HIS FRANKFURTERS

Germans Left Basket of Food The methods planned in Washington for For American in French Army.

DISPROVED FALSE REPORTS

After Papers Saying That Germany Had No Food Were Given Kaiser's Troops They Took Unique Method of Branding Them as Untrue-Expected Bullets, but Got "Hot Dogs."

Lieutenant Charles Sweeny of the French Foreign Legion returned recently to New York to recover from a wound received during the French offensive in Champagne last September. Sweeny is an American, a graduate of West Point and the son of a former president of the Federal Smelting and Refining company of Spokane, Wash. The following story of a most unusual "Dutch treat" was told by Lieutenant Sweeny to Private Casey, a New York artist, also fighting in the Foreign Legion:

Sweeny is not a Frenchman even though he happens to be in the army service of France. After his graduation he married a Belgian girl and settled down in Paris. His wife and two small children are living in that vicinity at the present time.

"I started out about midnight," said Sweeny, "with a patrol to have a look at a new German bayou between two fortlets beyond our lines. I strung my men out so as to give warning of any our sentries and the barbed wire. I was some distance abead of my men and had got well within the German lines without seeing or hearing anything of the Germans.

Bullets Never Came.

"Now, this was not the first time that I had ever penetrated that far into the German lines, but it was the first time on such a mission that I had not had to dodge a German patrol and very often their bullets. These things ran anywhere any minute and hear the the London Daily Mail as follows: began to wish myself well out of my predicament and back again in the comparative safety of our trench.

"This made me more cautious than As I did so a round German helmet bobbed up out of a ravine not a dozen yards away. An instant later at the other end of the ravine another appeared. I squirmed away like a snake and got behind the only shelter in sight, a little scrubby tree, about three yards awav.

"As I lay there quaking, wondering why the Germans did not shoot-for they must have seen me-I happened to look up, and there, hanging to a branch of the tree, was a fat, clean looking basket. I reached up, the limb on which it hung being only a few feet from the ground, and lifted the basket

"Then in a flash the explanation of the puzzle was clear to me. The Germans had left that basket there and meant me to have it.

"With the basket on my arm, I got up, bowed low to the round hats and walked back to our trench without ever being fired on.

"Inside the basket was an assortment of frankfurters and other food. There was also a note something after this wise:

tle present we send you herewith.' "Here was something that set me thinking pretty hard. I had escaped death or capture by a miracle, so far as I could see, and all in order that I might enjoy a hearty meal at the expense of the Germans.

"I set the basket down in the trench and fell to with a will, and I give you my word, Casey, of all the good things I have eaten I never enjoyed anything more than I did that Dutch treatespecially the frankfurters.

"They took me back to the United States immediately-'hot dogs,' the brightness of the sea, the yawping of barkers, crowds passing, the noise of thousands of shuffling feet-not the sort of shuffling we hear now, Casey, when a bugle call or the heavy sound of guns seems the chief attraction. It was a great shame I couldn't save you

"The meaning of all this was a puzzle to me until I found out that our boys had left a bundle of American and English newspapers in the spot where I had found the basket, with the paragraphs plainly marked in which it was said the Germans were starving. And the basket was the Germans' reply.

"Now you know how I came to get my 'hot dogs.' "

Some idea of what it means to patrol the Mexican border and the distances that must be covered in an invasion of Mexico is gained in the accompanying table. Of course an army traveling along the easiest routes would in some instances cover about twice as many miles as the distances given below.

From the eastern to the western end of the Mexican border the straight line distances are:

General Funston has decreed that only a few war correspondents shall accompany the American forces into Mexico.

The degree of censorship imposed by General Funston so far has been mild compared to that he can exercise under the army regulations. All private communications, whether they be of officers, soldiers, foreign attaches, newspaper correspondents or any other individuals, dispatched from the theater of operations are liable to censorship. A censor is authorized to suppress any statement that might be of value to the enemy or prejudicial to the welfare of the forces in the field.

All newspapers or journals in the theater of operations are subject to censorship, and they can be suppressed by the censor whenever he deems it expedient.

Each correspondent is required to file an application giving a brief history of his career and to take an oath of loyalty of the usual military form. Their employers are required to give bond for them. Men who have evidently secured credentials with a view to adventure rather than serious work as correspondents will not be received, and the secretary of war has power to

The regulations provide that an official photographer shall accompany each field army or other important independent field force. His films and plates will be sent to Washington promptly, where prints will be issued at a nominal cost to the press. No professional photographers and moving picture men will be received. Regular correspondents may carry small hand film cameras, but the films must be sent to the censor with the field forces or to the chief censor at Washington, where they will be developed and such of them as pass censorship will be sent to any given address. The chief censor in Washington shall be a commissioned officer. In this instance he is Captain Cootes, attached to the general staff. There is also a censor attached to General Funston's bendquarters, and General Pershing will also have a censor in the field. All correspondents' news or private dispatches, mail letters for publication, private letters, drawings and photographs must be submitted to the censor and receive his stamp before being sent.

The correspondent will not be allowed to send information concerning the occupation or relinquishment of a position, the news of any victory or defeat, the names of organizations or commanders, the disposition of troops. the state of supply or transport, the number of sick, the extent of losses or any other matters of information unless the dispatch or report containing such information is passed on and authorized by the censor. After censorship the correspondent will be shown what if anything has been elided by the censor. Any relaxation of these regulations rests with the commander of the field forces, in this case General Funston.

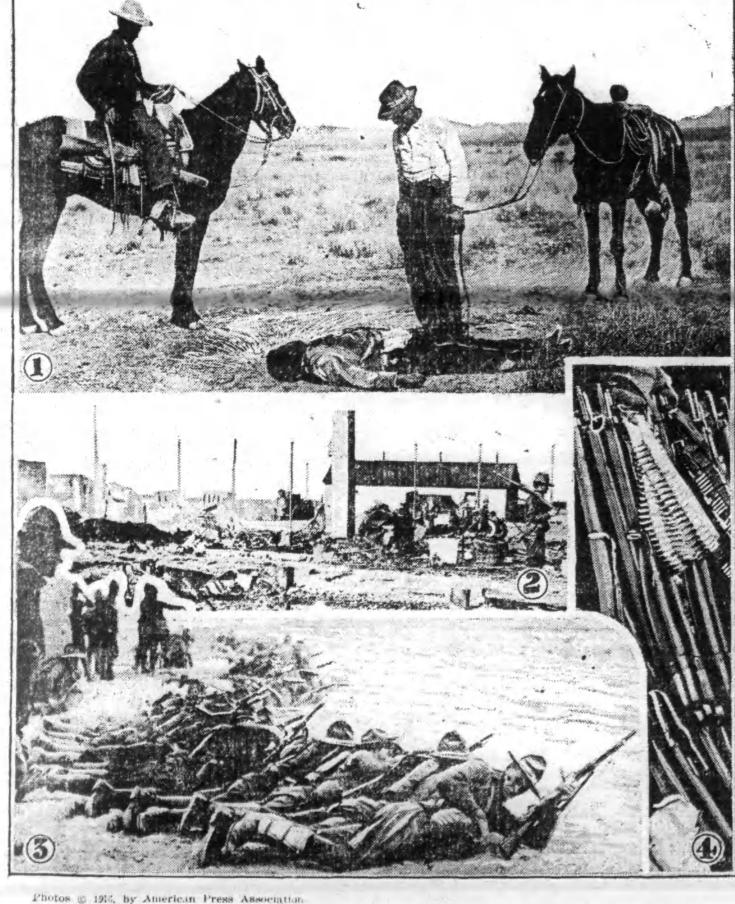

Liable to Arrest.

The official army telegraph lines are open to correspondents for the sending of dispatches when not occupied with official dispatches, but the dispatches will be sent in the order filed, and the censor shall say how many words may be sent. Within the censor's discretion correspondents may send messengers to carry censored dispatches to better wire facilities than those at the immediate front.

Correspondents are required to dress in the same olive drab uniform worn by the army, but each wears a white brassard on his arm marked with a C to designate his calling. No correspondent can leave the army to which he is attached, either to go home or any other place, without the consent of the war department.

Correspondents can be suspended for distortion of dispatches in the office of publication and also for the use of language or expressions conveying hidden meaning which would tend to deceive or mislead the censor. For extreme offenses they may be sent to the rear under arrest.

GENOA TRIBUNE MUDHOLES AND RUTS IN ROADS

Some Expedients For Making Them Passable,

DRAG THE EARTH HIGHWAYS

Temporary Repairs to Roads Should Be Confined to Emergency Measures. Unusual Conditions, However, Often Occur, and In Such Cases Use of Makeshifts Is Justified.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Temporary repairs to roads are or at least should be confined to emergency measures. In proportion to the results obtained temporary work is always expensive and is never justified by ordinary conditions. Unusual conditions, however, often occur to plague the road man. For example, the closing of a main highway to traffic because of construction, repair or washouts may suddenly throw a heavy traffic for a short time on a little used and probably unimproved highway. Clearly in such a case temporary expedients are legitimate.

The most common troubles met with in a case of this kind are mudholes and ruts if the soil is heavy and dust and loose sand if the soil is light or

On a clay or gumbo road mudholes usually cause the most trouble. As water is absolutely necessary for the existence of a mudhole, any treatment, whether temporary or permanent in character, must provide for getting rid of the water. The first step is, therefore, to dig a trench to the side and allow the water and mud to drain. If necessary, open up also the side ditches. Furthermore, remove all of the soft mud left in the mudhole. The bottom of the trench should be filled ter. with broken stone or coarse gravel, so as to provide a drain to prevent any further accumulation of water. Gravel is the best material for filling the old mudhole. If gravel is not available use the best earth at hand, tamping it down in three or four inch layers. If possible, spread a little gravel or sand over the new fill, which should be made slightly higher than the adjoining road surface. The best treatment of all, however, is to keep the drainage in good condition. Serious mudholes will then rarely develop. Don't try to fill a mudhole without first draining out the water and removing the soft mud. Don't try to fill it with large stones, because if this is done there will soon be two mudholes instead of one. Don't try to fill a mudhole with sods or similar material.

MUDHOLES CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE

which absorbs water readily. On an earth or gravel road ruts are best treated with the drag. Don't be afraid of dragging too often during a rainy spell. If a thin coat of sand or gravel be spread over the road surface when it has been softened by rain and then worked in by traffic and a liberal use of the drag a poor earth road can be much improved and made to carry a very heavy traffic for a short time.

In contrast to the clay or gumbo road the sand road gives least trouble during wet weather. On sandy roads anything that will prevent the free movement of the sand particles will be of value. As long as the road is damp the surface tension of the capillary water acts as a binder and holds the separate grains of saud in place. All efforts should, therefore, be directed toward preventing the sandy places from drying out or toward adding some binder. The addition of clay furnishes a positive binder and is really the best of way through the states are to be acand most permanent freatment. The addition of any fibrous material, such as straw, spent tanbark, sagebrush or pine needles is of value and, when spread on the road and covered with a thin coat of sand or allowed to work into the surface, will make an almost impassable sand road fairly good for scheme can be devised all main routes a time. #### WINTER CARE OF ROADS.

Keep Ditches and Drains Open and Use Road Drag.

Water, not cold, is the cause of the deterioration of roads in winter, according to the road specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Cold weather does not in itself injure roads, no matter whether they are earth, gravel or macadam. In fact. an earth road will stand more traffic when it is solidly frozen than at any other time. Excess water, however, is always detrimental to a highway. When cold weather turns this water into ice the damage that it does is greatly increased. Ice occupies considerably more space than the water from which it is formed, and every person who has lived in a cold climate is familiar with the powerful bursting effect of water when left to freeze in a confined vessel. The same action takes place when a wet road freezes to any considerable depth. It simply bursts or, as we generally term it in road parlance, the road heaves. Later, when the frost leaves, the road is disintegrated and ruts badly. If this process is repeated a number of times during the winter a gravel or macadam road may be practically destroyed, while an earth road may become entirely im-

A dry road will not heave. Rock. gravel, sand and even clay when perfectly dry contract slightly on freezing. In order to expand on freezing these materials must contain or be mixed with water, and the more water they contain the greater the expansion which takes place. But so long as the road remains frozen the damage does not become apparent; hence the frequent and erroneous idea that it is the thaw which injures the road. The injury was done when the water in the road froze and the particles of the road surface-broken stone, sand or still finer particles of earth or claywere pushed apart by the expanding power of the freezing water. The thaw merely allows the ice to melt and assume its original volume as wa-

During the winter whenever a thaw is coming on the cross drains and side ditches should be opened up as far as possible so as to prevent water collecting along the roadway. If the thaw is so pronounced that the roadway is softened the drag should be used. Sometimes one round trip of the drag with the hitch reversed will entirely rid the earth road of slush and melting snow and leave the road surface practically dry. Don't get the idea that the drag is not needed on your earth and gravel roads in the winter time. Instead, keep it where you can get at it readily, for if the winter is an ordinary one you will need it many times.

Bill For Defense Highway.

A national highway system, extending from coast to coast and costing not to exceed $100,000,000, is a new defense suggestion contained in a bill introduced in congress by Representative Stephens of California. The sale of fifty year 3 per cent bonds in denominations of $20 and multiples is proposed as the means of raising the fund.

The bill provides that the highway shall be constructed by army engineers and that its construction and use shall be under such regulations as the president may prescribe. It is provided that the national defense highway shall begin at Los Angeles, proceed by a practical route to Jacksonville, Fla., thence northward to New York and Portland, Me. At New York the westward trail would start for Chicago, thence to Minneapolis, thence through the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and Washington and thence down the Pacific slope to Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego. Rights quired by the president.

The highway authorities of Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine and New Hamp shire have agreed that if a simple in these states will be marked with distructive colors throughout their only watch the markings on the poles to avoid getting off the road.

WOMAN AND BABY HID DEEP IN MINE

"Just Sat There In Dark and Prayed," She Says.

BANDITS PASSED ABOVE HER

Stayed 1,500 Feet Underground For Two Days With Little Food and Waited Until the Danger Had Passed-Men In Community Were Away at the Time.

Mrs. Wallace Rogers of Detroit. Mich., arrived in El Paso the other day with her fifteen-month-old infant. She told how she had hidden with her baby from Mexican bandits for two days 1,000 feet and more down in the shaft of an abandoned mine near Cananea.

Mrs. Rogers' husband is interested in mining property near Cananea, but was away from home when the little colony fled on the approach of the bandits.

"The whole country around where I was living," said Mrs. Rogers, "was filled with abandoned mines, the shafts of some of which had been sunk 2,000 feet or more. Most of the American men were away when we heard of the approach of the bandits.

"We fled to one of the abandoned mines, carrying whatever food we could snatch up. One of the men took my baby, and we crawled down an abandoned shaft by ladders until we reached the 1,000 foot level. Here we remained for twenty-four hours.

Go Down Deeper.

"Finally, as we heard no shooting, one of the men ventured to the surface. He reported everything quiet, and we returned to our homes.

"We had hardly reached there, however, when we again heard the bandits were coming. This time we went down to the 1,500 foot level, where we remained another day. We were in a little spot about ten feet square. We had no lights of any kind, and I had only a couple of cans of milk to feed my baby.

"We just sat there on the floor in the blackness and prayed. At last we could stand it no longer. I think we would have all gone mad if we had stayed there. We crawled up into the sunshine. There was no sign of the bandits, and we made our way safely to Cananea, where we got a train."

Mrs. Rogers declared the Mexican bandits not only had no respect for the American flag, but that it actually incited them to outrages. The only flag that offered any protection at all, she said, was the British flag.

Union Jack Respected.

"I am bitterly ashamed to admit it." she said, "but whenever trouble started we began to hunt for a 'union jack." It was by no means a bullet proof shield, but it was the only flag I ever saw the Mexicans paid any deference

"There was a young Englishman who committed suicide where I was. The Mexicans thought he was an American, and they hurriedly dug a shallow hole and were going to put him away without ceremony when the officer in command overheard some one say: 'I wish we knew where his mother is so we could notify her. She is somewhere in England, but I do not know where.'

"The officer stopped the burial and asked if the suicide was an Englishman. When he learned he was he ordered the body preserved and tried for four days to get in touch with an English consul."

Refugees continue to arrive in El Paso and at other points along the border, but the majority of them refuse to discuss conditions in Mexico in any way, as they fear their property in that country would be destroyed if they aroused the resentment of the Mexi-

Everybody Ready For Any Emergency. Even the Railroad Brakemen Are Armed-Funston Denies That Censorship Is Imposed to Test Sentiment For the Future.

The Rio Grande and the west Texas border district is tense, expectant, armed and alert, but to say that it is aflame over the Mexican situation is to exaggerate, writes one correspondent there. He sees Americans and Mexicans standing peacefully together on the station platforms. The Mexicans hold aloof and are silent, but appear neither terrified nor menacing. The Americans seize the papers as they are flung from the train, eager for the latest news of developments across the line. The Mexicans merely stand there.

Everybody is talking Villa and little else. The Columbus episode has quickened the pulse of the border and worked out a paradox. It has brought a new life to the frontier by bringing back the old. Remington died too soon. He should have seen his southwest today. Men such as he so loved to draw, spurred and booted and with six shooters on their hips, clumped along the station platforms or waved hats from behind a barbed wire fence. It is men of this type who are piloting Pershing's expedition in Mexico.

In the Pullman smoker of the Southern Pacific train speeding toward El Paso the brakeman, C. D. Lassiter, a Texan, flung back his coat and with pride displayed an old single action Colt 44.

"Bables hereabout used to be born with one of these on," he said, "and the fashion's comin' back."

General Funston himself, directing he expedition from San Antonio, is nearly 700 miles from the scene of action, a distance that is increasing daily if the columns push westward. Kitchener, in the war office in London, was far closer to the British front in Flanders, and to reach the trenches from England was vastly more simple than traveling from Fort Sam Houston to Columbus, N. M.

General Funston denied the report that in clamping a censorship on news from the front he was feeling out the American public with a view to determining how far the army could go in the future in the matter of exacting journalistic discipline.

General Funston said the censorship would be no more rigid than that imposed at Vera Cruz at the time of the American occupation.

Not for many years have the children of New York enjoyed such a winter as the weather man has provided this year. There have been half a dozen snowstorms, and some of the time the lakes have been covered with ice for skaters. You may easily believe that skates and sleds have been much in use. Little New Yorkers do not let such opportunities go to waste, for some of them remember winters when there was not snow or ice enough to give them a chance to enjoy the sports of winter. The young lad in the picfure has probably seen very little snow In his lifetime. However, he is making up for whatever time he has lost. His name is Duncan van Norden, and he was shoveling snow in Central park when the camera man happened along.

The Chickens' Surprise Party. In southern California the dry season lasts from six to eight months, so there were some good sized chicks in our yard that had never seen rain, writes a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farm.

One morning a little cloud suddenly began to send down some big drops on the dry soil. The chicks evidently thought some one was throwing grain to them. They flew at the drops, this way and that, trying to pick them up. Peck as fast as they would they could not get a bite of anything. They heard the pattering; they saw the spots on the ground; they jumped about like crazy chickens, pushed each other about and looked skyward in their funny sideways fashion.

When the shower became heavy they flew to shelter, huddled together and cheeped pitifully. How we wished we could have understood what they said to each other about then!

The River Jordani

Among famous rivers must always be included the Jordan, nearly as sacred to Christians as the Ganges is to the Hindus, because of the baptism of Christ in its waters. The Jordan, except near its source, is below the level of the ocean, and the Dead sea, where it empties, is a quarter of a mile below the surface of the Mediterrahean.

There are four old fords of the Jordan. At one of these on the Monday before Easter the pilgrims of the Greek church, often thousands in number, who have come down from Jerusalem escorted by Turkish soldiers, perform the well known ceremony of bathing in the sacred stream. A short distance below this is the point where the river loses itself in the lifeless waters of the #### Natural Snow Bridges.

A slow thaw, following a heavy fall of snow, is almost sure to form, here and there, miniature natural bridges of snow, over which a rabbit or even a fox might run without crushing the short span. According to the lay of the land, the melted snow water collects at a certain place and gradually eats its way under another part not melting so rapidly, and this tunnel, growing larger from the increasing water, soon forms the span. In the same manner natural bridges of earth and rock are formed after hundreds of centuries of erosion, while the snow bridges are formed in a few hours and eften disappear as quickly.

Absentminded. One of the Lords Dudley was a most absentminded man. "One day," said Sydney Smith, "he met me in the street and invited me to meet myself. Another time on meeting me he put his arm through mine, muttering, 'I don't mind walking with ifim a little way; I'll walk with him as far as the end of the street.' He very nearly overset my gravity once in the pulpit. It Was Paid. As the gas bill of a "portable" theater showing in a provincial town for a month had not been paid at the week's end, when it became due, a man appeared on the Monday night following to cut off the supply if the bill were not paid on the spot.

The doorkeeper remonstrated with him, pointing out that the manager was on the boards at the time and could not possibly leave the stage for an hour-the gas man might call then. "No," said the gas man, obdurately, 'I'm going to cut it off now."

"Hold hard," said the doorkeeper. "I will go and tell the manager."

Disguising himself in a huge red cloak and a great felt hat with a drooping feather, and a sword at his side, he walked on the stage with the words, "Behold, my lord, the man stands at the castle gate waiting to be remunerated for the glimmers, and if not seen instantly darkness threatens us."

A CULINARY COMEDY.

One of the Trials of a Husband Whose Wife Can't Cook.

They were a newly married couple. The wife, though a fair cook, did not know how to make the things his mother had prepared. And this vexed the husband, although he was disposed to be indulgent for the sake of harmony. But there was one point upon which he sorrowed not a little. His wife could not make edible corn bread, and corn bread was the food upon which he was reared.

One day a girlhood friend of the wife visited her and, after assisting in the preparation of luncheon, accepted an invitation to stay and eat it with the newlyweds. The husband arrived, and the guest and he took their places at the table while the wife went to the kitchen to bring some forgotten dish. Before his plate was the husband's corn bread, but it was a miserable failure, a sickly yellow, flat and heavy. He became confidential.

"There is one of the trials of a husband whose wife can't cook," he said apologetically to the guest. "Just have a look at that corn bread. But you mustn't let the wife know what I said, for it would hurt her feelings."

When the wife entered the room a few moments later she noticed that a deep blush suffused the guest's face. "Why, what is the matter, dear?" she asked.

"It's nothing," the guest replied hur riedly.

An hour later, after the husband had gone to the office, the chorus of two nearly everything he has to say with a laughing women's voices merrily resounded through the household of the newlyweds.

LABOR AND PROHIBITION.

"The trend of sentiment of organized labor is towards prohibition," said Richard Jones of Duluth, a member of the Minnesota state senate, speaking before the Scandinavian Socialist organization,

"Some trade union leaders claim that prohibition would make for nonemployment. If this is so why have locomotive engineers to the number of 70,000 indorsed it? If prohibition is inimical to the interests of labor. why did the southern labor congress, composed of men from nine southern states, refuse to ask for a repeal of the prohibition laws of the South when requested to do so by the United Brewery Workmen of America? Local labor leaders may insist that the saloon is a poor man's club, but the American Federation of Labor at its convention at Toronto condemned the use of that term.

"We are urged not to vote men out of employment in a business which is destructive to society. I would vote those men out of that employment and into something valuable to themselves and their fellow men. I would like to have a chance to vote about 5,000,000 men in Europe out of their present jobs. If this principle applies in one case why not in another? To advocate peace in Europe would throw thousands of workmen in America who are engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war out of their present employment, but thousands of trade unionists and Socialists are today doing all in their power to spread antimilitaristic propaganda among their fellow workers."

SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY.

In the judgment of many, it is difficult to understand why preparedness to meet a remotely possible attack by a foreign foe should take precedence over preparedness to conquer and overwhelm a known foe in our midst, who is every day defying us, and whose toll of death and disease rivals that of the battlefields of Europe, says sons may be called upon at some future time to defend the safety of this country from an alien enemy, but there is a positive certainty that every day and night of every week until the liquor traffic is put out of existence it will injure thousands of our young men, physically, mentally and spiritually; and that this injury will not end with this generation, but will affect disastrously the next generation.

A policy so short-sighted that it neglects to guard against a recognized, immediate, continuing peril of gigantic proportions in order to prepare for one which may never have to be faced, is unworthy of enlightened America.

Have the pot roast in a tight vessel and boiling hot when it is placed on the radiator, then cover and let cook until tender. #### Eternal Life, a Present Possession

By REV. WM. W. KETCHUM Director of Practical Work Course Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT-These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.—I John 5:13.

God has given one book in the Bible particularly to tell us how we may have eternal life; that book is pel by John; if you are a Christian and not sure of your salvation, you should study the First Epistle of

After John Wesley had been preaching some time, but without results, someone said to him: "Are you sure, Mr. Wesley, of your salvation?" Wesley replied he was sure that provision had been made for his salvation. "But, are you sure, Mr. Wesley, that you are saved?" It went like an arrow, and he had no rest until he was sure of his salvation.

But is it not presumptuous for one cannot be surpassed in comparison to say, "I know I am saved?" Certainly not, if one really does know he is saved. It honors God and Christ, "for by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of your-Chicken a la Fireless .- Prepare the selves, it is the gift of God." It can our fathers, brothers, husbands and lid and fasten tightly. Cook three be if your assurance centers in Christ.

> save you. No church on earth can save a man. It's sad, but true, there are undoubtedly multitudes of unconverted church members who are lost. It is not the church, but Christ, who "There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

It you are depending upon your morality, it won't save you. Nothing is quite so dishonoring to God and Christ as a sinner's boastful righteousness, which God says is in his sight as filthy rags. To pay your debts, to be a good, true husband or wife, parent or neighbor, does not constitute you a Christian. A Christian is one who, having accepted by faith the Lord Jesus Christ as his Savior, is born from above. Thus he becomes a partaker of the divine nature and will manifest in his life the life of Ged. See Titus 3:5.

Again, let me say that you are not saved because you feel you are saved. You can feel saved, and be lost. I board a train. Someone says, "Are you sure you are on the right train?" 'Oh, yes, I'm on the right train." "Well, how do you know you are?" "Oh, because I feel I am." sense," the person would say. "You can't depend upon your feelings in this matter; what you need is not feeling, but fact." So the right order in the matter of salvation is fact, faith, feeling. If I can believe what man says, assuredly I can believe what God says. See I John 5:9-13.

We do accept the testimony of men; why then should we not accept the testimony of God who says "He that hath the Son hath life?" The matter for us to decide is whether we have the Son or not, for upon this depends whether we are saved or not. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life," John 3:36. It is for us to receive by faith God's gift of his Son. If we really and truly do this, God will do his part-give unto us eternal life.

To believe on the Lord Jesus Christ is not simply to believe that he is spoonful of onion and half a lemon, the Son of God, the Savior of the world. "The demons," we read, "bejelly, either current or gooseberry, and lieve and tremble." Saving faith is a personal appropriation of Christ as one's own Savior.

When I was a boy I was greatly helped by the testimony I used to hear in the Railroad Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoons, from old Mr. Bab-Presbyterian church, Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Babbage had the palsy and with faltering, stammering tongue he gave his testimony. So far as I can remember it never varied and today I thank God for the oft-repeated testimony of his child. Leaning heavily on the chair in front of him, in faltering accents he would say: "John three thirty-six, He -that believeth-on the Son-hath, h-a-t-h, present tense, thank God, everlasting life."

That testimony burned its way into the heart of the boy who today thanks God for eternal life, a present pos-

Although serious, grip is not often fatal, though there may be fatal complications, of which pneumonia is the most frequent. Cold in the head alone is frequently called grip and, although usually only an annoyance to adults, may be serious in young children, causing diseases of the ear and mastoid. Tonsilitis and quinsy sore throat are also erroneously called grip. People catch these diseases by breathing into their noses and mouths the fine spray from the noses and mouths of persons who have the disease. This fine spray is produced by the act of coughing, sneezing and talking and may be carried from the affected person four or five feet through the air.

To avoid grip, colds and tonsilitis (1) keep in good physical condition, (2) get plenty of sleep with windows open, (3) avoid crowded and badly ventilated places, (4) do not get near people who have coughs and colds, (5) do not get close to people while talking, (6) keep your feet dry and (7) don't clothe too warmly and become overheated.

If you get a bad cold, sore throat or have fever (1) send for a reliable physician. (2) turn your head away from people when coughing and sneezing, (3) do not go near children, (4) do not take remedies without competent medical advice and (5) take care of a cold. Many colds develop into bronchitis or

FOR LIGHT HOUSEKEEPING.

How to Run Your Fireless Cooker Without Fussing.

There are a number of things which a housewife must keep carefully in mind if she is to have success with her fireless cooker and make it save her time later and expense. One is that if food is left indefinitely in the cooker Your church membership does not it will sour. Soups, stews, vegetables and such things must be removed after twenty-four hours and less in hot weather.

Another thing is that some foods require a longer time on the fire before being put in the cooker than others do. Cereals may require only ten minutes and tough meat half an hour. It is best to find out something about the length of time the different things require before beginning to use the cooker. Generally speaking, all indigestible things require longer cooking than other things. Oatmeal, beef stew, corned beef and beans need more time than steamed puddings, rice and chicken.

A third thing that should never be forgotten is this: Everything that takes a long time to cook is improved and the process hastened if when the time is half up the pail is removed and reheated without opening it and put back

How to Make Cutwork, Which Is Coming In Again.

You must have at least one piece showing a cutwork design if you wish to be up to date in the needlework field. This type of fancy work is being revived very strongly and is used for cushions, runners, scarfs, etc. The work is very simply done, as it calls for nothing more than the buttonhole

Either side of the portion of material that is to be cut out is first outlined with a running stitch. It is then buttonholed, the purled edge facing inward. When you come to a place where a bar is indicated, stitch over to the other side and return on the same thread by wrapping it around and around your needle; then proceed with the over and over stitch until you come to the next bar, when you repeat. Instead of wrapping the thread around the needle many embroiderers make buttonhole stitches across each bridge so that the bridge will be firm.

Protect the Birds.

The amazing thing proved by the scientific investigation of recent New Machines to Have Steel Plates on years is that almost none of the song and game birds is really injurious to the farmer or poultry raiser. Only a very few species prey on crops or chicken yards. This has been proved aviation school at San Diego, Cal. by analysis of stomachs of birds by the Bureau of Biological Survey of department hereafter, it was said, were the Department of Agriculture. They have made more than a hunared thousand of these analyses. Through them it has been shown the same type as those which Amerithat the big birds as a rule feed on mice and frogs and reptiles and worms, the smaller ones on insects of various sorts and weed seeds. In other words, they are the farmers' best friend. Henry W. Henshaw, chief of the Biological Survey, has said that without insectivorous birds "it is more than likely-nay, it is an hour, carrying pilot, observer and almost certain—that within a limited time not only would successful agriculture become impossible, but the destruction of the greater part of vegetation would follow."-Baltimore Sun.

AMERICANS WASH TOO MUCH. SECRETARY REDFIELD SAYS

-Somerville (N. J.) Journal.

As a Result the Old Rags Are Not Good For Making Paper.

No one ever accused a man with side whiskers with being afflicted with a sense of humor, but when Secretary of Commerce Redfield announced that American rags were of little use to the manufacturers of paper because the "American people wash too much" there was a burst of laughter which ran country wide.

It appears that the raw material for the manufacture of paper is running extremely low-so low that the manufacturers are becoming seriously alarmed. The secretary some time ago issued a call to the country to save its old rags. This call met with considerable response, especially when it was explained that the European war had therefore being in his 84th year. At virtually shut off the importation of rags into this country.

Secretary Redfield thereupon issued a grave warning that citizens of the United States were washing too much dustry. He followed it later with a call, however, for such material. More than 1,000,000 copies of the announcement have been sent broadcast throughout the United States and will be posted in postoffices and other public places. Chambers of commerce and other commercial organizations also have been enlisted in the crusade.

ELECTRICITY IN A PUDDLE.

Believe Shoe Dealer Adopted Novel Method to Sell Rubbers.

Whether one of the department stores of Waukesha, Wis., is trying a scheme to stimulate the sale of rubbers has not been made known, but suspicion points a questioning finger.

A puddle of water which completely covered the sidewalk became charged with electricity, and every "unrubbered" person who passed received a sharp shock. Women appeared to be better conductors of the current than men, and screams frequently could be heard for a block or more.

A dog which innocently stepped into the water jumped three feet into the air and then before skulking away with its tail between its legs snapped at several newsboys who had gathered to watch the fun-Chief of Police Don McKay arrived after the pool had been exposed for a half hour and warned pedestrians, while linemen shut off the current.

Have Erected 135 Memorials. Members of the high school of technology in Berlin have thus far erected 135 memorial tablets to their comrades who have died at the front. The first of these was for the well known architect and bistorian Dr. Heinrich Lattermann, who fell at Liege in the first days of the war.

FREAKS OF FASHION.

How a Fad For Wearing Ribbons In the Hair Was Started.

Dress experts keep changing the fashions, as it were, in self defense. At one time elaborately worked and hand embroidered blouses were the vogue. Then machines were so perfected that machine embroidered blouses outrivaled the hand work, and fashion experts retaliated by designing blouses as plain as possible.

The fashion for uncurled feathers was the result of a wet day. Curled ostrich feathers were on every hat, when at some fashionable function the rain descended in torrents and every feather was soon absolutely straight. Milliners, always alert for an idea. were struck with the appearance of these feathers, and uncurled ostrich plumes became the demand.

The fashion for wearing ribbons intermingled with curls piled on the top of the head originated in the reign of Louis XIV. of France. A certain Mlle. Fontage was out hunting with the king and court when a branch of a tree caught her hair and pulled it down. With quick resourcefulness she leaned down, pulled off her ribbon garter and twisted up her hair with it The king, noticing the pretty effect, complimented her on her charming coiffure, and from that moment the "fontage," as it was termed, became the rage.-Philadelphia Ledger.
