Dies After Long Illness.

The death of Dolphus C. Mosher occurred at his home in this village Monday evening, Dec. 4, after a long illness, during most of which he suffered intensely. Death was due to Bright's disease.

Mr. Mosher was first taken ill, and obliged to give up his work, in March of this year. For many weeks he was seriously ill, but rallied and recovered to such an extent that during the summer and early fall he was able to ride some distance and walk about town. About the middle of October, he took a heavy cold and has been gradually failing since that time. His suffering for the past month was exceedingly great, and equally distressing to those who cared for him, death coming as a welcome release.

The deceased was born in the town of Venice, Nov. 12, 1849, the son of Samuel and Sabra Mosher. On March 25, 1873, he was married to Miss Carrie McCargar of Genoa and they have resided in this vicinity during their married life except seven years, which was spent in Moravia, where Mr. Mosher was engaged in the hardware business. Returning to Genoa they again took up farming, and in 1908 moved to this village. Mr. Mosher has been a valued employee in both the hardware stores in this village during the past few years.

Mr. Mosher became a member of Lansing Lodge, No. 774, F. & A. M., in 1900, and served as Master of the lodge for three successive years. He had an extended acquaintance throughout this section, all of whom are familiar with his obliging nature, his strict integrity and his faithfulness in his relations with all.

The nearest surviving relatives, besides his wife, are two aunts, Mrs. Amanda Whipple and Mrs. Martha Lester of Locke. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Mosher in her sorrow.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Presbyterian church, and were very largely attended. Rev. L. W. Scott, pastor of the church, officiated, using the words, "Be of good cheer; it is I: be not afraid" as the basis of his remarks. Following his remarks, the Masonic memorial service was conducted by Lansing lodge who were present in a body. Three hymns were sung by Mrs. Robt. Mastin, Miss Ida Mastin and Chas. J. Foster. There were beautiful floral tributes, including a very large and handsome piece from Lansing lodge and others from relatives and friends. Burial was made in the Mosher family lot in East Venice cemetery.

Among those who came to attend the funeral were J. S. McCargar of Bellefonte, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bower of Lansing, Mrs. F. B. Corning of Groton, Miss Maude Linderman of Cortland, Mrs. Fred Conger of Owego, Miss Dora Addy and Mr. J. Addy of Ithaca, Mrs. Amanda Whipple of Locke, Mrs. Annah Lester, Mrs. Julia Mead of Moravia, Mrs. J. W. Mead of Auburn.

Expression of Thanks.

I wish to say to all our neighbors and friends who have shown such sympathy and thoughtfulness during the long days of sickness and sorrow, that their kindness inspired the deepest gratitude of my dear departed husband through his suffering, and myself in this my special hour of need. I wish to thank Mr. Scott for his words of consolation, those who sang at the funeral services, and all who sent flowers.

Carrie C. Mosher.

What Christmas Seals Do.

Every Red Cross Christmas seal that is sold is a real bullet in the fight against tuberculosis.

These seals last year helped to support thousands of needy tuberculosis patients and to give them a chance for life.

They provided for many visiting nurses whose hundreds of thousands of visits brought instruction and cheer to numerous patients.

They helped to maintain dispensaries in scores of cities, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, where thousands of consumptive patients received free treatment, aid and advice.

They provided the means to purchase millions of copies of circulars, pamphlets and other literature with which the public has been educated about tuberculosis.

They have established and helped to maintain more than 300 open air schools for children who need open air treatment.

These are just a few of the ways in which the hundreds of thousands of dollars received last year were expended.

This year much more is needed. Surely any one can help by buying at least ten seals.

Christmas Dinner In Abyssinia

Plenty of Good Food Greeted Traveler In African Country

A TRAVELER in Abyssinia thus describes the Christmas dinner of 1900 given by King Menelik at Adis Abeba: On Sunday, Jan. 7, being their Christmas day, the emperor most kindly asked us all to dine in the huge hall called Aberash, a building about 190 feet long, 90 feet wide and 35 feet high. All the ministers, ras and principal generals were present on the raised dais round the throne, while in the body of the hall about 30,000 soldiers were fed in two detachments. Our menu was as follows:

- Milk and Rice Soup.
- Kabobs of Meat and Potatoes.
- Omelet and Herbs. Mince and Artichokes.
- Fillets of Beef and Radishes.
- Kabobs of Mutton and Cabbages.
- Fried Brains.
- Fried Mince and Macaroni.
- Smoked Beef and Lettuce.
- Brown Rolls and Flat Bread.
- Coffee. Honey Beer.
- French Claret. Arrack.
- Twelve-year-old Teg and Champagne.

After dinner we shook hands and, through an interpreter, thanked his majesty for so much kindness. He replied: "May the Lord keep you well and may you return safely to your own country. May you have good shooting and a pleasant journey through my country."

It's the vanity of the sex that prompts the female turkey to wonder how she is going to be dressed for the Christmas dinner.

An Unexpected Gift

UPPER arose Christmas morning prepared for the inevitable. He smiled to himself cynically as he inserted himself into his "other" trousers and thought of how he would go in to unwrap the things done up in tissue paper and labeled "For George." He knew that he would find a good many old friends among the packages.

There would be the usual wild-ly embroidered slippers, an impossible necktie or so, two or three pairs of suspenders, because he always wears a belt; a box of cheap cigars with a nifty Spanish senorita sitting on the lid, the same as a reform mayor; another matchbox to add to his collection, a full dress shirt shield to remind him of the old days when he used to wear his dress suit occasionally. "Why can't the women folks around a house forget a few of these things a man gets each year and let him take the money and get himself something that he really wants?" he thought to himself. "A fur lined overcoat, for instance; but, ah, no! They wouldn't stand for anything like that." He had mentioned wanting a new overcoat early in the fall, but the missus had ridiculed the idea. And when he brought home that set of books he'd been wanting the whole family jumped on him and abused him.

He started in to untie his packages. In a few minutes he found himself unwrapping an extremely large bundle. This was something out of the ordinary. Oh, it must be a silk dressing gown. How he hated such things!

But it wasn't. It was his fur lined overcoat! Maybe he didn't feel cheap or anything then! What a cad—what a crab he had been! He'd even thought of overlooking that jewelry the wife wanted just because she had made such a fuss when he spoke of buying a new overcoat. And here it was, all because she wanted to surprise him. Wasn't wife the all right girl, though? She'd probably saved up the money out of her allowance, probably had done without a whole lot of things she wanted. Well, he was glad he hadn't been a cheap skate and cut down her Christmas list anyhow.

Meanwhile Mrs. Tupper was standing off enjoying Tupper's delight over his new coat. "Were you surprised?" she asked him. "You know I was so afraid the tailor might let the cat out of the bag by sending in a bill, because I ordered it fully a month ago. But he was real nice about it—said he wouldn't send the bill to you until after Christmas. Wasn't that accommodating of him?"

NEW POLICY NEEDED IN GOVERNMENT RAILWAY CONTROL

Helpfulness and Encouragement Urged by Alfred P. Thom.

CREDIT MUST BE IMPROVED

Increase of Transportation Facilities Necessary to Secure Relief From High Cost of Living May Thus Be Provided For by the Railroads.

Washington, Nov. 28.—A new policy of government railroad regulation, based on constructive principles of helpfulness and encouragement instead of upon principles of repression and punishment, was urged by Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, the first witness on behalf of the railroads before the Newlands Joint Committee on Interstate Commerce, which has instituted a general inquiry into the problems of railroad regulation.

"It is proposed by the joint resolution of Congress," said Mr. Thom, "to go into a comprehensive study of the whole subject of transportation, to make a new assessment, after 29 years of experiment, of its history, its present conditions and its future needs. The railroads accept the view that regulation is a permanent and enduring part of government in America and that the first duty of the carriers is to the public. That duty is to afford reasonable facilities on reasonable terms and at reasonable rates, and this must be done before any private interests can be considered."

Certainty, Safety and Sufficiency.

Mr. Thom contended that the real interest of the public is in being assured of certainty, safety and sufficiency of transportation facilities, rather than in rates. The first consideration of the public is to obtain transportation facilities. What the cost is, is in reality a second consideration, he said.

Mr. Thom proposed an increase of transportation facilities as a method of securing relief from the high cost of living. "There have been less than 1,000 miles of new railroad constructed in the United States during the past year," he said, "less than in any year since 1848, except the period of the Civil War, and yet the cost of living is daily advancing owing to a shortage of supplies which might be remedied by securing access to new areas of production."

Credit Must Be Improved.

"This leads to the consideration as to whether railroad credit is as good as the public interest requires. It is impossible for railroads to earn enough to supply the necessary new facilities from current revenue. Investors cannot be coerced, but must be attracted." Among the conditions affecting railroad credit which deter investors he mentioned the following:

"First, Railroad revenues are not controlled by investors, but are fixed and limited by governmental authority and not by one but by several governmental authorities, which do not recognize responsibility for assured results to investors and are uncoordinated. "Second, Railroads cannot control and, the government cannot and does not limit the expense account. "Third, The present system of regulation is based on a policy of regulation and correction and not on a policy of helpfulness and encouragement. "Fourth, The outstanding obligations of the railroads have already exceeded the financial rate of safety and involve a disproportionate amount of obligations bearing fixed charges. "Fifth, The investor must accept a subordinate obligation or security with no assurance of a surplus of earnings to support it. "Sixth, Other competitive lines of investment present superior attractions. "Seventh, The railroad business is largely controlled by political instead of business considerations."

Look Forward, Not Back.

"We may debate about what has caused the present conditions," said Mr. Thom, "but we cannot debate about what the people need. The President has taken the view that we must look forward in this matter and 'make a fresh assessment of circumstances' in order to deal helpfully and intelligently with the problem. Abuses are no more prevalent in the railroad business today than in any other business humanely conducted. The great question now is whether the existing system of regulation gives the public reliable assurance of sufficient present and future railroad facilities. "Those who oppose any change must place their appeal on the ground that the present system assure the public of the continued adequacy of transportation facilities. If they do not, no argument based on the desirability of the present dual system of regulation will be accepted by public judgment. "The question of 'states' rights' is not involved. If the regulation of transportation facilities privately owned should all government ownership must follow, and then all power of the states over the railroads would disappear. "Let us debate this question, then, not upon any mere theory or jealousy as to the distribution of governmental power, but upon the large issue of what the public interest requires in respect of the assurance of adequate transportation services."

The Thrice-A-Week Edition OF THE New York World

Practical a Daily at the Price of Weekly

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

There has never been a time when a newspaper was more needed in the household. The great war in Europe has now entered its second year, with no promise of an end for a long time. These are world-shaking events, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, has been compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues.

The Presidential contest also will soon be at hand. Already candidates for the nomination are in the field, and the campaign, owing to the extraordinary character of the times, will be of supreme interest. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-A-Week edition of the New York World.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE GENOA TRIBUNE together for one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

Use Little Santas.

The Christmas house decorations should, of course, include plenty of holly and Christmas greens; but, if possible, small Santas should play a conspicuous part in the scheme. Paper or china or cloth—whatever they are—they should perch over the doors or windows, cling to holly wreaths and hide themselves in the holiday greens.

The dance orders should have small Santas painted or printed or pasted at their head. These orders can be bought decorated in many stores, but any hostess who can use water colors could make them herself, and one who cannot use water colors can use the same sort of little gummed Santas or Santa Claus heads for these orders that she used for the seals of her letters.

Carol of Christmas

DAY fades across the winter world;

The snow is cold and deep;

Beside the window Christmas eve

Our twilight watch we keep.

O Christmas stars, O Christmas stars,

Before our earnest eyes

You write the sweetest tale of earth

Across the Christmas skies!

The wind drops down, the fields are still.

The air is hushed and clear;

Far music trembles up the hill

Upon our listening ear.

O Christmas bells, O Christmas bells,

Ring silvery and long

Unto our little hearts you seem

The Christmas angels' song!

While Shepherds Watch'd

WHILE shepherds watched their flocks by night, All seated on the ground, The angel of the Lord came down, And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread Had seized their troubled mind; Glad tidings of great joy I bring To you and all mankind.

"To you in David's town this day Is born of David's line The Saviour, who is Christ the Lord, And this shall be the sign:

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find To human view displayed, All meanly wrapped in swathing bands And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph, and forthwith Appeared a shining throng Of angels praising God, who thus Addressed their joyful song:

"All glory be to God on high And to the earth be peace, Good will henceforth from heaven to men Begin and never cease."

Holiday Season Plants.
 Among the red berried plants the most beautiful of all are the holly trees and aucubas from Holland; shapely ardisias, brilliant fruited Christmas peppers, the old time favorite Jerusalem cherry trees, otaheite orange, ponderosa lemon trees, with their larger fruits of dark and light yellow, and those pretty little trailing plants, the partridge berries, grown in glass berry bowls, raised in America.

Wrapping the Gifts

Are you among the fortunate number who have completed their Christmas purchases and have them all neatly and daintily wrapped and labeled and placed in a large box or a drawer to await the proper moment when they are to be started on their way by mail, messenger or, perchance, personal delivery? If you are not, what are you doing with the little gift which you purchase or complete each day and add to the growing pile? Are you carefully wrapping each one after inclosing a pretty Christmas greeting card with soft white or gayly decorated Christmas paper? One cannot help but feel that those little remembrances which are received, all thoughtfully and artistically wrapped with a bit of holly or poinsettia paper and bound with red, green, white or holly ribbon and choicely labeled and sealed with the numerous attractive little stickers which come for this purpose, mean more in their detail of taste and care than all the handsome and wonderful gifts which time and money can produce without these final touches. Then make the offering as simple and inexpensive as you choose, but if you would convey to your friend an atmosphere of thought and remembrance take a little time each day to complete the arrangement for each friend before laying it aside with the other gifts. Not only will the preparation of the gifts take on additional interest to you, but it will make the last days of bustle and excitement less arduous, and then, too, you will not be piling into the postoffice or the express office all your various bundles at one time, but will be prepared to start many of them on their way in advance of the last rush and thus avoid the often inevitable delay which means belated greetings and, worse than all, packages which give the appearance of hasty arrangement and lack of thought.

Four Ancient Christmas Carols

THE ancient Christmas carol "Holy Night" is German in its origin and is considered by many persons to be the most beautiful of all Christmas carols. It has sometimes been ascribed to Martin Luther, but the consensus of expert opinion is that it is much older than his time and is one of the oldest of German folk songs.

The carol "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," is English in its origin and dates back to about the beginning of the seventeenth century, although the author of the words and the composer of the music are unknown. The fine old melody sung to this poem possesses all the best qualifications of a sterling hymn tune and will probably last as long as the verses with which it is always associated.

Originally the old carol was sung in polyphonic harmony with the melody placed in the tenor, as was the invariable custom of the seventeenth century. Modern transcriptions of it, however, have placed the melody in the upper voice part instead of the third voice part, as formerly. This carol, too, is one of the most popular and most beautiful in the entire range of Christmas music.

The carol "Draw Nigh, Immanuel," is one of the oldest pieces of coherent music in existence, and both the words and music far antedate any of the others. The music is an old French melody, dated from the thirteenth century, although, of course, it has been harmonized to conform with more modern standards.

There is a most curious but beautiful musical effect at the close of this carol. The words of "Draw Nigh, Immanuel," are about 100 years older than the music, being taken from the Mozarabic breviary of the twelfth century, and it is generally believed that they were taken from the liturgy of the early Christians at Toledo, Spain, where the Mozarabic breviary was formulated.

Another carol, "The First Noel," has a traditional French melody and probably originated in Breton, although the exact origin of this fine old song is somewhat in doubt.

CHRISTMAS PLAYS IN THE HOME THEATER.

The dramatic instinct is strong in most children and should be encouraged, says Mrs. Blanche Cole Rosedale in the New York Evening Sun. To the young child its exercise serves to whittle away many rainy hours; to the older child it can be made a source of inspiration to noble deeds and a means of gratifying the longing for romance and the desire for adventure.

Where there are two or more young children Santa Claus plays of all sorts will occupy the pre-Christmas days.

The most popular and simplest one is that in which one child represents the beneficent saint and the rest of the family go to bed after hanging the stockings. The saint fills the stockings and makes what other preparations his imagination can compass, then usually becomes a child again and goes to bed himself, not wishing to be left out of the Christmas morning fun so soon to follow.

All Christmas stories may be dramatized. The story of Gretchen, who set her shoe by the chimney and found a poor sparrow in the toe, will be acted out with as many embellishments as the story teller has been able to add.

There is a story of two children who awoke to find Santa Claus in their room. They accompany him to toyland and back with many adventures on the way. This lends itself well to play also. Relieving the distress of a poor family on Christmas morning is a pretty play. The generous Samaritans go laden with toys to the unhappy ones, and play ends in a joyous dance.

While the dramatizing spirit is on the children will not stop with Christmas tales, but will play Cinderella, Goldilocks, Squire Nutkin and any other simple story which is familiar to them.

LATEST WORD OF SCIENCE.

The liquorites in their publicity articles often quote what they call a "recent" statement in the Lancet (London, England) concerning benefits from the use of alcoholic medicines and beverages. As a matter of fact it appeared some years ago and was prepared by proliquoites in an attempt to offset the antialcoholic utterances of leading English physicians and surgeons—such men as Sir Frederick Treves, surgeon to the king; Sir Thomas Barlow, physician to the king; Sir Victor Horsley; England's greatest neurological surgeon; Sir A. Pearce Gould of the Middlesex hospital, Sir James Barr, dean of the Medical School of Liverpool university; Prof. Sims Woodhead of Cambridge university medical school, and others of like standing.

The statement received 13 signatures of medical men, and half of these, it was discovered, were men who owned brewery or distillery stock. It was given conspicuous place in every bar-room in England and in many American saloons—and is still doing duty.

To the question, is alcohol a food or a poison, a stimulant or a depressant? science is giving reply. Its latest report comes from the nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie institution of Washington, where tests were made to determine the effects of alcohol on motor and mental processes. The subjects were college graduates, some of them moderate drinkers, some hard drinkers. In all the tests made the evidence showed clearly that alcohol is a depressant to the system, never a stimulant.

WHAT DOCTORS THINK.

When the liquor men circularized the physicians of Vermont, urging them to oppose state-wide prohibition, the replies were not what they had hoped for. This is one of them:

"We, the members of the medical staff of the Vermont State hospital, submit the following as an expression of our opinion of the use of alcohol as a beverage.

"We are now and ever shall be utterly opposed to the sale and use of alcohol in any form as a beverage; we are absolutely opposed to any propaganda that has for its purpose to legalize the sale of alcohol as a beverage. It has no place internally as a medicine; it is always in all forms a poison and a destroyer of protoplasm and a paralyzer of protoplasmic activity.

ORGANIZER'S STORY.

One of our pro-liquor friends told the writer that women ought to stay at home and bring up their families. They ought to train their boys to let liquor alone. Then he told a pathetic story that he personally knew to be true (?) of a certain Mrs. Pingley out in Kansas (always Kansas!), who went out lecturing for the W. C. T. U. and left her three little children for their father to look after. He could not be with them every moment, and the three boys played on the railroad track and were all killed by the cars running over them. As I dryly commented, all that spoiled the story was that the W. C. T. U. never sends out woman lecturers with small children at home, and there never was any Mrs. Pingley employed as a W. C. T. U. speaker in Kansas. He was not certain then whether that was her name or not, and thought perhaps she was speaking for some other cause!

RAILROAD WATER-WAGON CLUB.

"Every Bessemer man on the water wagon." This is the aim of the employees of the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad. While membership is not compulsory, the movement is so popular that those who do not join feel that they are somewhat under condemnation. Many men who are not members have quit drinking. In Albion, Pa., the division terminal of the road, the Water-Wagon club has practically put the saloon out of business. Instead of pay day being a day of wild carousing it is now quiet and orderly.

BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE.

The saloons of Sioux City, Ia., closed when the state went into the prohibition column the first of January, 1916. The savings bank deposits in the city increased $10,000 the first week the saloons were closed. In that week 350 new savings accounts were opened in the various banks, most of them by people who had never had a bank account before.

WATER WAGON SAFEST.

"You can't get away from it, I tell you. The water wagon may not be as jolly to ride on as the booze cart, but it takes you to a home and friends. The booze cart dumps you in the gutter or in a pauper's grave."—Jess Willard.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

CIRCUS SCHOOL.

The Children had just been to another Circus and were all tired out when Daddy came in to tell them his usual evening Story. But they were not too tired to tell Daddy all about the Animals and the tricks and the usual wonderful things that happen in the Circus.

"I suppose that means," said Daddy, "that you want a Circus Story tonight, eh?"

"Oh, yes, Daddy, please, tell us a Circus Story. We love to hear about the things all the Animals do when we're not watching them," shouted the Children.

"I don't believe they do much besides sleep and eat," said Nick.

"Dear me," said Daddy, "You think they're even cleverer than we are. Why, they need practice and study to do those tricks just as you Children need to go to School in order to learn how to spell, and read, and do sums. You couldn't spell without studying, could you?"

The Children laughed, and so Daddy said:

"Well, as you've never before heard of the Circus School, and yet you go to every Circus that comes to town, I think it is high time you heard. So that will be our Story tonight.

"In the Circus that you've been to see, they have School every morning, bright and early, before the parade. And then the more advanced Pupils—those in the higher classes—who know more—have lessons again after the Parade, while the others rest for the afternoon's performance.

"Those who have studied for a long time are in higher classes, just as you Children go into a higher class at the end of every year.

"But it is of the Kindergarten that I want to tell you. In it are three baby Lions, a little Panther, a young Tiger and six Elephants. They call themselves the little Animals, or the Babies. Not that they are very small, no indeed! They look quite big, and sometimes look very angry and wild. That is when they haven't learned their lessons and the Trainer, or Teacher, scolds them.

"They are taught to 'Lie down,' 'Stand up on their legs,' 'Roll over' and all such little tricks first—just as Children learn how to spell 'Cat' and 'Rat' before they learn how to spell 'Menagerie.'"

"What, Daddy?" shrieked Nancy.

"That is a big word, isn't it; well it means an Animal home. But, if we stop and chatter, I'll never get through telling you about the School.

"After they have learned little tricks, they are taught how to do really hard ones, like rolling a barrel, or riding on bicycles and roller skates, or jumping through hoops, and the Elephants play Baseball games, and are taught how to throw, and pitch, and catch.

"But today, just after School, and before it was time for the parade, a Man arrived with a great big machine—bigger than he was, and even bigger than the Animals.

"Be very quiet," he told the Animals as their School Teacher had some of them stand, and some of them sit, in front of the camera which was going to take their pictures. And then the man put an enormous black cloth over his head.

"The animals were very much interested and wondered what was going on inside of the black cloth, and if there were any lumps of sugar hidden away that the Man was eating. One of the little Lions thought perhaps there was a piece of meat or maybe a loaf of bread.

"Soon the Man's head appeared again, and he said: 'Now, you fine Animals, look pleasant. You're to have your pictures taken for the new billboards of the Circus School to be put up the country around.'

"The animals tried to grin and do as the Man told them—all except the Tiger, who simply couldn't grin, as the Panther pinched him and made him give a terrible howl. He wrinkled up his face, too, and the Man with the camera waited.

"Well, it's just too mean," said the Tiger. "I'm one of the most beautiful Animals you could find, and I want to look handsome on the billboards—just as I am. Please, Keeper, make the Panther stop pinching me. I just won't have my picture ruined."

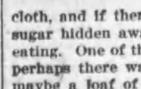

"So they separated the Panther and Tiger, and at last a beautiful picture was made of the Circus School!"

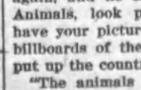

Elephants Play Baseball Games.

"It's Just Too Mean."

Conceded.

"Well, Willie, how are you? We don't see as much of you as we used to."

"No'm, I'm in long pants now."
