GOOD EYESIGHT
Nature's greatest gift to mankind. Even though a hand or foot be missing, a person may succeed in his calling, but brave indeed are they who persist after losing the sense of sight. The precious gift of good vision should not be by any means be allowed to become impaired, either through misuse or neglect. If you have the slightest cause to suspect that your eyesight may be defective you should call and let me make a thorough examination of your eyes at once. My experience with thousands of cases in the past 20 years enables me to give you valuable advice.

FOUR hundred thousand men,
The brave, the good, the true,
In tangled wood, in mountain glen,
On battle plain, in prison pen,
Lie dead for me and you!
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Have made our ransomed soil their grave
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

IN many a fevered swamp,
By many a black bayou,
In many a cold and frozen camp
The weary sentinel ceased his tramp
And died for me and you!
From western plain to ocean tide
Are stretched the graves of those who died
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

ON many a bloody plain
Their ready swords they drew
And poured their life blood like the rain,
A home, a heritage, to gain,
To gain for me and you!
Our brothers mustered by our side;
They marched, they fought and bravely died
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

UP many a fortress wall
They charged, those boys in blue,
'Mid surging smoke, the volley'd ball;
The bravest were the first to fall!
To fall for me and you!
Those noble men, the nation's pride,
Four hundred thousand men have died
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

A DEBT we ne'er can pay
To them is justly due,
And to the nation's latest day
Our children's children still shall say,
"They died for me and you!"
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Made this our ransomed soil their grave
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

Proper Flag Display on May 30.
The following clause is from the United States Army regulations and indicates the proper use of the American flag on Memorial Day:
"On Memorial day, May 30, at all army posts and stations the national flag will be displayed at half staff from sunrise till midday, and immediately before noon the band or field music will play some appropriate air, and the national salute of twenty-one guns will be fired at 12 m. at all posts and stations provided with artillery.
"At the conclusion of this memorial tribute at noon the flag will be hoisted to the top of the staff and will remain there until sunset.
"When hoisted to the top of the staff the flag will be saluted by playing one or more appropriate patriotic airs. In this way fitting testimonial of respect for the heroic dead and honor to their patriotic devotion will be appropriately rendered."

At Arlington and Gettysburg.
The most impressive of the annual ceremonies are those which are held at the national cemetery at Arlington and on the battlefield of Gettysburg. Arlington cemetery, on the Virginia hill sides, rising in terraces from the Potomac and overlooking the capital of the Republic, is the last earthly home of thousands upon thousands of America's soldiers. On Decoration day a little flag flies from every one of the multitude of small white headstones which mark the restful slumbers of the no-

Day of Mourning Memories

WITH the civil war experiences memory a matter of fragrant, various memory to most of us, it is inevitable that the celebration of Memorial Day should take on an entirely different character as the years go by than in the case at the moment of its institution, when a poignant sense of loss pervaded the ceremonies and determined their place, the character and the drift of the addresses, such as the Philadelphia Ledger.

This is a natural change, and, with the passing of grief, the day has become one of glorious rather than sorrow fraught memories, in which the sacrifice of the individual on both sides has been merged into the general significance of the day as a commemoration of principles which ever rise above the accidents of time and the plans and purposes of men. In other words, the day, quite rightly, is given over to a searching of the hearts as to whether we understand the lessons of the past while enjoying, in peace, those things won by the men who were willing to do and die that the Union might prevail.

The frank transformation of Memorial Day from a "holy day" to a "holiday" has been a marked feature of such commemorative occasions in all times. Owing to a misunderstanding of national as well as human psychology, however, some complaint over this phase of Memorial Day celebrations has been voiced, but this is a narrow and mistaken viewpoint. For, indeed, historic analogies are all one way. The Greeks and the Romans glorified their heroes by funeral games. This was also a Scandinavian custom and is rooted deeply in all human experience in all peoples, primitive and civilized. Hence the fact that Memorial Day surpasses all others as a "day of sports" is not at all inconsistent with true and abiding realization of its essential solemnity.

Youth, glorifying in its strength, representing the physical prowess of the nation, can concentrate itself in no better way to these principles for which the heroes of the civil war fought than by its recourse to field and track and water course at a time of the year when nature itself is signifying its rebirth and is in the full flush of its original and seasonal vigor. The lessons of the day are not curtailed by the fact that the holiday character of the occasion brings out millions to celebrate in merry-making its glorious memories. They also serve who are cheerfully adding to the vital resources of the living nation as well as they who sorrow by the tomb.

TELLING THE CHILDREN THE STORY
ABSENT little, gray little man in an old blue uniform that had been brushed carefully, with newly polished buttons of brass, looked out from his dim old eyes upon the children of our large cities assembled in their classrooms and with a proud but age shrunken voice tried to tell them of the wonderful patriotism that had inspired himself and countless thousands of his brothers to face death on a hundred battlefields of the civil war that the nation might live.
"He really wasn't one old man; he was representative of the hundreds of G. A. R. veterans who visited the public schools and who were the center of the Memorial Day exercises.
The background for the patriotic talks was inspiring. From many platforms American flags hung in folds behind the gray haired warriors, many of whom perforce used canes to help them stand during their speeches.

A quaint custom thrived again when the girls and boys carried to school little plants and flowers that they had bought with pennies they had slowly and painfully accumulated at the cost of the lollipop sellers and pretzel vendors. These plants they gave to their teachers, and the blooms were then removed to the cemeteries, where they were arranged on the soldiers' graves.

ON GOD'S HIGHWAY
A Memorial Day Poem
By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By close packed graves
Slow progress paves
The roadway to the goal
Nor counts the cost
Of atoms lost
To make the purposed whole.

And he who dies
Because he tries
To stand by what seems right,
Is part for aye,
Of God's highway,
That leads out to the light.

For Thee This Day For All the Nation We'll Ever Keep Alike

O sweet springtime, that comes in May,
When earth awakes from her long dream
And bud and blossom deck the way
And fields are clad in emerald green
'Tis then we tell
How brave men fell
On southern soil, 'neath sunny skies,
To save the heritage we prize.

OUR FRESHEST CHAPLETS WE WILL BRING.

Memorial day—we honor thee;
Our freshest chaplets we will bring
And lay them reverentially
Upon each mound, while sweet birds sing
Melodious lays
For bright spring days.
Victorious thou—sleep, soldier, sleep,
For thee this day we'll ever keep.

At last again a bugle blast
Will summon them (a final call)
(Earth's deeds are with the buried past)
And penetrate each marble hall.
God knoweth well
All those who fell;
His roster roll bears each one's name
And superscribed, "immortal fame."

Five decades have passed away;
Our flag floats o'er the land and sea,
Its folds encircling blue and gray,
For gray and blue united be.
And gray and blue,
Forever true,
Throughout the centuries to come
Will march in perfect union.
—E. Clifford Wadsworth.

Salute the Dead,
I, with uncovered head,
Salute the sacred dead
Who went and return not.
—James Russell Lowell.

A Governor's Tribute

NOW I hear his whistle; now I hear his song; now I hear the music of his horse's hoofs. He has said his last goodbye to the old home. That was many years ago. All this comes to me through the magician called Memory. On Memorial Day I shall place flowers on his grave. Just a few of the "boys in blue" linger to recall the civil war scenes.

Remember the dead, although they cannot acknowledge your flowers. In all the years to come the graves of our dead patriots can be decorated, but only for a few short years can we gladden the eye and shake the hand of the veteran. When we place flowers on every grave, when we speak graciously of the dead, we give most joy, most sympathy, to those who remain to love in memory the dead.
On Memorial day we are sure that if the immortal Lincoln and the armies of the north and the armies of the south could with us assemble on one great camp ground they would join in one great chorus for universal peace and good will.
Therefore I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, governor of the state of Michigan, do hereby issue this my proclamation and heartily urge the observance of May 30 as Memorial Day.
As a part of the public exercises of Memorial Day I suggest that bells be tolled from 12 o'clock noon until 12:05, that flags be placed at half mast and that comrades stand with uncovered heads during this period.

Lending the Vet. A Helping Hand

IN every Memorial Day celebration in the large cities, and in the smaller towns as well, there is touching evidence of the respect and esteem in which the surviving veterans of the civil war are held by the younger generation. Especially has this been noted since the organization of the boy scouts. These sturdy, manly little fellows are frequently chosen as escorts for the old men, and they perform their duties well, helping their charges over the rough places and looking generally after their comfort and welfare.
Of course the old fellows never admit openly that they need assistance. No, siree! The legs that carried them through the Wilderness or on the march to the sea are as good as they ever were! But when the parade line has gone over a portion of the prescribed distance—wisely shortened in these latter days—some of the older men guess they'd better rest awhile before going on. So they drop out of line, and, assisted by friendly hands, they disappear in the crowds. Dear old chaps! It is very hard for them to realize that their marching days are over. But of course there are still many thousands who are able to cover the route and who do so every year.

Every Memorial Day parade has its quota of veterans who do not even attempt to ride. For them comfortable carriages or automobiles are provided, and they ride in state, smiling benignly on the folks along the line who greet their appearance with hand claps and cheers. They ride in triumph as truly as did the Roman emperors of old. But their progress differs very widely from that of the returning conqueror, for the sentiment which is uppermost in the minds and hearts of the spectators of the Memorial day parades is not only adulation, but love—love and loyalty and gratitude for the survivors of "the men who saved the Union."

Why the Men of '61 Died.
The supporters of religion gave their lives for a principle. These martyrs of patriotism gave their lives for an idea.—Schuyler Colfax.

The Thrice-A-Week Edition OF THE New York World

IN 1917
Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.
The value and need of a newspaper in the household was never greater than at the present time. The great war in Europe is now half-way into its third year, and, whether peace be at hand or yet far off, it and the events to follow it are sure to be of absorbing interest for many a month to come.
These are world-shaking affairs, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, is compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues.
THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE GENOA TRIBUNE together for one year for $1.65.
The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

Seed Potatoes.

The action of the New York State Food Commission in furnishing seed potatoes to farmers will mean a production resulting from this seed alone of about 400,000 bushels. Through the Commission more than 40,000 bushels of potatoes have been supplied, and this means a large acreage to be planted to potatoes, in addition to the acreage to be planted from seed obtained from other sources and that retained by the farmers. The Commission has a number of applications before it for seed potatoes and they will be supplied as far as is possible at cost, plus the freight charges.

The Commission at a recent meeting discussed the problem of obtaining buckwheat seed, needed in this state for planting. The census reported only 54,264 bushels of buckwheat seed for sale. It showed a demand on the part of farmers for 94,866 bushels.

Do You Know That

Being healthy is the first duty of a citizen?

Disease is the greatest foe to human progress?

It's the unused body that deteriorates quickest?

Fly destruction is its own reward? A walk in the open is worth two in the house?

Personal hygiene is the first requisite for community health?

A small mosquito is a dangerous thing?

Most of the diseases from which man suffers are peculiar to man?

Former Ludlowville Resident.

Mrs. Alice Whipple died Saturday afternoon last at her home in Pine City. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Mrs. J. Morey of Ludlowville; a son, Frank Price, and two brothers, Samuel Wood of Pine City and Jerome Wood of South Lansing. Mrs. Whipple had lived in Ludlowville all her life until about ten years ago.

The body was brought to Ludlowville Monday, where the funeral was held Tuesday from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jay Morey. Interment in Pine Grove cemetery, Ludlowville.

Three cheers, three cheers for the olden time
And the brave that knew no fear;
They stood erect as the giant oak,
And laughed when the storm was near.

Like them we'll boast of the land we love
And her proud flag streaming high;
We'll sing aloud for the bright green hills,
While the ocean waves reply.

They dared to look in the flashing eye
Of the storm king when he passed.
A shout went up and a peal of joy
Rang out on the wintry blast.

The grass is green where they calmly rest,
Those veterans true and brave;
Their memory shines like a radiant star
O'er the land they died to save.

To Impress the Young.
It is a beautiful thought that at five minutes to noon on Memorial day all work shall cease and all flags be lowered. For five minutes of grand silence. In prayer and thought, let the living pay devotion to the dead. Let comrades and the people remember during those five minutes that for the preservation of our beloved country more than 550,000 patriotic Americans gave up their lives in the great struggle fifty years ago. This observance will mean much to the young and the coming generations, impressing upon them the duty of honoring the dead who gave up their lives for their country and their flag and teaching them annually a lesson in the fundamental truths of virtue, liberty and independence.

"Honor the Knightly Dead."
The honor, strength and safety of a nation depend upon the martial spirit of the people. To cherish and perpetuate this is our sacred duty. To place flowers upon the graves of the brave men who fell in battle is a privilege which the living should proudly claim. We thus honor the knightly dead and instill a knightly spirit into those who still live.—General Joe Wheeler.
