Allen's Foot-Ease for the Troops.

The antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes or used in the foot bath. Young men in every community are using Allen's Foot-Ease in their drills for Military Preparedness. Used by the Allied, French and English troops because it rests the feet, takes the friction from the shoe and makes walking easy.

Retributive Justice.

The month's prize for the bumpiest joke goes to the Kansas editor who admonished his readers in the following words: "In order to combat the constantly soaring cost of living, we advise our readers to airplane food."

Atwater—Putnam.

There was a very pretty wedding at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, April 19, at the home of the bride's brother, Ronald Putnam, 512 Kensington Road in Syracuse, when Ralph Atwater of Utica was joined in marriage with Miss I. Elaine Putnam, who till a month ago had been for several years the head of the English department in the Central High school. The house was made additionally attractive by the tasteful use of cut flowers, the color scheme being pink and white.

Twenty-three guests were present and bride and groom mingled quite informally with their friends till the appointed hour when they stood together before the father of the bride, Rev. B. Van Vleet Putnam, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Dolgeville, who performed the ceremony, the ring service being used. Prior to the marriage the Bridal Chorus from Lobengrin was played upon the piano by Miss Ruth Crozier of Cortland and the solo, "O Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. Stone of Dolgeville.

The bride looked her best in a handsome gown of white with pink ribbon trimming. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

Refreshments were served, three of the bride's former pupils, the Misses Beatrice Schouten, Edith Woodward and Ruth Crozier, all now students at Syracuse university, assisting.

At 3 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Atwater left for their wedding trip for points not announced. They will reside at Utica.—Cortland Standard.

Agriographs.

Plan to keep your garden rows busy all summer.

Under the present necessity for high speed in meat production no animal machine compares with the hog.

The success of agricultural co. operation in Denmark is said to be due largely to the influence of the "folk high schools."

More and larger horses in a team is one way to meet the scarcity of farm labor. Larger machines can be used with larger teams.

Many of our ancestors had white bread only on Sunday—and now there are millions of people who don't know how good corn bread tastes.

The farm home garden located near the house is the garden that gets the best care. This is because the work on it is usually done during spare time, when the gardener has no time to waste walking to and from the garden.

Some of us remember what a playroom the old farm "smoke house" used to make during a part of the year. Why shouldn't home cured meats, hams, bacon, dried beef and sausage come back to-day? More smoke houses would mean more dollars that stay on the farm.

Mrs. Mary A. Doyle.

The death of Mary Ann, widow of John Doyle, occurred at Willard State hospital Sunday last. For nearly two years Mrs. Doyle had been in poor health, and a few weeks ago she was taken to Willard for treatment. For many years Mrs. Doyle had lived in the town of Venice. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary A. Doyle, and by three sons, John, William and Dennis Doyle. The funeral took place from the home of her son, Dennis Doyle, 63 Van Anden St., in Auburn, Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock with services at St. Bernard's church at Scipio Center at 10 o'clock. Interment at Scipio Center.

Lake Ridge.

April 21—Mrs. Edgcomb died Wednesday morning. The funeral was held at 10 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whipple. Interment was at Ferrisville.

Mrs. A. P. Bissell is ill. Born, April 18, to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bower, a daughter.

Our constant aim should be to keep ourselves responsive and receptive to the finest things life has to offer.

Auburn Seminary Commencement

Graduating exercises at Auburn Theological seminary will begin on May 8, continuing through the 10th.

The general theme of the commencement will be "The War and the Work of the Church." Many prominent speakers have been secured for the occasion. Rev. Murray Shipley Howland, pastor of the Lafayette Presbyterian church in Buffalo will deliver the annual sermon to the graduates.

The first session will begin at 2:30 o'clock on May 8 with the annual meeting of the Alumni Association. Rev. Frederick Lynch, secretary of the Church Peace Union, will deliver an address on the subject, "The World After the War." The evening address will be given by Rev. William C. Kerr of the class of 1906 and who has recently returned from Chai Ryung, Korea. The meeting will be missionary in character.

May 9 will be alumni day and Philip A. Parsons, professor of sociology in Syracuse University, will be one of the speakers. Rev. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, will deliver an address on "The World Situation and Its Effect on the World-Wide Work of the Church."

The commencement exercises will be held at noon, May 10, in Willard chapel with the address to the graduating class by Rev. Dr. George Black Stewart, president, and the commencement luncheon will be served in the clubhouse. Seventeen seniors will receive diplomas.

When to Plant Vegetables.

The garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture divide vegetables into two classes—"warm temperature" and "cold temperature" vegetables. When peach and plum trees are in blossom, they say it is time to sow in the open ground such seeds as lettuce, radish, parsley, beets, turnips, cabbage, carrots, peas and onions. The wrinkled peas should not be planted until later, as they are more liable to rot in cool ground than are the smooth varieties. When the apple trees bloom, it is time to plant the heat-loving vegetables, such as cucumbers, beans, sweet corn, pumpkin and squash. This is an old but excellent rule.

Gardening is an old, old story. It is related that nearly 20 centuries ago Plato the Elder summed it up in a sentence of just six words: "Dig deep; manure well; work often."

Died.

In the town of Ledyard, Thursday afternoon, April 19, 1917, Howard W. Chase, aged 26 years. Prayer was said at the residence of his brother, Benjamin Chase, Sunday afternoon at 1:30, with services at the Aurora Presbyterian church at 2:30. Burial at Oak Glen cemetery, Aurora.

Good intentions may keep you from looking down hell, but they don't get you anywhere.

national committee as chairman of the woman's bureau and will have her headquarters with the rest of the committee in Washington.

Mrs. Bass is the wife of a retired lawyer of Chicago. During the recent presidential campaign Democratic leaders accorded Mrs. Bass the lion's share of credit for having carried ten of the twelve suffrage states of the west and middle west for Mr. Wilson.

One of her devices was to have circulated throughout these states copies of the handsome photograph obtainable of Mr. Wilson.

BACON FLAVORS.

How to Cook It in the Epicure's Way and Season With It.

There's a world of difference between bacon well cooked and bacon badly cooked, and yet the task of cooking bacon seems so simple. Any new cook would look at you in blank surprise if you questioned her as to her ability to cook bacon, and yet not one cook in a hundred can cook it to a turn.

In the first place, bacon needs constant watching during the cooking process. It also needs to be served almost immediately on cooking. This makes it difficult for the one cook who must have charge of the preparation of an entire meal. If our kitchen regimens were large enough to provide for a special bacon cook we might solve the question quite simply.

Besides needing constant watching bacon needs to be cooked over a low flame. If you use gas for cooking it is a good idea to use a wire frame over the flame to diffuse the heat and subdue it. When the bacon is put into the griddle the fire should be low, so that the fat will be extracted enough to grease the frying pan before the bacon begins to fry vigorously. As the fat increases pour it off, leaving only enough in the griddle to keep the bacon from burning. Most persons like bacon well cooked, and it is very much more healthful when prepared in this way. Therefore, see that it is thoroughly done before allowing it to brown. Have a soft paper on a dish in the oven, and as the pieces of bacon are ready place them on paper to drain and dry a few minutes before serving. But do not permit the bacon to remain standing long before serving, as this robs it of much of its delicate flavor.

If very crisp bacon is desired it can be fried in deep fat. Or, better still, bacon drippings already saved can be poured on the griddle and heated and the bacon cooked by allowing it to fry in that deep fat for a short time at a rather high temperature. Remove it from the fat before it has begun to cool.

A delicious bacon dressing that may be served with lettuce, endive or dandelion is made by heating five tablespoonfuls of bacon fat and cooking in it two tablespoonfuls of flour and a dash of paprika. Add five tablespoonfuls of vinegar and half a cupful of water. Stir till smooth and boiling and then add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Do not let this boil after the eggs have been added.

Hats For the South.

An interesting feature of the millinery market has been the introduction of new hats for the southern season, these showing medium and wide brims and being trimmed with a great deal of hand embroidery and ornaments made of very narrow velvet ribbons. The shapes are largely of Panama and coconut straw. Quilting is another feature, especially of satin hats.

The newest sets of hats and scarves include long mittens with gauntlet-capped wrist portion.

SPRING TIPS.

Points About Lines and the Newest Touches.

The straight line dress presupposes the use of a girdle or a belt. The apron string girdle has been in fashion for at least three seasons, and it seems advisable to swing the pendulum in the opposite direction and to ring in the sash effects. The wider belts will serve to emphasize the elongated waist line and also to give greater accentuation to the flattening of the hips and enlargement of the waist itself.

Those who like the chemise dress will be able to continue its wear for several weeks to come. It is very probable that the slip-over dress which fastens on the shoulder will be developed in linens and silks as the season advances and the demand comes for summer models. Of course it is likely that a new name will be thought out for dresses that repeat more or less faithfully the fashion features of the current season.

For the average woman many attractive dresses are being evolved that show the normal waistline—that is the bodice is a bit loose about the waist and the girdle is so arranged that there is no inclination toward a definite delineation of the waistline.

Because of the liking for medieval effects there is a disposition to employ great quantities of metallic tissues and glittering laces in combination with mock jewels. Lanvin, for example, has sent over an afternoon frock the upper section of which is a shimmering foundation of cloth of gold covered with gold lace, which is elaborated with wonderful beads and embroidery. One instinctively thinks of the crown jewels of some eastern potentate, so gorgeous is the ensemble.

This frock has a round collarless neck and sleeves that do not reach to the elbow. The cuirass form of bodice is more pronounced because of the plain skirt of indigo blue satin. The latter spreads out a little from the edge of the long bodice toward the hip line, and thence to the ankles it is shaped inwardly on a gradual line that gives the new silhouette.

A WEE EASTER COAT.

What the Small Girl Will Wear Next Month.

Almost any clever mother could make this coat. On a short yoke is stirred a full skirt, corded three times to grade the fullness. Novelty but tous close it, double breasted, and any pretty sailor collar adds the finish. A navy blue straw hat is trimmed with ribbon and berries of straw.

Window Group.

The window group presents many difficulties to the feminine heart. But what could be more simple than to forget the wooden trims separating the window units and treat the grouping as one window? The glass curtains may be two or four—that is, with an opening into the center of the middle window, or with the opening at this point and in the center also of the two side windows. These three curtains should reach only to the sills.

In providing for the overdrapey two side drapes only need be taken into consideration and should hang to the bottom of the sill trim. Occasionally these may be held in place by a band of the same material, which may or may not be finished with a bow. But great care should be used not to use this treatment wrongly, for the looped back curtains of older times were worse than eyecores, and any suggestion of like horror today is to be avoided.

The two end side drapes should then be connected across the top by a full and simple valance.

Turn a Narrow Hem.

Every one knows how hard it is to turn a narrow and perfectly even hem on table napkins. Put the hemmer attachment on your sewing machine, but do not use any thread. Just run the napkins through the hemmer without sewing them and they are creased as narrow as desired and are all ready for hand sewing.

CZARISM'S BLOW FROM THE CHURCH

Influence of Orthodox Body on Peasants Is Great.

PRIESTHOOD MIGHTY FORCE

Heretofore It Has Been in the Hands of the Reactionaries, but Now It Is Thought This Influence Will Be Exerted on the Side of Revolutionists From Now On.

Next to the overthrow of the czar, the removal of the emperor's chair from the synod's first session is the most dramatic event that could happen in Russia, for it means a revolution in the chief bulwark of czarism, the Orthodox church of Russia.

The synod is the highest authority in that church. The influence of the church on the Russian peasant masses is enormous, for the moujik is still deeply religious. His attitude to the czar was largely a religious attitude. The new government's control of the synod is therefore of vital import to its success.

In case of a reaction, for instance, it would be the church that would serve as a mighty tool in the hands of the reactionaries for the accomplishment of their purposes. As a matter of fact, one of the most powerful elements of the overthrown Germanophile government was Pitrin, the Petrograd metropolitan. Next to Rasputin, he was the most influential member of the dark forces in the court of Nicholas II. Together with Sturmer and Protopoff he plotted against the allies.

It is consequently of great significance that the chief dignitaries of the church should side with the popular cause. The first session of the synod took place under the presidency of the Kiev metropolitan. The latter has been one of the most enlightened and broad minded members of the Orthodox church. He would undoubtedly know how to fulfill the wishes of the new government in such a manner as to strengthen the new political order with the superstitious peasantry.

Plebiscite to Be Troublesome.

The plebiscite by which the Russian people will determine their future form of government is likely to prove a source of trouble. While the more civilized elements of the nation are certain to vote for a republican form of government, the attitude of the peasants is likely to be quite different. And there is no better instrument for influencing the moujik than the Orthodox church. This was the aim of the committee of safety when it appointed Lvoff, a remote relative of the premier, to the post of procurator of the synod. The procurator is a cabinet member. He is to be the agent through which the new government will get in touch with the church authorities, and through him all the activities of the synod will be communicated to government.

The swiftness with which the church has been recognized and is being reorganized by the new ministry shows how alert the latter is to eliminate all the possible obstacles in the way of the new Russia. It would seem that the new regime is rapidly gaining in stability. While the dangers confronting it are numerous as yet, it is evident that the men in charge of the new order realize these dangers fully and are taking without delay the right measures for their removal.

Granted Two Franchises.

By a vote of 8 to 2 the Ithaca Common Council Tuesday night granted two franchises to the Central New York Southern Railroad, (Ithaca Auburn Short Line) and Ithaca Traction Corporation, looking toward the most important improvements for the city of Ithaca that have been undertaken in recent years.

The vote was reached after a three-hour session, including a public hearing, at which the leading business and professional men of the city, representing the board of commerce, spoke in favor of extending the franchises.

The two franchises include one permitting the Central Southern Railway to enter the city by a new route in the north-western section and another granting to the traction company the privilege to run its cars over the Central Southern lines within the city limits. The two railway corporations plan to expend about $1,000,000 in improvements, the direct result of which will be the connecting of the Central Southern in Ithaca with the D. L. & W., and in Auburn with the New York Central railroad.

Mrs. Sarah Dangerfield Dead.

Sarah Hollister, widow of Francis S. Dangerfield, died at a sanitarium at Jamestown, R. I., on Friday last, at the age of 76 years.

The family formerly resided in Auburn and many years ago the deceased lived in Genoa. She is survived by two daughters, Miss Harriet Dangerfield and Mrs. Alexander Potter both of Nyack, N. Y. She also leaves two brothers, Francis Hollister of Five Corners and Edward Hollister of Kenosha, Wis.

Funeral services were held at Bradley Memorial chapel, Auburn, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial in Fort Hill cemetery.

Kill Flies and Save Lives.

Kill at once every fly you can find and burn his body.

Observers say that there are many reasons to believe there will be more flies this season than for a number of years.

The killing of just one fly NOW means there will be billions and trillions less this summer.

Clean up your own premises; see and insist that your neighbors do likewise.

Especially clean "out-of-the-way-places," and every nook and cranny. Flies will not go where there is nothing to eat, and their principal diet is too filthy to mention.

Farm Loan Committee.

At a special meeting of Five Corners Grange on Wednesday evening, Geo. L. Ferris, Earl Mann and N. J. Atwater were appointed a committee on the patriotic farmers' loan fund. This fund is available to all farmers through this committee. Any farmer wishing a loan, apply to this committee.

Geo. L. Ferris, Chairman.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Russian Symphony.

The greatest treat and most enjoyable concert of the season, and the last of the season, occurs at The Auditorium in Auburn, on Friday evening, May 4. It will mark the return engagement of the great favorites of last season, The Russian Symphony Orchestra and its popular conductor, Modest Altschuler. Besides this great orchestra, there will be three soloists, principal among them is none other than the favorite baritone, Edgar Schofield. The same excellent violin and cello soloists are still with the organization. Special prices have been made, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00. As the orchestra draws for miles around special trains are being arranged for from Geneva, Waterloo and Seneca Falls, also Aurora and Union Springs. As the ladies from the college are coming now, write ahead and engage your seats and let us know just how many will come. The concert last year was the talk of the season. They play the music all like and the genial conductor is most liberal with encores. Sale opens Wednesday, May 2, 9 a. m. Address Mgr. Hennessy, Box 192. Come and enjoy this concert. Prices are most reasonable and to suit all pocketbooks.

Sherwood Resident Dead.

Dr. Susan J. Taber, 75 years of age, a well known resident of Sherwood, formerly of Skaneateles, died Monday morning at Ann Arbor, Mich., where she had been living with her nephew, Dr. George Slocum, during the winter. Dr. Taber had been in poor health for some time.

She is survived by one brother, Benjamin Taber of Sherwood, and by nephews living in Auburn and in Sherwood. Accompanied by Dr. George Slocum, she remains arrived in Auburn Wednesday.

The funeral will be held this (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her nephew, William R. Taber, in Auburn. Rev. W. J. Reagan of Oakwood seminary will officiate. Interment will be made Saturday in Silver Mount cemetery, Staten Island.

Rally for Increased Production.

Representatives of over 125,000 farmers, including delegates from forty-one Farm Bureau associations, the state Grange, and other organizations, in a conference held last week at the state college of agriculture, adopted resolutions recommending the prohibition of the manufacture of liquor from grain; that the country consider the fixing of a minimum price for farm products, and urging the recognition of farm labor as a form of service of equal patriotic merit with service in the military forces.

All of the speakers emphasized the necessity of doing everything possible to increase the food production and to conserve the food produced.

War Time Diet for the Nation.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert, has evolved this war time diet for the United States:

Two meatless days a week, because we eat too much meat.

Eat whole grain—oatmeal, corn, wheat.

Eat less sugar.

Compel the use of whole wheat flour and whole corn meal, and abolish polished rice.

Stop turning grain into liquor.

Annual School Meeting.

Genoa, N. Y., April 10, 1917.

The Board recommend the following sums to be raised to meet the expenses for the ensuing year:

For teachers' wages	$3,050.00
Fuel	300.00
Janitor	200.00
Principle on mortgage	100.00
Repairs and supplies	200.00
Payment on bonds	550.00
Total	$4,400.00

This amount is reducible by estimated receipts from state $1,400.00 Leaving balance to be raised by tax $3,000.00

William B. Teeter.

William B. Teeter, a well known resident of East Venice for many years, died at his home in that place, last Friday night, after a period of ill health of about two years. Death resulted from heart disease. Mr. Teeter was in Genoa last on the day of his brother's auction March 24, when he took a heavy cold, and since which time he has been gradually failing.

The deceased was born in Dryden June 26, 1860, a son of Robert and Charlotte Bird Teeter. He had lived in the town of Venice for many years. He was a member of the East Venice Grange and was an assessor of the town.

Surviving are a wife, formerly Miss Nettie Mosher, and two children, Fannie, 15, and Howard, 11 years of age; also by his father, Robert Teeter, of East Venice and by two brothers, Under Sheriff Fay Teeter of Auburn and Ralph Teeter of Moravia.

Funeral services were held at his late home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and were very largely attended. Rev. E. E. Warner, pastor of the Venice Baptist church, officiated. Burial was made in East Venice cemetery.

Genoa Presbyterian Church.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. Message by the pastor. Everyone not worshipping elsewhere is urged to worship with us.

Sunday school at close of morning service. The last few weeks there has been a gratifying increase in the attendance. Make it convenient for the whole family to remain for the session of the school. Where the family lives in the country, oftentimes the younger members are unable to remain because the older ones do not wish to stay. Every child is entitled to the privileges of the Sunday school.

Christian Endeavor at 6:30. Topic: "Missionary Opportunities in Latin America." The young people are asked to be on hand more promptly instead of coming in at any time up to 7 o'clock.

Evening service at 7:30. The last two weeks we have been having the choir to lead us in the song service. More people of the community should feel an obligation toward this service.

Mid-week service Thursday evening at 7:30. Topic: "India."

Tompkins Co. Institute.

The annual institute of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Tompkins county is in session Thursday and Friday of this week at the First Congregational church in Ithaca. The principal speaker is Mrs. Addie B. Parsels of Philadelphia, a national W. C. T. U. lecturer and vice president of the Pennsylvania State Union. She is forceful and convincing and has organized several of the Unions in Tompkins county.

Bean Seed.

We have a limited quantity of Blightless Red Kidney, Pea, Marrowfat and Medium bean seed. If you wish to grow beans and have them threshed and have a market without hand picking, write or see the J. M. Gregory Co., Skaneateles, N. Y.

Village and Vicinity News.

—This is Arbor day for the schools.

—J. H. Smith of Ithaca has been in town this week.

—Willard Myer is assisting Frank Sellen with his farm work.

—Clarence Lewis is able to be out again after his severe illness.

—Annual school meetings will be held next Tuesday evening.

—Next week has been designated as "Clean-Up Week" by the State Board of Health.

—Miss Flora Alling returned home Wednesday morning, after spending the winter in Auburn.

—Miss Clara Sanford of Ithaca spent Sunday with Mrs. Rachel Sanford and Mrs. Ella Algert.

—Sixty-four farms were visited by the principal and pupils of Genoa school on Monday, taking the farm census.

Be sure to come in and see the Hats before buying. We know we can please you at Mrs. Singer's, Genoa. 40

—Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Keefe and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rawley returned to their home here, last Friday afternoon.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, who have been spending the winter at Stuart, Florida, left there Monday for their home in Genoa.

—Miss Mildred Lanterman and Frances Herrick of South Lansing were guests of Mrs. Aleavia Lanterman Friday afternoon and Saturday last.

—Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Lundy of Indianola, Iowa, April 25, 1917, a daughter. Mrs. Lundy was formerly Miss June Skinner of Genoa.

—We are pleased to note the improved condition of Mrs. Walter Tilton, who has been critically ill during the past week. Mrs. M. Tilton, who has also been ill, is much improved.

—Albert Stark of Mullet Lake, Mich., who has been in town for a week on business connected with the settlement of the estate of his mother, the late Mrs. Miranda Shaw, left for his home Thursday.

—F. J. Howell has sold his farm, south of this village, and the family will leave this week for their new home near Fairport. The new owner of the place, which was formerly a part of the Amos Main property, is Fred Woods of Fairport. We understand he is to continue the milk route in this village.

—H. C. Odell, who occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church last Sunday, has accepted a call to become pastor of the church, and expects to get settled here about May 15. He will be ordained to the ministry after coming here. Mr. Odell was accompanied to Genoa last Saturday by his wife and they were entertained at the home of Robt. Mastin.

If it is a new Hat, at the right price you will find it at Mrs. Singer's, Genoa. 40

—Mrs. Mary Sill and Mrs. Frank Gillespie of Genoa, and Mrs. C. F. Strong and Mrs. J. D. Sharpsteen of East Genoa were in Auburn Monday to attend the annual convention and reception of the grand officers of the Order of the Eastern Star for the 27th district. Three hundred delegates were present. Addresses were given by the grand officers and an exemplification of ritualistic work was given. Mrs. Lillian B. Osborn of Union Springs is the district deputy grand matron.

—The "Musical Stunt Show" given under the auspices of the Philathea class of the Presbyterian church on Friday and Monday evenings, was a pleasing success and was well attended. The receipts from admittance tickets for the two evenings amounted to $76, but the expenses of the entertainment were heavy. The program as published in THE TRIBUNE was rendered in a very creditable manner by all who had a part in it. We do not hesitate to pronounce it one of the best home talent productions ever given here, though entirely different from anything heretofore attempted. The young people feel that they ought to have larger financial returns for the time and work put upon the concert, and so they have arranged to give it at Venice Center hall this (Friday) evening and at Rafferty's hall, King Ferry, Saturday evening. We predict they will have large audiences at both places.

—Mrs. Lois Ames of Ithaca spent Sunday with Mrs. L. B. Norman.

—Mrs. Thos. Riley and daughter spent two days recently in Auburn.

—Mrs. Grace Stickle returned Saturday evening from a week's visit in Earlville.

—Clyde S. Mead, a private in Co. M, Auburn, called on his aunt, Mrs. Ruth Avery, Sunday evening.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith of Auburn spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday with his parents here.

—Lewis McKellop and son George McKellop and Thos. Riley were in Moravia on business Saturday.

—Mrs. Martha Lester of Locke, who has been ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Amanda Whipple, is reported as improving.

—Miss Reiser returned Tuesday evening from Quakertown, Pa., where she was called last week by the death of her brother.

—The teachers of Dist. No. 4 of this county met in Genoa Saturday last to arrange for the agricultural census to be taken by the schools, Monday.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Banker returned Monday evening from a visit in Syracuse, bringing their little grandson, Vincent VanBroeklin, with them.

—Mrs. B. F. Samson and Mrs. S. Wright attended the district meeting of the Past Grand association of the Rebekah lodge in Auburn, Wednesday of last week.

—Mrs. D. W. Gower and Mrs. C. A. Smith were in Syracuse Wednesday and Thursday of last week, and were also guests of Mrs. Mary Hunt in Auburn, returning home Friday.

—Miss Mary Waldo returned this week from Seneca Falls where she had been spending the past two weeks. Mrs. W. T. Cannon has been spending several days at the home of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Waldo.

—Gordon Smith returned Wednesday evening from Canisteo, where he had been attending school the past year. The young men of the High school department there have left school to enlist in the agricultural service.

—Plans are being made to hold the annual reunion of the survivors of the Ninth New York Heavy Artillery with Charles L. Shergur in Union Springs on Tuesday, Aug 14. This will be Comrade Shergur's birthday.

—Dr. M. K. Willoughby of Auburn, formerly of Genoa, left Sunday evening for Baltimore, Md., where on Wednesday he was united in marriage to Miss Estelle Ritter of that city. Dr. and Mrs. Willoughby will reside at 93 Wall St., in Auburn.

—Mrs. D. C. Mosher returned to her home in this village Wednesday afternoon, after an absence of four months. Miss Dora Addy of Ithaca is spending a week or two with her. Mrs. Mosher has been caring for her sister at Lansingville for several weeks, and expects to return there later.

—William C. Rogers of Albany has been appointed by the New York City Department of Charities, industrial superintendent of two of the largest charitable institutions in the city, located in the Borough of Richmond, one of them the Sea View Hospital for incipient tuberculosis, the other the New York City Farm Colony, for dependent adults. Mr. Rogers' work will cover supervision of manufacturing, farming and other occupational work of the patients and inmates, and will include welfare work and employment for those discharged. He began his new duties April 15.

—The meeting called for last Saturday evening in Academy hall in response to Gov. Whitman's proclamation that Saturday be set aside as agricultural mobilization day, was well attended by the farmers and by some village people. Mr. R. R. Jansen, an assistant in the Farm Bureau office at Auburn, was present. He read President Wilson's letter which is addressed to the farmers of the entire country, urging the necessity of an adequate food supply for the present year. Mr. Jansen also explained the census to be taken on Monday and urged each farmer to answer all the questions, for the benefit of himself and other farmers. Rev. L. W. Scott read the governor's proclamation. Herbert Gay was chairman of the meeting.

—Miss M. A. Goodyear and nurse are now boarding at Wm. Loomis'.

—Military training has been instituted at Colgate University instead of athletics.

—The Erie, Oswego, Champlain and Cayuga and Seneca canals will be opened for navigation on May 15.

—The annual meeting of the Northern American Baptist Convention will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, May 16 to 22.

—The new pastor of the Dryden Presbyterian church, Rev. Arnold Smith, was installed Thursday evening of this week.

—Rev. B. L. Herr has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church at Homer after a service of ten years, to take effect July 1.

—The Cortland Democrat is of the opinion that "When spring house cleaning gets going in full blast, more men will feel like enlisting."

—Union Springs taxpayers voted, 139 to 6, at a special meeting last Friday to continue the electric light service of that village. The contract will be for five years.

—The Board of Trustees of Oakwood Seminary at Union Springs have decided to move the school to Poughkeepsie within two years. The building will be repaired for use the coming year.

—Deputy Sheriff Charles D. Shaff of Moravia died Wednesday morning, after a long illness. He was 74 years old, and leaves a wife and two sons. Mr. Shaff had been a deputy sheriff for about thirty years.

—The Baptist society of Newfield, which recently lost their church building by fire, will rebuild and have purchased a new site for the structure. Since the fire which destroyed the church, a chemical engine has been secured by the village fire department.

—Among the eight nurses graduated from Ithaca Hospital Nurses' Training school on Tuesday evening were Gertrude May Stowell of North Lansing and Marie Antoinette Allen of Ludlowville. Dr. W. L. Wallace of Syracuse delivered the commencement address.

—Co. M., Third New York Infantry, of Auburn left Wednesday morning for "somewhere" in the western part of the state. A crowd of more than a thousand people gathered to see them off. There were 95 men and two officers in the company. Capt. B. C. Mead was in command.

—R. R. Davis, several years editor of the Tully Times, who is wintering in Florida at Palatka, writes to the Times that the potato crop in that section had not advanced far enough to be damaged by the freeze, and as a consequence twelve thousand acres are about ready to harvest, and soon train loads of potatoes will be on their way North.

—Plant trees as well as gardens, says the State Conservation Commission, in a statement issued regarding the need of timber and wood supplies both in peace and war. The forests of America have been devastated during a period of peace, says the Commission, but no adequate policy of renewing them has yet been followed.

—A salt plant for Groton is quite certain: While testing for natural gas last fall just north of Groton, a large mine of pure salt was discovered. This mine has a thickness of approximately 60 feet, which it is declared will furnish a supply for manufacture for the next fifty years at least. It is stated that no buildings will be erected until fall, but a lot of preliminary work will be done this summer.

—Two men Sunday evening, who were racing horses, narrowly escaped running into the car of H. M. Roe in this village. The rigs turned the corner from Cayuga St. into Main St., and if the car had not pulled out in the ditch just as it did, there would have been a collision. There were no lights on either of the carriages. A tire on the car was about ruined, and Mr. Roe wishes the men would call and settle the damages and save further trouble.

—A peculiar accident occurred on the L. V. K. R. at Locke last Friday evening about 9 o'clock, when a coal train of twenty cars was partially derailed, and 100 tons of coal were distributed along the track. Ten cars were thrown off the track and some overturned. The track was torn up for some distance. The engine did not leave the track. It is thought that a broken flange on a wheel was the cause of the wreck. No one was injured.

A. T. HOYT,
Leading Jeweler & Optometrist,
HOYT BLOCK MORAVIA, N. Y.

—Rev. G. C. Carter, formerly pastor of the Baptist church at McLean, has accepted a charge at Middlesex, Yates county.

—The semi-annual meeting of the Central association of Congregational churches and ministers was held in the Good Will Congregational church in Syracuse April 24 and 25.

—Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey of Independence, Kansas, is the new president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, succeeding Mrs. William Cummings Story.

—The next meeting of the New York State Press association will be held at Ithaca in June. Frank E. Gannett, publisher of the Ithaca Journal, is president of the association.

—Three Baptist ministers, one of whom is Rev. Stephen Hancock of Binghamton, well known in Central New York, joined the Wyoming Methodist conference at Coopers-town recently.

—The annual prize speaking contest of Moravia High school will be held in the Opera House in that village Friday evening, May 11. Among those to participate will be Miss Carrie Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Arnold of Venice. Miss Jennie Ford of Genoa will not enter the contest.

—The Masonic lodge of Trumansburg has purchased the Cornell House in that village and will remodel the building into a Masonic Temple. The Cornell House is a large brick structure and for a number of years was conducted as a hotel. Probably the first floor of the building will be used for Masonic purposes. The second floor of the building will undoubtedly be remodeled into apartments.

ABOUT FURS.

Points About the Favorite Pelts This Season.

At present sealskin was almost anything originally. Muskrats and rabbits are mostly used. These substitutes have not undergone as elaborate and disguising a process as the real seal, which is first of all plucked, the coarse hair being entirely removed to show the soft fur underneath. But even that fur must be dyed.

So there is no such thing as natural sealskin, except the hairy silvery pelt which forms a handsome moosecoat, usually of some few years' standing.

Ermine is the favorite fur and in sets and trimmings may be worn en promenade. For evening there are long ermine cloaks.

Chinchilla, also costing huge sums is another fur which is likely to be becoming to certain women. Several furs imitate it from a distance and opossum is in something the same coloring.

Skunk is a very useful and becoming fur and serves in a thousand ways, being as much favored for trimmings as it is for sets. It is the general choice for collar and cuffs and trim profusely many a "Hudson bay seal" coat.

In novelties long black monkey is a Paris fad for trimming dresses.

This long fur appears in numerous ways, but as a fringe on evening gowns it is most conspicuous.

Fox sets are fairly classic.

Silver fox is one of the handsomest. Fisher is a magnificent choice, but it is a rather heavy fur, a good sized set being somewhat weighty.

Russian fitch, cream and brown makes a handsome set. The long stole and the muff are made up in the mode and most approved for sable sets.

The beauty and richness of furs are indeed a delight.

SMART EFFECT.

good looking walking hat. What ornament it lacks is provided by the dashing cape of the long coat in broad cloth, also blue.

Musical Birthright of Children.

In the most remote villages in this country, in purely industrial communities, among the poor and among the rich (both have forgotten), children love good songs. It is their natural inheritance. No excess of materialism in the generations affects it in the least. This is the primitive endowment. Deep down in human character there lies a harmony of adjustment with nature. Overlay it as you may with custom or habit, sully it with luxury, it still persists, for with it human life cannot be. This idealistic basis of human life, which is never destroyed, appears fresh and unstained in children and in song it bubbles up as from a pure spring-Atlantic Monthly.

Roast Young Pig.

A pig about six weeks old is best for roasting whole. Scald and scrape the skin and clean thoroughly the inside the head and the feet, removing the hoofs. Score the skin in squares, rub lard over it and season with salt and pepper. Fill with a broad dressing as for turkey, or make a cornmeal dressing as follows: Salt two quarts of cornmeal as for bread and mix to a stiff batter with boiling water; spread in shallow pans and bake. When cool break it up and add to it one-quarter pound of butter, pepper to taste and a tablespoonful of sage or thyme. Fill the pig till plump, sew it up and place it on its knees in the roasting pan. Keep plenty of water in the pan and baste frequently, turning the pig as you would a turkey.

A half hour before the pig is done place whole red apples in the pan and bake.

Practical Laundry Slips.

For a few cents you can have a salesman's manifold order book containing carbon paper. Use this when you make out your laundry slip and you will have one copy for yourself.

The Rifled Purse

Mystery of a Remarkable Crime and Its Solution

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright by Charles W. Hooke.

Mrs. Culver is a widow, young and fair and very rich. Her ways have been ways of pleasantness throughout the whole span of her years, and she is today the happiest creature that exists under the blue arch of heaven. Even a trifling malady of the heart with which she is afflicted may be counted as a blessing not only to herself, but to her physician and to me. It spices her life with a delightful though wholly imaginary uncertainty. She is capable of a delicious melancholy and reads the works of the gentler philosophers with a profit and joy which might otherwise be denied to her. And, besides, she takes a lively pleasure in changing her will about once in three months with the help of my legal advice. Upon such occasions the enumeration of her various properties gives her a childish gratification wholly unmercenary, a liberal fee is mine, and when I meet her doctor we never fail to shake hands upon the excellent state of Mrs. Culver's health.

Mrs. Culver is a discoverer of genius, chiefly in the fields of music and poetry, and has helped many worthy young persons, with only a moderate sprinkling of mere schemers and spongers. Every new object of her favor inspires her with a fresh desire to attack the impossible problem of establishing a permanent charity for the needy children of Apollo, and (only upon paper, of course) I have squandered millions for her in this way. A natural delicacy restrains her from immediate benefactions of any great magnitude, and so she adds a codicil to her voluminous will and nearly always revises her general scheme of charity at the same time.

Upon a certain day I had an appointment to call upon Mrs. Culver at 3 in the afternoon, and I looked forward to the usual agreeable interview.

When I entered her house I was aware of music, very good music, as I am compelled to admit. Some one was playing upon the piano in the smaller drawing room upon my right. I guessed at once that the performer must be a young Dane named Nils Kronold, whose genius had recently been brought to Mrs. Culver's attention.

The butler informed Mrs. Culver of my presence, and she came to the reception room, where we exchanged a few words. I learned that she had encountered Mr. Kronold in one of the big stores and had brought him home in her carriage. If I cared to hear him play she would take me into the drawing room, but if time pressed with me she would dismiss him and give her attention to business.

Meanwhile the talented Dane continued to discourse most excellent music, and although my conversation with Mrs. Culver occupied more minutes than the brief summary of it might seem to indicate, Mr. Kronold did not cease to play. The sound was always in my ears, although not constantly attended, yet I am sure that if it had been interrupted beyond the natural small pauses of the musical score I should instantly have been aware of the fact and should not have failed to remember it afterward.

I have said, however, that I did not give a steady hearing to the sweet strains that were wafted across to us. The reason was twofold—first, I preferred the voice of my hostess to any other music, and, second, I had observed something which, though it had no especial significance at the moment, excited my curiosity and tended to deflect my attention. Behind Mrs. Culver there was a mirror, and it gave me a view of the part of the hall and of the entrance of the room where Mr. Kronold was. A heavy curtain was hung across that door. I saw the butler—a lean, dark, anxious man, whose name is Derby—draw the curtain aside and enter. I saw him presently emerge, and it seemed to me that his demeanor was not ordinary. It was furtive, tense and nervously indecisive.

There was a chair in a corner of the hall, and he sat down in it and got up again in an unnatural way, as if his action had been part of a mild nightmare. I saw his right hand hovering around the breast pocket of his coat, and I knew that that pocket held unusual contents. Finally he glanced toward the door of the reception room, caught a glimpse, I suppose, of my observing eyes in the mirror, and immediately his distress increased.

"By all means," said I in response to a renewed suggestion by my hostess, "I should be very much pleased to meet Mr. Kronold."

Upon this we crossed to the drawing room, the butler holding the curtain for our convenience and entering after us in response to a sign from his mistress, who doubtless required some small service of him, though what it was she could not remember, for the excitement of the next few minutes obliterated the matter from her mind.

Mr. Kronold seemed oblivious of our coming. His back was toward us; his eyes were intent upon the score, for it appeared that he was playing something new to his repertory, a purchase of that afternoon. This circumstance may account for the fact that he was giving his third rendition of it when we entered. I remembered having heard those chords while the butler was admitting me to the house and again while Mrs. Culver and I were talking in the reception room.

I think that Mrs. Culver was about to make a gesture to me, indicating that we should wait in silence for the conclusion of the piece, but a sudden shock of surprise arrested her. Following the direction of her glance, I saw a plain table, which stood in the center of the room, seemingly an addition to the ordinary furniture, and now littered with a great number of unframed engravings, upon the midst of which there lay a lady's hand bag. The mouth of the bag was open and gaped at us pathetically like a dying fish.

"Where is my money?" said Mrs. Culver in a strained and whispering tone, and I could have fancied that she addressed the question to the empty bag and that the inanimate creature's open mouth replied in the popular phrase of the day, "You can search me."

The gifted Kronold wheeled about upon the piano stool and sprang to his feet.

"Why, Mrs. Culver," he cried, "surely it's not possible!"

I interrupted him by suddenly addressing Derby, the butler, who was about to withdraw from the scene.

"Don't go," said I, and then to Mrs. Culver: "Pardon me, I think it is important that Derby should remain. I saw him enter this room and leave it, and since then he has not been out of my sight. So if anything is missing he has a perfect opportunity to prove his innocence immediately. In justice to him I could not see him lose this chance by absenting himself at this juncture."

Derby's distress was extreme and ludicrously obvious. In my mind there was no doubt at all that the missing money was in the man's breast pocket.

"What was the sum?" I asked Mrs. Culver. "And in what form was it?"

"Not quite $10,000," she replied. "There were nine $1,000 bills," and she gave me the whimsical womanly reasons which had led her to close her account with a certain bank and take the sum in cash.

"And you carried so much money in that bag?" said I. "It was a risk."

"Ah, but this is not an ordinary bag," said she, and, taking it from the table, she closed it and gave it to me. "Let me see you open it."

I was unable to do so, for there was a secret spring most ingeniously devised.

"This is the way," said she, taking it from me, and in a moment she had replaced it upon the table, open.

"Are you sure the money was there when you left this room?" I asked.

"Positive," she answered. "And, besides, the bag was closed. Somebody must have opened it."

"Yes," said Kronold. "I distinctly remember that it lay upon the table, closed, when I sat down to the piano a few moments ago."

"I don't remember where I put it," said Mrs. Culver, "but," she added, with decision, "I know that it was shut."

"It lay like this," said Kronold, and he put the bag upon a corner of the table, not in the middle, as it had lain when my attention was first drawn to it. "And now," he continued, "there have been only two persons in this room, myself and this servant. In this matter I will claim no advantage over him. His honor may be as precious to him as mine is to me. So this is what must be done." And he proceeded to empty his pockets.

"But you were at the piano all the time," protested Mrs. Culver. "Aside from the absurdity of the idea that you would do such a thing, you really couldn't, you know."

She turned to me for confirmation, and I had no choice but to support the argument. It was a perfect certainty that Kronold had played continuously for some time preceding Mrs. Culver's leaving the room. Nevertheless I yielded to the musician's plea and helped him search himself. He did not find the money.

Then Derby stepped forward, his hand in his breast pocket, and, with most moving evidences of shame and contrition, he produced a letter addressed to Mrs. Culver and bearing the return stamp of a well known employment agency. He had given her the letter when she came in with Kronold and had seen her put it upon the table in the drawing room. Some days before he had incurred the lady's displeasure, and he feared this communication dealt with the question of his successor, so he had so far debased himself at the behest of natural curiosity as to go in and get the letter, intending to read it in the hall and return it to its place before Mrs. Culver should miss it.

"But I didn't take the money," he declared, with tears in his eyes.

And, if he had taken it, what in the name of all mystery had he done with it? He could not have hidden it in the hall, because my eyes were on him, and he had been nowhere else except in the drawing room itself, and there not more than one minute, as I could testify. Moreover, if Mrs. Culver had left the bag closed, how could Derby have known that the money was in it?

Kronold knew, for Mrs. Culver had told him, but the lady had opened the bag after entering the room and had seen the money in it. Therefore if Kronold had taken it it must still be in the room. But the table was at least fifteen feet distant from the piano, and my own eyes bore witness that Kronold had played all the time that he was alone.

Mrs. Culver evidently believed that Derby had hidden the money in the room, and she began a search. Derby meanwhile was leaning against the wall, a figure of wood. Kronold took me aside. He had the bag in his hands, and he covertly showed me a small moist stain upon it.

"That looks to me like blood," said he. "Do you observe that Derby has a scratch across two of his fingers?"

"Yes," I answered, "but it doesn't seem to be bleeding."

"I saw him wiping it with his handkerchief," said he. "Now, if this stain is blood that shows that the fellow is lying, for he said that he did not touch the bag. It's only a step to the Children's hospital, and one of the doctors over there could tell me in a jiffy whether it's blood or not. Then we'd have Derby in a noose."

"THAT LOOKS TO ME LIKE BLOOD," SAID HE

At this moment Mrs. Culver in her seat approached the piano, and I saw a spasm of uncontrollable nervous terror sweep over Kronold's face. A great illumination dawned upon my mind—the money was in the piano! Mrs. Culver had not remembered just where she had put down the bag. She must have put it on the piano and not on the table. Kronold had opened it with one hand, while pounding the keys with the other, had taken out the money and then had cleverly tossed the bag to the table.

I may as well say at once that my deductions—except as to the hiding place of the money—were absolutely accurate. That is precisely the way in which the robbery was committed. Subsequent investigations proved Kronold to be a beast of prey, with a long record on the other side of the Atlantic. He was, besides, as clever as a conjuror and one to whom the trick of the bag's lock was simple as A B C.

At that moment I had an inspiration to save Mrs. Culver a shock. A painful scene was inevitable, but it had better involve no one except the thief and myself.

"Mr. Kronold has made a brilliant suggestion," said I, addressing the lady. "It will necessitate our going out together for a few minutes. May I ask you to remain in this room, keep Derby here and admit no one else?"

Mrs. Culver assented without question, and Kronold and I left the room. The musician seemed glad of my company, and as I stepped out from Mrs. Culver's portal into the glare of the western sun my mind was busy with the riddle of the man's demeanor. The next instant I was alone. The heavy door was shut, and Kronold was upon the other side of it.

It may have been ten seconds before I had the wit to use my knuckles and the bell. Derby admitted me, wondering.

"Where is Kronold?" I demanded.

The butler stared and stammered.

"I—I supposed he went out with you, sir."

This, however, was a grievous error. Mr. Kronold went out of that house by way of a basement door and thence to the street at the rear.

And now I come to the richest part of the joke—the money went with him. It had been in his pocket up to the moment when he stood by the table showing how the bag had lain. Then the clever rascal put it into the bag and snapped the lock and immediately entered upon the face of the search of his own garments. The plunder was hidden in the very receptacle from which it had been stolen, and the thief so carried it from the scene of his remarkable crime. The stain upon the bag he made with his own wetted finger. These facts he confessed when he was caught upon an ocean steamer at the moment of her sailing on the following day.

Do You Believe In God? Then Outwardly Manifest It by Going to Church.

IT is not enough for one to say that he lives a righteous life and that he believes in a Supreme Being. He must give OUTWARD MANIFESTATION of that belief. There is only one way that a man can give OUTWARD MANIFESTATION of his belief in and love of God, and that is by GOING TO CHURCH. The church is the home of God. He reigns there. On great feast days like Easter, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's the churches are filled to overflowing. People GO TO CHURCH to honor God and thank him for his blessings. Don't wait for these feast days to GO TO CHURCH and then stay away from church for the remainder of the year. EVERY SUNDAY is a feast day of the church.

AS A RESULT OF THE COUNTRY WIDE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT THERE HAS BEEN A SPLENDID INCREASED ATTENDANCE IN THE CHURCHES. BUT THERE ARE MANY WHO HAVE BEEN DEAF TO THE CALL. IF YOU ARE ONE OF THESE, MAKE UP YOUR MIND TO GO TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY. TELL YOUR WIFE OF YOUR RESOLUTION, AND NOTE THE PLEASED LOOK ON HER FACE. TELL YOUR CHILDREN, AND IT WILL MAKE AN IMPRESSION ON THEM FOR LIFE. A PARENT CAN ILL AFFORD TO ASK HIS CHILDREN TO GO TO CHURCH AND REMAIN AWAY FROM DIVINE SERVICE HIMSELF.

Going to church DOESN'T REQUIRE ANY GREAT SACRIFICE. The services are at a seasonable hour. They are not long. You surely MEET THE RIGHT KIND OF PEOPLE there. The sermons invariably are INSTRUCTIVE AND UPLIFTING. Try going to church next Sunday. See if you don't feel better for it. It will help you to overcome the temptations of the world. You'll hesitate before you do a wrong act. Sin brings its punishment; righteousness its reward. If you want to earn the reward of righteousness and avoid the punishment of sin, be a regular church attendant.

The Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, at its annual meeting in New York, adopted a committee report which declared that the society was "unalterably opposed to any government that has thrown aside all consideration of humanity."

Postmaster George J. Meyer of Buffalo will contribute his salary, $6,000 a year, to relief funds until the end of the war. He put the announcement of his decision into action by giving $250, his salary for the first half of the month, to the mayor's $100,000 relief fund.

An order has been issued by the commissioner of agriculture revoking the rabies quarantine in the city of Batavia and in the towns of Batavia, Bergen, Byron, Le Roy, Pavilion, Stafford and Bethany, but the western section of Genesee county will still be under quarantine.

To provide against the outbreak of infantile paralysis in Northern New York this summer local health officials and workers in that section who believe that the epidemic which appeared last year will reappear this summer, are preparing to take advantage of all of the information secured by investigators this winter.

Officers and delegates of farm bureaus and agricultural associations, representing over 25,000 farmers in 41 counties of New York in Ithaca adopted resolutions calling on the federal government to prohibit the manufacture of liquors made from grain and thereby save 625,000,000 bushels of grain for food consumption each year.

John H. Finley, state commissioner of education, telegraphed to the 207 district school superintendents of the state requesting them and the teachers and pupils to gather data for the use of the governor's patriotic agriculture committee in making a survey of the agricultural resources of the state. The expenses incurred are to be paid by the governor's committee.

In a resolution adopted by the Peeksskill board of commerce and telegraphed to Governor Whitman, the intention of the governor was called to the fact that state farm of 1,300 acres situated in Yorktown, Westchester county, has not been cultivated for several years. The board urged the utilization of this land in the campaign to increase food production.

Eight hundred boy pupils of Rochester public schools between the ages of 16 and 19 years, had their first taste of compulsory military training under the personal direction of Major Charles M. Tobing, of the 1st New York Cavalry, instructor in military training for the 7th judicial district, which includes the counties of Monroe, Livingston, Cayuga, Ontario, Seneca, Steuben, Wayne and Yates.

Only about three per cent of the total population of New York state is engaged in agricultural pursuits according to a report made public by the state department of agriculture. The report asserts that approximately 375,000 persons are actually engaged in farm work while there is a total population of 10,260,000. The report also shows that the total acreage of New York state farms is 22,030,367, but only 8,250,000 acres are under cultivation.

Definite steps to aid farmers of Seneca county to largely increase the production of foodstuffs were taken at a meeting of high school principals in Mynderse academy in Seneca Falls. It was determined that students over 14 years of age, whose work during the school year has been up to standard and who wish to engage in farm work for the season, will be permitted to do so and receive full credit for the full year's work in school.
