warning is frequently given by the appearance of cracks peripheral to the coming slide. As soon as they are formed they should be filled up in order that they may not Intercept surface water.

"Undisturbed and threatened areas near the slides should be thoroughly drained both by surface and by tile drainage, to keep as much water out of them as possible, for they may be come unstable, and they may supply water to the slides.

"A complete system of open drains slides and the water carried away as directly as possible.

"Drainage by means of tunnels might be adapted to a few special cases, but should be tried with caution and extended only in cases which promise results commensurate with the cost."

In summing up the history of the present slides the committee concludes that since the three great slides are all in the Culebra district this is the shief area of danger. This is the natwral consequence of the fact that by far the deepest part of the canal cut is in this district, and that the weakest of the geological formations, the Cuca rucha, is strongly developed here.

SHOOT AWAY $24,000,000.

Tremendous Cost of War Illustrated by the Battle of Verdun.

If the estimate of 2,000,000 shells is approximately the number fired in the great Verdun battle the financial outlay to the contending armies for artillery ammunition alone has been at least $20,000,000 to $24,000,000.

This estimate of army ordnance experts is based on the theory that the bulk of the fighting has been done with 75 centimeter field guns. Inasmuch as the Germans have made use of a considerable number of large fieldpieces and siege guns, the cost in artilshould be established on the great lery ammunition probably has been considerably more than $24,000,000.

> As the caliber of a gun increases the cost per round multiplies rapidly. The huge German guns which demolished the Liege fortifications and shelled Dunkirk from a distance of twenty miles or more hurl projectiles that cost many hundreds of dollars, the exact figures not being known,

> In addition to the enormous cost of artillery ammunition used in the Verdun fight, many millions of rounds of small arms ammunition have been consumed, the outlay for hospital service has been excessively high, while the loss of effective fighting units has been enormous on both sides.

The Road Leading Out of Washington to Chavy Chase, In Suburbs, Built In Many Sections of Different Types Under Direction of Government Ex-

There is at Washington a textbook in concrete, brick and stone-the road to Chevy Chase, built by the plans and under the direction of the office of public roads of the United States and for the sole purpose of informing the public and the members of congress interested in the improvement of the public highways upon the methods and cost of construction, types of roads, adaptability of material and economy of maintenance.

Thousands of people travel over this road, which is built in many sections of different types, every day, and hun-it from time to time and have marveled at the excellence of the work.

Manufacturers who have supplied bituminous materials for the treatment of the road have detached their the traffic over the road has demonstrated under carefully observed conditions the relative value of the several types of road making up this great highway.

The Chevy Chase road is experimental. It consists of different types of pavement-bituminous macadam laid by the penetration method, surface treatments of waterbound macadam, asphaltic surfaces on concrete foundations, bituminous surfaced concrete, plain and oil cement concrete and vitrified brick, all of which are under daily observation by expert road builders to ascertain which of the types is best suited to the traffic and which is Sell. condemned by practical test under the same conditions of climate, soil, rainfall, heat and cold and like traffic requirements. It would be just the same to the office of public roads which has written this open book in concrete, brick and stone whether any part of it or all parts of it should fail, fail in materials used, in construction, in durability, in cost, in maintenance.

Road building is a science now, and efficiency is the only test of quality. In the stones used in the construction of the Chevy Chase road, their specific gravity, their weight per cubic foot, their water absorption, their percentage of wear, their hardness and toughness are all determined by the most careful scientific tests. Patrolmen are 131 GENESEE ST., constantly employed on this road to keep account of whatever defects in materials and construction may develop and exact data as to the cost of maintenance.

In one of the experiments covering 1,581 square yards the cost per square yard for two and one-half inch bituminous wearing surface was 46.18 cents. This experiment was made in 1911. For the maintenance of surface there was no expense in the following two years, but in 1914 this expense was $79.70.

On another section of the road the cost per square yard for two and onehalf-inch bituminous wearing surface was 64.42 cents and for supplementary construction 13.20 cents. This experiment covered an area of 705 square yards, and in the three years from 1912 to 1914 inclusive there was no expense for maintenance,

All surfaces on this road were built of a uniform thickness of eight inches and of a total width of nineteen feet. in size from one to three inches, spread to a depth of five inches, the voids being filled with screenings. The wearing course consisted of stone ranging from one to two inches generally, and upon this course the bitumen was applied in two applications of approximately one and one-half to one-half gallon respectively. The cost of the stone used in the foundation and wearing courses varied according to the expense of quarrying and delivery, as it and an improved economic post- county (O.) schools get nine credit charges for maintenance exact account has been kept.

She flushed a little. "I expect I ought to 've written something, or one of the boys-"

"Oh, no; that was all right." "You can't think how busy we've all been this year, Bibbs. Of course we knew mamma was writing often,

"Of course!" he said, readily. "There's a chunk of coal fallen on your glove, Edith. Better flick it off before it smears. My word! I'd almost forgotten how sooty it is here." "We've been having very bright weather this month-for us." She blew the flake of soot into the air, seeming relieved.

He looked up at the dingy sky, wherein hung the disconsolate sun like a cold tin pan nailed up in a smokehouse by some lunatic, for a decoration. "Yes," said Bibbs. "It's very gay." A few moments later, as they passed a corner, "Aren't we going home?" he asked. "Your new driver is taking us out of the way, isn't he?" "Good gracious!" she cried. "Didn't you know we'd moved? Didn't you know we were in the new house?"

"Why, no!" said Bibbs. "Are you?" "We've been there a month! Good gracious! Didn't you know-" She broke off, flushing again, and then went on hastily: "Of course, mamma's never been so busy in her life; we all haven't had time to do anything but keep on the hop. Mamma couldn't even come to the station today. Papa's got some of his business friends and people from around the old-house neighborhood coming tonight for a big dinner and 'house warming'-dreadful kind of people-but mamma's got it a minute; and if she did, papa would

"Of course," said Bibbs. "Do you like the new place, Edith?"

"I don't like some of the things father would have in it, but it's the finest thing I like-a view of the Bay of Naples in oil that's perfectly beauti-I caught Bobby Lamborn giggling at it; and Sibyl made fun of it, too, with Bobby, and then told papa she agreed with him about its being such a fine bedded spouse. "My Lord!" he said. "Edith, you look-" he began, and thing, and said he did just right to insist on having it where he wanted it. She makes me tired! Sibyl!"

Edith's first constraint with her brother, amounting almost to awkwardness, vanished with this theme, though she still kept her full gaze always to the front, even in the extreme ardor of her denunciation of her sister-

"Slbyl!" she repeated, with such heat and vigor that the name seemed to strike fire on her lips. "I'd like to know why Roscoe couldn't have married somebody from here that would have done us some good, instead of this Sibyl Rink! I met some awfully nice people from her town when mamma and I were at Atlantic City, last spring, and not one had ever even heard of the Rinks! Not even heard of 'em!"

"I thought you were great friends with Sibyl," Bibbs said. "Up to the time I found her out?"

the sister returned, with continuing vehemence. "I've found out some things about Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan lately-'

"It's only lately?" "Well-" Edith hesitated, her lips setting primly. "Of course, I always did see that she never cared the snap of her little finger about Roscoel" "It seems," said Bibbs, in Isconic protest, "that she married him,"

The sister emitted a shrill cry, to be interpreted as contemptuous laughter, and, in her emotion, spoke too impulsively: "Why, she'd have married you!" "No, no," he said; "she couldn't be a girl who was so simply crazy to marry somebody she'd have married anybody that asked her."

"Yes, yes," said Bibbs; "it's all straight." And, perceiving that his sister's expression was that of a person whose adroitness has set matters perfectly to rights, he chuckled stiently.

"Roscoe's perfectly lovely to her," she continued, a moment later. "Too lovely! If he'd wake up a little and lay down the law, some day, like a man, I guess she'd respect him more and learn to behave herself!" " 'Bohave?' "

"Oh, well, I mean she's so insincere," said Edith, characteristically evasive when it came to stating the very point to which she had led, and in this not unique of her sex.

Bibbs contented himself with a noncommittal gesture. "Business is crawling up the old streets," he said, his long, tremulous hand indicating a vasty structure in course of erection. "The boarding houses come first, and then the-"

"That isn't for shops," she informed him. "That's a new investment of papa's-the 'Sheridan apartments.' " "Well, well," he murmured. "I supposed 'Sheridan' was almost well enough known here already." "Oh, we're well enough known about!" she said, impatiently. "I guess there isn't a man, woman, child or nigger baby in town that doesn't know who we are. But we aren't in with the right people." "No!" he exclaimed. "Who's all that?"

"You know what I mean: the best people, the old families-the people that have the real social position in this town and that know they've got

Bibbs engaged in his silent chuckle again; he seemed highly amused. "I thought that the people who actually had the real what-do-you-call-it didn't know it," he said. "I've always understood that it was very unsatisfactory, because if you thought about it you didn't have it, and if you had it you didn't know it."

"That's just bosh," she retorted. "They know it in this town, all right! I found out a lot of things, long before we began to think of building out in this direction. The right people in this town aren't always the societycolumn ones, and they mix around with outsiders, but they're a clan, just the same; and they have the clan feeling. Most of 'em were here long before papa came, and the grandfathers of the girls of my age knew each other, and-" "I see," Bibbs interrupted, gravely. Their ancestors fled together from many a stricken field, and crusaders' blood flows in their veins. I always understood the first house was built by an old party of the name of Vertrees, who couldn't get along with Dan'l Boone, and hurried away to these parts because Dan'l wanted him to give back a gun he'd lent him."

Edith gave a little ejaculation of alarm. "You mustn't repeat that story, Bibbs, even if it's true. The Vertreeses are the best family, and of course the very oldest here; they were an old family even before Mary Vertrees' great-great-grandfather came west and founded this settlement. He came from Lynn, Massachusetts, and they have relatives there yet-some of the best people in Lynn!"

"No!" exclaimed Bibbs, incredu-

"And there are other old families like the Vertreeses," she went on, not heeding him; "the Lamborns and the Kittersbys and the J. Palmerston

"Strange names to me," he interrupted. "Poor things! None of them have my acquaintance."

"No, that's just it!" she cried. "And papa had never even heard the name of Vertrees! Mrs. Vertrees went with

I met Mary Vertrees when I joined the Mission Service Helpers, but she never did any more than just barely bow to me, and since papa's break I doubt if she'll do that! They haven't called."

"And you think if I spread this gossip about Vertrees the First stealing Dan'l Boone's gun, the chances that they will call-"

"Papa knows what a break he made with Mrs. Vertrees. I made him understand that," said Edith, demurely, "and he's promised to try and meet Mr. Vertrees and be nice to him. Bobby Lamborn told Sibyl he was going to bring his mother to call on her and on mamma, but it was weeks ago, and I notice he hasn't done it; and if Mrs. Vertrees decides not to know us, I'm darn sure Mrs. Lamhorn 'll never come. That's one thing Sibyl didn't manage! She said Bobby offered to bring his mother-"

"You say he is a friend of Roscoe's?" Bibbs asked.

"Oh, he's a friend of the whole family," she returned, with a petulance which she made no effort to disguise. "Roscoe and he got acquainted somewhere, and they take him to the theater about every night. Sibyl has him to lunch, too, and keeps-" She broke off with an angry little jerk of the head. "We can see the new house from the second corner ahead. Roscoe has built straight across the street from us, you know. Honestly, Sibyl makes me think of a snake, sometimes -the way she pulls the wool over people's eyes! She honeys up to papa and gets anything in the world she wants out of him, and then makes fun of him behind his back-yes, and to his face, but he can't see it! She got him to give her a twelve-thousanddollar porch for their house after it

"Good heavens!" said Bibbs, staring ahead as they reached the corner and the car swung to the right, following a bend in the street. "Is that the new

What Becomes of the Earth Rodents

MYSTERIES IN HOLES.

Dig From Their Dens? I have found two weasels' dens on the margin of a muck swamp in the woods that presented the same insoluble problem as the chipmunk's holewhat has become of the bushel or more of earth that must have been brought to the surface? Both the weasel and the chipmunk have several galleries and one or more large chambers or dining halls, and how each manages to hide or obliterate all the loose soil that must have been removed is a question which has long puzzled me. If we had an American Fabre or a man who would give himself up to the study of the life histories of our rodents with the same patience and enthusiasm that the wonderful Frenchman has shown concerning the life histories of the insects he would doubtless soon solve the mystery. I used to think that the chipmunk carried away the soll in his cheek pockets, and I have so declared in one of my books, but I am now very certain that he does not-only his food stores are thus carried. - John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

Birds and Glass.

It has been frequently noticed that no wild bird can understand the properties of glass, and great numbers, ranging in size from a pheasant to a titmouse, are killed by flying against the windows of country houses. If a room possesses a large mirror reflecting the view seen through an open window birds are particularly liable to be deceived, and especially if frightened, into thinking that they can fly through it. Sparrow hawks will sometimes chase their intended victims into strange places. Some years ago a member of this species pursued a small bird through the open window of a railway carriage in motion. In its blind determination to secure the panting fugitive it entangled its claws in the meshes of the hatrack and was ignominiously slain by an astonished passenger with an umbrella.

Causes and Effects.

If man was to judge of causes by their effects there would be no small causes in the universe. In a nature where everything is connected, where everything acts and reacts, moves and changes, composes and decomposes, forms and destroys, there is not an atom which does not play an Important and necessary part; there is not as timperceptible particle, however minute. which, placed in convenient electricstances, does not operate the most poupacity to follow the eternal chain, in

WANTS SOCIETIES PRESERVED

Rochester, N. Y.-An urgent plea for the advancement of the homeopathic interests of the state, closer relationship in the practice and the emphasizing of the truth of "similia similibus curantur" was made by Dr. J. Iviney Dowling of Albany, president of the Homeopathic Medical society of the state, in addressing the annual meeting of the organization.

Under the energetic management of Dr. Dowling marked progress has been made by the society during the past year, and as the result of his efforts the meeting was one of the best attend ed in years.

"In establishing the importance of therapy," Dr. Dowling said, "the small dose, the virtues of potentiation and the single remedy, Hahnemann established himself and his immediate followers as specialists in therapeutics and specialists only. He recognized Auburn the need of surgery and all that pertains thereto, for in the first paragraph of the Organon he distinctly declares that the physician's first and only duty is to heal the sick.

"Bro_d Mind and Great Gauge."

"Apparently his mind at that time was broad enough and his gauge sufficiently great to comprehend that there was something more to the practice of medicine than the mere prescribing of drugs, and so I am sure that if he were alive in this twentieth century he would urge his followers to disclaim that theirs is a system of medicine. If I read his genius aright I am sure that he would have acclaimed that 'Homeopathy is a therapeutic drug specialty primarily governed by the law similia similibus curantur.'

"Clinical diagnosis is absolutely es sential for the proper and immediate relief of many cases, and the more thoroughly we understand the symp- herd of grade Jerseys and Guernseys toms of diseases the better able we will be to relieve the patients.

"Medicine today is made up of an aggregation of specialties, and so it is but right that since we are followers. of the first great specialist in medicine there should also be surgeons, gynecologists, obstetricians, oculists and any other that is necessary. "Leaders Second to None."

"The homeopathic leaders of the sev eral specialties are second to none in their various fields, but it is a unique thing to consider the fact that when they desire special recognition for their achievements they then seek some publication of the dominant school in rubber, beef and horse hides, deacon order to present their ideas to the medical fraternity. There are probably many who would say that such is the truth, and you cannot blame them, for it is in the nature of man to desire recognition for any good achieve-

"The preservation of homeopathic so cleties is necessary in order to permit the dissemination of truth that there is efficacy in drug therapy. We may not be able to explain why certain organisms will not exist when subjected to the influence of a given drug in potency, but that such is a truth none will gainsay if they have had any experience whatsoever in treatment of diseases by remedies prescribed home-

A Truth Needing Emphasis.

"By all means preserve your society, but do not attempt to do so with the idea that you are preserving a school of medicine, but do so with the understanding that there is a truth which needs emphasis and that for the proper preservation of this truth it is necessary to be supported by organized

"One criticism of homeopathic physicians may justly be ascribed to the fact that wherever they locate they are apt to become successful practiging. Their very success in practice down principles which were accepted chicks this season. Place by the surgical world at large. But as I have previously stated, this is not | this season. because they were homeopaths, but in spite of the fact. Therefore we should aim to make our hospitals research centers as to the clinical significance

"At the Homeopathic hospital in Albany I have been afforded the opportunity to establish a clinic in which we are now conducting original observations upon glaucoma and research into the varied mysteries that may arise from diseases of the several accessory nasal sinuses. Similar and allied work should be conducted at all our homeopathic institutions, and at these gatherings there should be an exchange of ideas so that we may evolve certain truths and arrive at conclusions that would be accepted by the world at large even though they be published
