a church service of any kind unless sickness prevented. She was alwaya ready and willing to do her part in sickness or at any place where assistance was needed. The son and wife had urged her to come and reside with them, as her health was impaired for a long time and finally they succeeded. She had the best of care and everything that loving hands could do was done for her. She leaves to mourn her loss, one son, Jay Hunt, who is the only one left of the family. He will miss mother so much. She also leaves two grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. Frances Alvord of Homer and Mrs. Sarah Carter of Belltown, and friends without number. The funeral was held here at the Prsbyterian church of which she had been a member for many years. The large quantity of beautiful flowers were a reminder of her sweet disposition. The son and wife and all relatives have the sympathy of their many friends. Her pastor, Rev. E. L. Dresser of Ithaca officiated. Burial in the cemetery here.

scrivener who wrote a Christmas story without mentioning shop windows, and the people rose and slew him, saying, "It has never been done."

Does the reader recognize this strollng ragged newsie? Down through the centuries he comes. the eternal poor child of Christmas. who is, by the law of the prophets, invariably happier than the rich man in his limousine. This limousine, by the way. was once t coach and four, the rich man a red nosed baron and the child a golden haired page. His mud colored monnot altered in 500 years.)

We It was a week before Christmas, and all we had not yet found our rich man. At last, however, just as dusk was falling, we found our man.

He was old: he was alone in the world. His hair fell in a white fringe about his ears. His face was bitter, Silk stockings at 59c, $1, 1.50 but sad. Surreptitiously as we grasped his wrist we felt his pulse. His heart was ready to melt.

"Quick!" said we, leaping into the plum colored interior of his limousine. "There's no time to lose. The boy is waiting three blocks farther along. Tell your man to burry, please." The old gentleman did not seem to observe our presence. We were piqued for a moment but soon reflected that, being a young author, we were, of course, quite invisible. He spoke sharply through the tube to his chauffeur: "Get on. Simmons; get on. I can't stay here all night. And, Simmons, stop at the toy shop three blocks farther along."

The car drew up to the curb. The old gentleman, clutching a copy of Dickens in one hand and his gold headed cane in the other, descended to the sidewalk. Instinctively, as though guided by some impulse of the ages, he turned toward the Christmas shop window ablaze with a thousand tiny artificial candles.

Standing just in front of the bright window, the mud colored mongrel at

Come to a Man's

Ever higher, Sing them till the night expire.

Shepherds at the grange, Where the babe was born, Sang with many a change Christmas carols until morn. Let us by the fire, Ever higher, Sing them till the night expire.

These good people sang Songs devout and sweet. While the rafters rang There they stood with freezing feet. Let us by the fire. Ever higher, Sing them till the night expire.

Who by the fireside stands Stamps his feet and sings, But he who blows his hands Not so gay a carol brings. Let us by the fire, Ever higher, Sing them till the night expire.

Sugar and Sweetness. Granulated sugar tastes sweet. Powder it in a mortar more fine, and it becomes less sweet.

Just owing to this fact it is very hard to convince people that fine sugar is not adulterated.

Put a grain of quinine, mixed, into, a pound of granulated sugar, and the sweetness increases. Common salt increases the sweetness of cake and other foods as well. Cooks are aware of this and act accordingly.

Raw sugars, which contain very negligible quantities of the sweeter sirups, taste much sweeter than granulated sugar. Yet their sugar contents are, as we have said, much less. This is due to the salts in the raw product.

The refiners' imitation stuff is even preferred to granulated for making apple ples, etc.

The sugar, unextracted, but used when we eat a potato or an apple, is really a sweet compound and in the case of a good apple may be tasted very distinctly as we eat. - London Globe.

Principles Which Railways Hold Should Govern Regulatory System In Interests of Public and the Roads-Compulsory System of Federal Incorporation Favored.

FEDERAL CONTROL

Only Way to Meet Emergencies

of Nation, Says A. P. Thom.

STATES' RIGHTS PRESERVED

OF THE RAILROADS

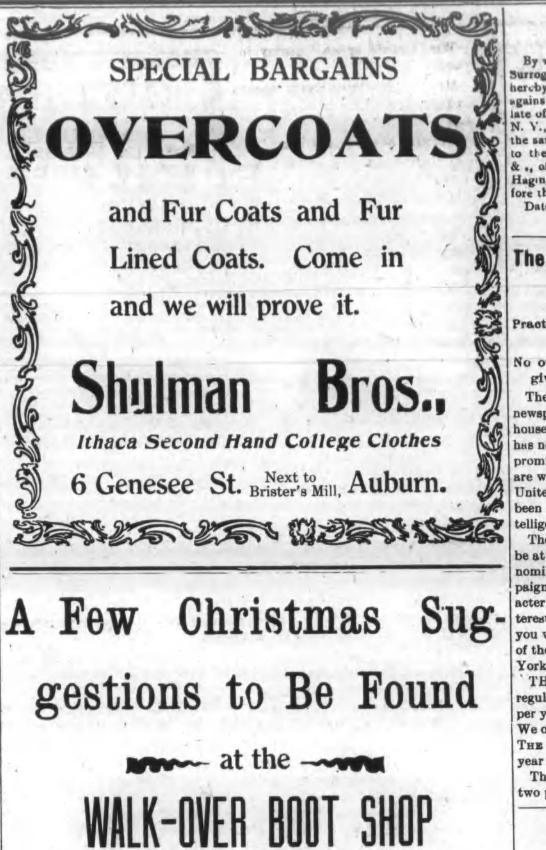

Washington, Dec. 4 .- That the interests of national defense require that control of railway lines should rest with the federal government and not with the states was the claim advanced by Alfred P. Thom, counsel to the Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, in concluding his preliminary statement of the case for the railways before the Newlands Joint Committee on Interstate Commerce.

"We must be efficient as a nation if we are to deal successfully with our national emergencies," said Mr. Thom. "and we must appreciate that efficient transportation is an essential condition of national efficiency. If we are to halt and weaken our .transportation systems by state lines, by the permanent imposition of burdens by unwise regulation, we will make national efficiency impossible."

States' Rights Would Not Suffer.

Mr. Thom cited many instances in which shippers in one state were injuriously affected by selfish regulations imposed on the railroads by neighboring states. He pointed out that federal regulation would be no invasion of the rights of the states but would be the means of preserving the rights which they acquired when they entered the Union, one of which was the right to the free movement of their products across state boundaries.

What the Railroads Advocate The principles which the railroads believe should be incorporated in any just system of regulation were summarized by Mr. Thom as follows: -1. The entire power and duty of reg ulation should be in the hands of the national government, except as to ma ters so essentially local and incidentai that they cannot be used to interfere with the efficiency of the service or the just rights of the carriers.

2. As one of the means of accomplishing this, a system of compulsory federal incorporation should be adopt ed, into which should be brought all railroad corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce.

3. The Interstate Commerce Commis sion under existing laws has too much to do and is charged with conflicting functions, including the investigation. prosecution and decision of cases. The latter duties should be placed in the hands of a new body which might be called the Federal Railroad Commis-Regional Commissions should sion. be established in different parts of Commerce Commission by handling lo cal cases.

4. The power of the Commission should be extended to enable it to pre scribe minimum rates and not merely maximum rates as at present. This would increase their power to prevent unjust discriminations

Justice to Public and Roads. 5. It should be made the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the exercise of its powers to fix reasonable rates, to so adjust these rates public and to the carriers. To this end the Commission, in determining rates should consider the necessity of maintaining efficient transportation and extensions of facilities, the relation of expenses to rates and the rights of shippers, stockholders and creditors of the roads.

6. The Interstate Commerce Commis sion should be invested with the pow er to fix the rates for carrying mails. 7. The federal government should have exclusive power to supervise the issue of stocks and bonds by railroad carriers engaged in interstate and for eign commerce.

8. The law should recognize the es ential difference between things which restrain trade in the case of ordinary mercantile concerns and those which restrain trade in the case of common carriers. The question of competition is not the only fair criterion.

9. The law should expressly provide for the meeting and agreement of traf fic or other officers of railroads in respect of rates or practices. This should, however, be safeguarded by requiring the agreements to be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commis sion and to be subject to be disapprov ed by ft.

"My legal proposition." Mr. Thon said. "Is that the Constitution as in now is gives full authority to Congress to regulate the instrumentalities of lu terstate commerce in all their parts. If the power of regulation is to reach the public requirements, it must be co extensive with the instrumentalities o commerce."

Mr. Thom explained that the roads are not asking either of the Committee or of Congress any increase in reve nues, but that they are merely asking the perfection of a system which will

An Old Time Yule

GLIMPSE of an old time cele bration of the Christmas season is preserved in a diary of a guest of Major General William Floyd, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, who recounts the good cheer of his household in the old homestead at Westernville, N. Y., says the Evening Post of New York.

The festivities began Christmas eve, and all the family hung up their stockings in front of Lie huge kitchen fireplace. The illumination was that of tallow candles in silver and brass can dlesticks. Miss Catherine Floyd had expected her flance, James Madison (as was jotted down in the diary), and was greatly disappointed at his not coming. He sent, by way of a Christmas gift, a full length likeness of General George Washington, framed, which was brought by a neighbor returning home from New York.

The merrymaking was at its height Christmas eve, all sorts of then fashionable and popular games, such as "Hunt the Slipper," "Blind Man's Buff" and 'Green Grows the Rushes O," being indulged in by the young people until 10 o'clock, at which hour sharply General Floyd losed the house.

That in keeping early hours he was not altogether arbitrary appears when we learn that the breakfast Christmas morning was at early candlelight. The diary says; "It was so early, and I had to take my curl papers out. so I am sure my hair will not curl at all." The gay young people gathered in the immense kitchen after breakfast was served to examine the stockings that Santa Claus was expected to have left in prosper ous condition.

for exactly the same fees as does an individual

A generation ago administrators, guardians, executors and trustees were individuals. They were almost always inexperienced, very often poor business men, frequently irresponsible, and usually careless or neglectful. Then came the trust companies with their large responsibility, skilled officials, trained to do safely and well what individuals were doing with hazard, and frequent loss. Already the discerning and well informed are placing such matters with trust companies. To-morrow everybody will be doing so. Mankind always forsakes ultimately the faulty for the improved.

Make this Company your executor, and, at the same cost,

Christmas Long Drawn Out.

It has become the custom to imagine that every ceremony connected with the Christmas holidays in old England was observed on the holiday itself. Nothing could be further from the real facts. It should be remembered that in England of old, and to some extent even in industrial England of today. Christmas does not refer only to the holiday itself, but to the twelve days and nights immediately following the feast of the Nativity. It would easily be discovered by anybody who took the trouble to give a few moments' thought to the subject that it would be nigh physically impossible to follow all the ceremonials and customs connected with the Christmas senson on one day.

may look down on the field in which Ruth gleaned and where, out of the expectant silences of the sapphire. night, came the angelic message and the radiant presences to the waiting shepherds, says the Boston Herald. This town, untouched by the hand of modern progress, nestles prayerfully among the Judean hills of Palestine and has the only shrine in the world around which there are three separate Christmases-a trinity of impressive celebrations which occupy an entire month.

First, there is the elaborate Latin or Roman Catholic service, which takes place on our own Christmas day. Dec. 25. It is followed, thirteen days later, by the Christmas Greek services, as they keep the old calendar; then, thirteen days later, by the Christmas services of the Armenian church,

In the case of the Latin celebrations a procession, after forming in the market place, marches with great pomp and solemnity to the Church of the Nativity, where the services are held. They are conducted in person by the Latin patriarch, who comes specially from Jerusalem for this purpose. The service begins at 2 o'clock in the afterpoon of Christmas day and lasts twelve hours, not finishing until 2 o'clock the next morning.

During the whole of this time the patriarch sits enthroned in a gilded chair crowned by a large cardboard miter.

The service is brought to an end by the laying of a beautiful life size wax doll in a small gilded wicker basket in the grotto or manger. Here it remains for twelve days, the wonder and adoration of many. It is then sold to some church in Europe, a large sum of money being paid for it.

The Greek service is somewhat similar to that of the Latin, though there is no wax doll. The Armenian Christmas service, which is held twenty-six days after the Latin, possesses extraordinary characteristics. After prayers and the burning of incense the worshipers gather round a large caldron, from which they extract meat and soup, which are eagerly consumed, the Armenians having fasted prior to these celebrations.

Christmas Afternoon

THE afternoon of Christmas day may be rather a quiet one for the older folks. The gifts have been unwrapped and arranged and bovered over from time to time. The usually tidy room looks like a bazaar for the sale of fancy goods. Perhaps neighbors and other friends may come to exchange "Merry Christmases!" and to say, "May I thank you here for your lovely gift?" And after the departure of the visitors certain names will be cheerfully erased from the list of pros pective "thank you" letters.

As service time draws nigh all, old and young, the men on one side, the women on the other, are waiting in eager expectation. By 4 o'clock it is quite dark, and the bell rings. All come trooping in, clad in the best clothes they can muster. I say all. for not one will be wanting, onless kept at home by serious illness Even those who are ill, if not too sick, will be brought on sleds and carried into the church, and those who really cannot come weep at home. For the little children the happiest part of the service comes later, when each child receives a lighted candle symbolizing the light of the world. Each caudle stands in a white turnip, which has been saved from the hard wou harvest wrung from that inbospitable soil. A hole is cut into the turnip and the candle inserted, so that it serves as a candlestick. In former years, when deer hunting was more successful, the Eskimos brought the deer tallow to the missionaries, who made the candles out of it. Then after the service the children had not only the turnip to eat, but also the rest of the candle which had been brought home unconsumed. But now imported candles are used, and they are not fit to eat, so the children have only the joy of seeing them burn.-Rev. Adolf Stecker, Moravian Missionary in Labrador and Alaska, in New York Evening Sun.

Pretty Christmas Customs :

There are many pretty customs which are observed at Christmas time in different countries One of the prettiest of these customs is thus described by a traveler in Sweden. He writes: "One wintry afternoon at of Christmastide I had been skating on a pretty lake three miles from Gothen burg. On my way home I noted that at every farmer's house there was erected. in the middle of the dooryard a pole, to the top of which was bound a large, full sheaf of grain. This, was informed, was for the little wild birds. "They must have a merry Christ mas, too,' I was told. Not a peasant in Sweden will sit down with his childrep to a Christmas dinner indoors up til he has first raised aloft a Christ mas dinner for the little birds that live In the cold and snow outside."
