COUNT not the cost of honor to the dead. The tribute that a mighty nation pays To those who loved her well in former days Means more than gratitude for glories fled; For every noble man that she hath bred Lives in the bronze and marble that we raise Immortalized by art's immortal praise, To lead our sons as he our fathers led. These monuments of manhood strong and high Do more than forts or battle-ships to keep Our dear bought liberty. They fortify The heart of youth with valor wise and deep; They build eternal bulwarks and command Immortal hosts to guard our native land.

To Change Memorial Day.
A bill to make the first Sunday in June the time for the celebration of Memorial day instead of May 30 was introduced into the Indiana legislature not long ago. It has been felt for some time by members of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish War Veterans that the celebration of Memorial day was marred by the making of the day into a time for sports and games, thus losing sight of the real meaning of the celebration. Several posts of the G. A. R. and ministerial bodies have in times past sent communications to the governor of Indiana urging him to stop some of the sporting events that have annually occurred on Memorial day, but the governor has been powerless to do so. It is said that if the day is celebrated on Sunday every year the people will more nearly appreciate the true spirit of the day and what it stands for.

The Romans' Memorial.
The Romans frequently covered the couch on which the dead lay with leaves and flowers. After burial the grave was decorated with fresh flowers on feast days. Growing plants, too, were planted about the last resting place, and if they grew and flourished it was taken as an evidence that the departed ones were happy.

A MEMORIAL DAY POEM
The Day of the Dead
By NINETTE M. LOWATER.

WHEN the days grow long and the grasses glisten
Impearled with tears the night has shed,
When birds all sing and the trees all listen,
There comes to us the Day of the Dead.
Dearer far than gems or than golden treasure
Is their dust, whose memory Honor keeps,
And the Nation leaves its toil and its pleasure
To garland each bed where a hero sleeps.

WE have grown old; they are young forever,
With glory's halo around each head.
Our names will die, but forgotten never
Are those on the roll of the Nation's dead.
Past are the pain and the bitter aching.
Our sacred dead are their country's now,
And the hearts that throbb'd well nigh to breaking
Calmly above their ashes bow.

PEACE to them—peace forever and ever!
Here shall no rude alarm intrude.
The jarring world shall disturb them never.
They know not of war or war's interlude.
Bring to their graves no thought of sorrow.
Why should we mourn o'er our country's dead?
Their fame shall grow bright through many a morrow
And shine like the stars when the day has fled.

BRING laurel and pine for their memory immortal,
And roses, red roses, to emblem the love
Which follows them, even through the dark portal,
And pansies, for thought of their welcome above.
Bring roses—white—for their purpose holy,
And mid the sweet flowers which are strewn at its side,
Whether his rank was high or was lowly,
Set the Banner of Stars, for which each one died.

"Passing On"
Lewis S. Pilcher, M. D., LL. D., surgeon general of our great veterans' organization, the Grand Army of the Republic, in an interview by Edward Marshall, printed in the New York Times, said:

"The time has come when the law of nature makes it necessary for us to look forward to a constant and increasingly rapid decrease through death in the membership of the Grand Army, just as those who now are our friends and brothers in the south, but who in the years of the great war we deemed our enemies, must contemplate a similarly tragic spectacle among their veterans.

"The membership of the Grand Army is decreasing by geometrical ratio, and of course its decrease may be exclusively attributed to the work of the Great Reaper.

"Up to a few years ago we continually were adding new members to our roll—men who for one reason or another had not previously joined, although fully qualified to do so.

"Today a new member occasionally is admitted, but the inflations in the posts throughout the country are so rare that they have become extraordinary events.

"I am the last of men to say that I regret my service in the civil war—I glory in it. I am even the last of men to say that I regret the war itself. I glory in that, too, for it was a war for right, and with its end, right triumphed.

"But, also, I am the last of men to let slip any opportunity for voicing a regret that the imperfect management of men produced a complication in the nation which only war could straighten out."

Sailors' Memorial
"I was thinking of the folks at home and what Memorial day means to them," said Stephen E. Whitney when asked what prompted him to build and launch eleven years ago on the Potomac river a boat loaded with flowers in memory of the men of the United States navy killed at sea.

"By the folks at home I mean those wives, mothers, fathers and sweethearts who waited in vain for the homecoming of their beloved sailor boys. They have never had the consolation of placing a wreath of flowers on the grave where rests all that is near and dear to them.

"The homecoming of a soldier, even though he was but bullet ridden, lifeless clay, was some consolation to those who waited for that homecoming. The fact that the dear one was buried with love and honor was something, and the assurance that the spot where he rests will never be forgotten, that loving hands, prompted by grateful hearts, will strew flowers over his grave on each succeeding Memorial day in a measure brings consolation.

"But what of those who waited in grief stricken suspense for the sailor boys who never returned? All that they ever knew was through a brief message from the navy department, telling them that their dear ones fought bravely to the last; then, quietly and unafraid, they went down beneath the waves which were crimsoned by their life blood.

"In my own home town nearly every home contains some token of their soldier dead, but the faded letter from the navy department is all that the home folks of the sailor dead have to commemorate the fact that their heroes went down with the ship. It is for these that I built and launched the first flower laden boat."

Sudden Death in Venice.

Franklin Hutchison, an aged and lifelong resident of Venice Center, was found dead last week Thursday, about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Caroline Kenyon, about 1 1/2 miles south of Venice Center where he was staying alone for a time. Mr. Hutchison called at the home of Chas. Crawford, a near neighbor, every day. He was there on Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, and seemed as well as usual. When he did not call the next morning as was his custom, an investigation was made and he was found dead on his bed. Dr. B. K. Hoxie of Sherwood, who was immediately summoned, stated that the man had been dead a couple of hours and pronounced death due to heart disease. The body was removed to the home of his son, Arthur Hutchison, where the funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended. Rev. E. E. Warner, pastor of the Venice Baptist church officiated. Interment was made in Venice Center cemetery. Besides his son Arthur, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Ettie Botsford of Rochester and Mrs. Grace Lurcox of Johnson City, N. Y., one sister, Mrs. Caroline Kenyon of Venice Center, and three brothers, Amos of Venice Center, John of Auburn and Alpheus of Moravia.

—In 1915 the zinc properties in St. Lawrence county, N. Y., were actively developed, and a 200-ton mill was in successful operation during the later part of the year. The Northern Ore Co. was the only producer of zinc in the State in 1915, but it is probable that at least one other company will operate in 1916.

—Advertising is like the railroad, the trolley, the telephone, the school—a creator of human activity. It is a force for the wider and quicker dissemination of information. It brings within our ken things that we never knew existed, or never thought we wanted. It teaches us to want things a little beyond our grasp and to work a little harder in order to get them.

—Governor Whitman vetoed the Argetsinger Committee amendment to the Labor Law, one which would have permitted women to work 12 hours a day in canneries during the rush season. In his veto memorandum, the governor expressed the opinion that the proposed cannery amendment "might be continually abused and would make more difficult the enforcement of the Labor Law."

—A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Chas. Horton at West Groton, formerly of East Genoa, on Saturday evening, May 20, to help celebrate her birthday. Mrs. Horton was completely surprised. A number of gifts were left to remind her of the occasion. The evening was spent with music and games. Bountiful refreshments were served and all enjoyed a fine time, wishing her many more birthdays.

—Despite the downpour of rain, Monday evening, a dozen members of the Cornell Study club attended the meeting that evening. It was greatly regretted that the entire club were not present to hear the excellent address given by Miss Louise T. Montgomery of Auburn, teacher of domestic science at the Woman's Union. She said home-making is a profession—women should know it as a business profession, and girls are now being trained for it. It is really a study of how to live and care for our bodies rightly. The talk relating to food values and well-balanced menus was especially interesting to housekeepers, and at the close Miss Montgomery answered many inquiries made by the ladies. A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Montgomery for her kindness in coming and for the interesting talk. It is hoped she may address the club again.

—Wednesday afternoon will be observed as a half holiday by Auburn stores during the summer.

—What is advertised as the first "barberless barber shop" in the world has been opened in Chicago, where for a dime and with no tip, no conversation, no pleadings for a shampoo or a massage, a man may shave himself. A wash basin, hot and cold water, razor of any style, mug, brush, soap, towel and powder are furnished. The proprietor said that the first day's business was rushing.—Ex.

Memorial Exercises in Genoa.

Prof. E. J. Anderson of the Public Speaking department, Goldwin Smith Hall, Cornell University, has been secured to make the Memorial day address in Genoa. It is hoped that there will be a large assemblage of the people of this village and surrounding community at the exercises to be held next Tuesday morning. The plan is to have the line of automobiles conveying people to the cemetery, where the program will be given, leave the business center of the village promptly at 10:15, and the exercises will begin at 10:30. The program follows:

Invocation, Rev. L. W. Scott
Singing, Male Quartet
"The Blue and the Gray"

Gordon B. Springer
School
Lincoln's Gettysburg Address
Arthur H. Knapp
Singing, Male Quartet
Address Prof. E. J. Anderson
Singing of America Led by School
Decoration of Soldiers' Graves.
Rev. L. W. Scott, chairman.

The children are asked to bring baskets of flowers and to meet at the school building at 10 o'clock. Those who have flowers are requested to donate them for decorating the graves. The old veterans are asked to meet at the engine house at 10 o'clock, and the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs to meet at their rooms at the same hour to attend in a body. All who have automobiles are requested to be on hand promptly to convey the people to the cemetery.

Genoa Presbyterian Church.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. Last Sunday morning a chorus of the young people helped very materially with the music. We hope to have them now right along.

When at all possible, every one connected with the interests of the church should affiliate with the Sunday school.

Christian Endeavor at 6:45. A good meeting last week which some of the young people missed. Topic for Sunday will be, "How Missions are Blessing the World."

Evening service at 7:30. We had a fine song service last Sunday night. Last Sunday a series of evening sermons was started, "Studies in New Testament Characters." Last week the life and work of John the Baptist was taken up. This week the sermon will be on "The Comparative Relation of Apostle Peter and Apostle John, to Jesus." You will not want to miss any of these studies.

Thursday evening service at 7:30. The topic will be, "Seeking a Blessing Upon Assemblies." These topics from our Presbyterian handbook have been proving profitable. Come and bring someone with you.

Do You Know That

Life is a constant struggle against death?

The U. S. Public Health Service issues free bulletins on rural sanitation?

The defective citizen of to-day is oftentimes the unhealthy child of yesterday?

Every man is the architect of his own health?

It's the baby that lives that counts?

Tuberculosis is contagious, preventable, curable?

The full dinner pail, the open window, the clean well, make for health?

The protection of the health of children is the first duty of the Nation?

Bad temper is sometimes merely a symptom of bad health?

Insanity costs every inhabitant in the United States $1 per year?

In the lexicon of health there is no such word as "neutrality" against disease?

The death rate of persons under 45 is decreasing; of those over 45 it is increasing?

If you would be popular, never tell the truth when it is going to hurt.

Watch and Clock repairing.

THERE are no flowers too sweet to strew above them,
 Brave hearts that lie in silent, dreamless sleep;
 No garlands fair enough for those who love them
 To lay with chastened tears at head and feet,
 No song too tender or too sweet to sing them
 In loving praise of deeds most grand and true,
 No tribute sweet and pure enough to bring them,
 The dear old boys—the boys who wore the blue.
 Silent through all the years that pass so fleetly,
 Silent and still they lie in calm repose.
 Under the violets they slumber sweetly,
 Forgotten now life's struggles and life's woes,
 Forgotten now the war's dread smoke and thunder,
 The carbine's flash, the moans of mortal pain—
 All is forgotten now. No world's great wonder
 Rouses from sleep and rest the heroes slain.

A Day of Strengthening.
 Memorial day should be sacred to the memory of every patriot who has served his country and has passed beyond. With such a significance as that for the day it ought to be possible to save it from extinction and make it one of the great moral strengthening days of the national year.

And even beyond that we might go and give the day added moral strength. It might be finally crystallized into a day of remembrance of the dead of the nation without regard to wars.

The mother might remember her blue-eyed girl, the lover his dead sweetheart and the young man his honored father. It would be a day of sacred memories, of strength giving associations. It would then hold an intense personality for everybody.

Died on the Future Memorial Day.
 May 30 is the death day of two of the most famous sons of the eighteenth century—of Alexander Pope, the wined, witty poet, and of that satirical Voltaire who was poet, too, but also philosopher and historian. Within eight days of the date when he had arrived in the world (May 22), fifty-six years earlier, Pope died in 1744.

The Sacred Day.
 May has a sacred day, when the people lay crowns of lilies and crowns of bay
 On the gallant dust of the blue and gray—
 Memorial day.

Pause Once a Year

When men die in battle in defense of their homes or for principles which they wish to leave as a heritage to their children, the next generation would be ungrateful indeed if they could not pause at least once a year to remember the devotion of the heroic dead and, if possible, give thanks for the example of their virtues, shed a tear for their loss and offer a prayer for the forgiveness of their frailties. In some countries there is a superstition that tears are efficacious in procuring rest and pardon for the dead. In the funeral oration of St. Ambrose it is said: "The poor also shed their tears, precious and fruitful tears, that washed away the sins of the deceased. They let floods of redeeming tears."
 On the other hand, it is said to be a sin to weep for the dead after the grass has grown over their graves, for every tear is said to bring a pang to them, and excessive grieving for them holds them to the earth atmosphere and keeps them from the rest of heaven.

The orientals in general look upon graveyards as "cities of the silent" and believe that they are peopled by invisible spirits, each of whom sits at the head of his own grave.

New York at Gettysburg

Of the dead at Gettysburg, greatest battle of the civil war, that were identified and buried in the National cemetery over one-third were New York soldiers. Of the wounded officers and men New York had nearly one-third, and in the total losses, including prisoners, the same proportion is to the credit of New York. All of the New York troops on the field were not brought into the bloodiest encounters, but in the ranks that were hotly engaged the Empire State had a large quota. In the National cemetery there are 867 New York graves, the highest record of any state. The three highest following are Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Michigan, and the dead of the three together number 868.

Among the killed were Brigadier General Samuel K. Zook of Hancock's Second corps and Brigadier General Stephen H. Weed.

Six New York generals were wounded at Gettysburg. Major General Daniel E. Sickles, in command of the temporary left wing on the second day, suffered amputation of a leg from a wound received on the extreme front in a fight which cost the Confederate leader, General Barksdale, his life, and General Hood was wounded. Major General Daniel Butterfield was wounded while acting as Meade's chief of staff. Brigadier General Francis C. Barlow, commanding a division, was shot down in combat with Early's division of Ewell's corps on the first day north of the town. Brigadier General Charles K. Graham was wounded by the side of Sickles on the second day in the contest along the Emmitsburg road and fell into the enemy's hands. Brigadier General Alexander S. Webb, commanding the Philadelphia brigade in Hancock's Second corps, was wounded, as was Brigadier General G. K. Warren, chief engineer.

Nine New York commanders of brigades, regiments and batteries were killed.

"Heard From Massachusetts"

Deeds of Famous Sixth Regiment Brought Joy to Lincoln.

IN his book of reminiscences entitled "Memories of a Hundred Years" the late Edward Everett Hale told the following story of Lincoln and Sumner:

"Charles Sumner told me once that when Lincoln was making up his first lists of appointments he affected to be a little annoyed by the pressure which New England, and especially Massachusetts, brought to bear.

"To tell the truth, we had some men in Massachusetts of whom we need not be ashamed, and one of them, Charles Francis Adams, was appointed to London and another, John Lothrop Motley, to Vienna, two of the principal foreign appointments given to so small a state. When the last of these principal appointments was made Lincoln said to Sumner, 'Now, Mr. Sumner, I hope you will give me a little time before I hear from Massachusetts again.'

 "This was only a few days, however, before the 19th of April, 1861, when Sumner and Lincoln were together at the White House, and it was announced that the Sixth Massachusetts regiment had fought its way through Baltimore and was at the moment placed in garrison at the capitol. Sumner said to Lincoln, with some satisfaction, 'Mr. President, you are glad to hear from Massachusetts today.'

WHEN MAY 30 COMES.

As oft as the 30th day of May returns with time's annual round let a grateful nation remember its dead and with floral offerings decorate the tombs of its fallen heroes while the dropping tear moistens the cold sod that covers their sleeping dust.

To them we owe the liberty we enjoy; to them we owe the preservation of our institutions. And shall we not hold them in grateful remembrance?

Let this beautiful custom be perpetuated until the day shall become hallowed in the history of freedom. It carries with it the idea of our loss and the dear cost of liberty. It brings fresh to mind the deeds of our country's martyrs.

It keeps alive and warm the greatest principles for which our sires poured out their blood, on which our republic is based.—General John A. Logan.
