Metzgar Reunion.

The 27th annual reunion of the Metzgar relatives was held at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ferris Saturday, June 14. The day was perfect. The tables were set under a large tent and 108 partook of the dinner. The tables were loaded with all the goodies that could supply the wants of the inner man, including fruits, ice cream, etc.

It certainly was a bountiful dinner and enjoyed by all. Relatives from Rochester, Virgil, Freeville, Groton, Freetown and Locke were present, 20 automobiles standing in the yard. A pleasing program was given with recitations by some of the children and one by R. B. Ferris which were very enjoyable. The oldest person in the company was asked to rise. A lady 84 years old rose, and she was asked to make a speech. As she did not expect to be called upon she was not prepared but they urged her so much, she responded with "Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow and every where that Mary went the lamb was sure to go." She was heartily cheered. A pleasing feature of the occasion was that it was the 51st wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ferris and when the business meeting was called Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were requested to sit with them. The officers were all re-elected and they then presented Mr. and Mrs. Ferris with a beautiful cut glass water pitcher and six tumblers. Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were surely surprised and could hardly express their thanks to the relatives. Mrs. Chas. Egbert of South Lansing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris, read some original verses which were fine and appropriate:

We are gathered here together
On this glorious summer day,
To greet our host and hostess
Who are growing old and gray.

Fifty-one years ago to-day
In the sunny month of June,
They began life's way together
For sunshine or for gloom.

It has not all been sunshine
Sometimes there's been the gloom;
But they are still together
Still in the dear old home.

Where they commenced life's journey,
And where perhaps 'twill end;
When their travels are over
And the road has come to an end.

May their path be strewn with happiness
In all the years to come,
And all the way be brighter
Until they reach their Home.

Now we all will wish them
Many returns of the day,
Hoping to see them next year
On this glad reunion day.

Hugo, being retained. CLAIM CURE FOR GLANDERS

Italian Savants' Discovery, if True, Will Have Earned Them the Gratitude of Mankind.

The reviews of medicine and veterinary surgery speak of important researches looking to the cure of glanders, which afflicts horses and may also attack man, who almost invariably succumbs.

At the beginning of the war the spread of glanders, especially among the quadrupeds of the Third Italian army, suggested to Colonel Commanding Dr. E. Bertetti, director of the veterinary service of the army, the idea of utilizing the victims of glanders in making experiments in regard to its curability.

Obtaining permission of the war ministry and the supreme command of the army, the experiments were begun at Caerle in a sanitarium rigorously quarantined and equipped with all the latest scientific and surgical appliances.

Dr. Guido Finzi, head of the Institute of Pathology and Medical Clinics of the Superior Veterinary School of Turin, assisted Doctor Bertetti. After two years they announced that glanders was curable, not only in its chronic stages but also in its process of evolution.

The importance of the discovery and the evidence of the results obtained led the two experimenters to ask for a commission to make practical tests of their discoveries. The results fully confirmed the facts announced by Doctors Bertetti and Finzi.

PUT HYPNOTISM TO GOOD USE

Australian Physician Announces That He Has Cured War Stammering by Its Employment.

Writing in the Medical Journal of Australia, Dr. Clarence G. Godfrey states that during the past two years a number of cases have been referred to him for treatment by hypnotic suggestion, in which stammering or stuttering had developed, or had been revived, after years of disappearance, as the result of shell shock or of various war stresses. Sometimes a hypnotized patient has been told to keep on repeating some well-known nursery rhyme and not to cease at the signal to awake, although in the middle of the rhyme, but to keep on talking. He will usually manifest his astonishment at finding himself talking without difficulty. Sometimes a patient will converse on waking without realizing that his stammering has disappeared until his attention is drawn to it with amusing effect. In one case the patient spoke perfectly in sleep at the first attempt to hypnotize him, although he had had a very bad stutter for eight months past, being almost inarticulate. He woke in a few minutes apparently cured and has been free from stutter ever since.

It has been noticed that every case treated, even the worst, has been able to speak far better in the hypnotic state than out of it.

Little-Known Hero.

Of the many stories of heroism during the war on which official records are silent but which are being brought forth with relaxation of the censorship is that of Captain Larcombe of the anti-aircraft defenses of the London (Eng.) district. His job for four years has been to find and dispose of German aerial bombs that failed to explode when dropped on London.

After each air raid, and in the early part of the war there were many, Larcombe and his men would go about the city seeking the "duds." It was dangerous work extricating them from wherever they happened to drop, transporting them out of the city and exploding or otherwise destroying them. During the excitement after a raid few people thought of the bombs that failed to "go off," but all of them have ceased to be a menace to the city.

Feeding the Doughboys.

Food stores for the army on hand in the United States, its possessions, France, and in transit to France on Jan. 1, 1919, were valued at $300,000,000. At the time of the signing of the armistice approximately 10,000,000 pounds of food were being consumed by our troops in France each day, and there were on hand in France at that time 1,000,000,000 pounds of food in reserve. All this food has been transported on an average of 5,000 miles. It is estimated by the subsistence division that 3,000,000,000 meals were served to the army during the nineteen months of warfare with Germany.

Katie.

"Katie" is the soldiers' stuttering song. When little Mary first heard it she was amazed for she did not think that anyone except her little playmate Ruth stuttered. But when she heard it again and again she began to understand its nature. One day after hearing it she went to her older sister. "Margaret," she began, "don't you bet Ruth could sing 'Katie' better than anybody you know?"

HAVE SEEN MUCH BLOODSHED

Plains of Palestine Trampled by Many of the Mightiest Armies Known to History.

Definite historical records regarding events in Palestine may be said to begin with the first detailed account of the battle in the plains of Armageddon, when the army of Pharaoh Thothmes III, advancing up the plain of Sharon, crossed the Carmel range by the same route as that taken by General Allenby's cavalry in September, A. D. 1918, and defeated the Syrian federation under the king of Cadash before the fortress of Megiddo in the year 1479 B. C. This historic plain has seen the march of the armies of the Hittites, the Egyptians, the Jews under Deborah and Barak, the Philistines on their way to the defeat of Saul on Mount Gilboa. Then came like a wolf Sennacherib the Assyrian, and after him Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. The Persian Cambyses swept through Palestine in the sixth century B. C., en route for his work of destruction in Egypt. After the fall of Babylon Palestine saw the armies of Alexander the Great and Pompey. Vespasian, Titus and Hadrian all fought in Palestine. In A. D. 614 the Sassanian Emperor Chosroes, stretching forth from his capital at Ctesiphon, destroyed Jerusalem; once again the city was rebuilt, and within a generation was opened to the Arab and Moslem conqueror, Caliph Omar. In the twelfth century the crusaders took Palestine, which then became the scene of the romantic struggle between Richard Coeur de Lion and Saladin. Fifty years later the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II, known in the middle ages as "the Wonder of the World," crowned himself king of Jerusalem in the church of the Holy Sepulcher. In 1516 the armies of the Ottoman Turks under Selim the Grim marched down from Aleppo and seized the country on their way to the conquest of Egypt. Nearly three hundred years later Napoleon marched from Egypt through the same pass of Megiddo to the fortress of Acre; and now the forces of General Allenby have added one more link to this great historical chain wherein have been engaged practically all the greatest names in human history.—From "The Holy Land of Many Nations" by Maj. Ormsby Gore in Asia Magazine.

Fear to Retouch Master's Work.

"After the war of 1870," writes a correspondent of the Manchester (England) Guardian, "Rodin was a competitor among the sculptors who desired to create the monument celebrating France's defense. Naturally, his proposed design was rejected. Today, however, the dead Rodin is recognized as the greatest master of the century, and the old design has been discovered. It is suggested that it might well be called 'Verdun.' The trouble is that his model is not three feet in height, and although by the Colas process one can faithfully enlarge a small piece of statuary, the idea of doing so without Rodin to direct the operation and to add the necessary retouches before the work is finally cast does not commend itself to the majority of artists. Who will make these necessary corrections? It is a grave responsibility to meddle with the unfinished creation of a man like Rodin. Some natural feeling has been aroused, and although it is a pity to neglect a design which so perfectly expresses the spirit of the heroic defense, there would seem to be grave artistic and sentimental objections to the course proposed."

Paris Forts May Be Razed.

The question of the demolition of the ring of antiquated fortifications that surround Paris will be brought before the municipal council. This is not as a result of the armistice or because of the league of nations, which is expected to put an end to wars forever; or because of the fact that with modern artillery the fortifications would be useless. Louis Dausset, an alderman, sponsor for the project, argues that the benefits to be derived are a closer, easier contact with the Paris suburbs, elimination of the necessity of entering or leaving Paris through various gates and the freeing of valuable land for building purposes.

Ware Souvenirs.

Even "kultur" has its limitations. One of these is brought out in a letter from Private Ralph G. Kilbon of the Sixteenth engineers. He says: "I am in a dugout that was very hastily abandoned by a 'kultured' Boche. He was 'kultured' enough to have a nice feather tick in his bunk, which I appreciate in spite of the fact that even his 'kultur' didn't keep it from being alive. However, he left me his helmet for a box and plenty of candles to light up the place. There is everything in the line of souvenirs that one could ask, but everything I have goes on my back, with an overcoat, blankets, raincoat, shelter tent and extra clothes, so the souvenirs will stay just about where they are, unless somebody comes along with a truck."

You will want to have all the news from our troops on European battlefields, and 1919 promises to be the most momentous year in the history of our universe. No other newspaper at so small a price will furnish such prompt and accurate news of these world-shaking events. It is not necessary to say more. RUSS PRISONERS IN GERMAN CAMP

Problem Both to the Allies and Their Captors.

400,000 ARE BEING HELD

American Red Cross Worker Gives a Description of the Camp at Ruhleben—No Stable Government in Russia to Which the Captives Can Be Turned Over—American Red Cross Cares for Needs of Men.

Russian prisoners of war in Germany constitute a problem. To repatriate other prisoners is comparatively simple, but there is no stable government to which the 400,000 Russians can safely be entrusted, none competent to undertake caring for them. The revolt at home makes possible a revolt among the prisoners, and the advance of spring has given rise to fear of a general exodus toward their border. Both the allies and Germany find the situation disquieting. This description of a Russian prison camp in Germany was written by an American Red Cross worker:

The buildings at Ruhleben now used for prisoners consist of old stables and pavilions, which have been supplemented by barracks similar to those used by American soldiers in France. The situation is excellent, well drained and with any amount of open space. One can trace in the center of the race course the faded white lines of former cricket and football grounds—always an indication of occupancy by English soldiers.

Upon our arrival at the camp we were ushered into the American army headquarters, where the lieutenant in command was holding a conference with the Russian prisoners' committee. The subject under discussion was the preparation of plans for an entertainment to be given by prisoners themselves. We were told that they were just arguing the relative merits of banjos and guitars when we came in.

Inspection of Camp.
The subject was postponed while we formed in groups for an inspection of the camp. We had come at an auspicious moment, for the men were just assembling for the midday meal in long lines outside the mess kitchen. We had an excellent opportunity to inspect their clothing and general appearance. All of them were warmly clad, and shod either with leather shoes or sabots. The condition of the clothing seemed to vary with the industry and ingenuity of the wearer. Patches and seams made a medley of color, while the variety of headgear, varying from a Cossack's fur turban to an English Tommy's discarded cap, lent a strange, even comical, appearance to the long mess line.

The men themselves were apparently in a good physical condition, but they were for the most part silent and somewhat morose. Here was none of the animation and liveliness of the usual mess lines.

We went into one of the kitchens and saw the men being served with the thick potato soup, in which was floating a surprising quantity of meat. One of the cooks obligingly came forward with a plateful and a spoon, and we went through the ritual of tasting it. It was really very good. This soup is cooked in large cauldrons, dexterously stirred with long wooden shovels, and as fast as one cauldron is emptied it is scrubbed and cleaned and a new mess of pottage begun. Some of the men ate their soup in the kitchens, but the majority preferred to carry it to their barracks. Presently we went into one of these and found it very warm, very close and a bit smelly. But to a people accustomed in Russia to sleeping on tops of stoves this condition seemed not unnatural and even agreeable.

Disinfecting Process.
Here were groups of men sitting on their bunks, consuming their soup in a stolid and ruminative way, or playing a silent game of cards which seemed to me to resemble pinochle. All of the bunks had blankets and bedding, obviously in need of renovation, and we were glad to hear that this was being carried out very rapidly. In one corner we came upon a lively little Jewish prisoner, once a tailor, now busy making a suit of clothes out of a blanket. The trousers, which he was just finishing, were all beautifully and carefully hand sewn. He was working the border design of the blanket into a sort of a decoration for the front of the coat.

We next went to the disinfecting and bath house, which we found equipped with steam pressure clothing disinfectors and hot water shower baths. The whole camp was being put through the delousing and disinfecting process, and in one of the rooms we came upon a striking evidence of American Red Cross activity. Here was a group of men, newly scrubbed with good American soap and hot water, clad in fresh white flannel underclothing, undergoing a general physical and medical examination. From here they passed into an adjoining room, where they donned again their clothing newly cleaned and disinfected. They grinned with delight when, touching the new underwear, I displayed the only Russian expression that I knew—a sort of an equivalent of "tres bien, ne c'est pas?"
The camp hospital is a solid looking brick building, somewhat removed from the main part of the camp. Out of the 3,000 prisoners in the camp we found here only 68 in bed, chiefly with influenza.

The Russian doctor and the Russian nurse attached to the hospital were evidently proud and happy to show us through the thoroughly neat and clean wards and the kitchen.

The organization of the American Red Cross at Ruhleben is typical of the organization at some seventy-five other camps scattered throughout the length and breadth of Germany, in which are interned about four hundred thousand Russian prisoners. We maintain in Ruhleben a Red Cross medical officer who is also the official inspector and representative. It is his duty, in co-operation with the local German commander and possibly with the prisoners' committee, if there is one, to report on the general condition and the needs of the prisoners and the camp. Food, clothing and medical supplies are forwarded upon requisition from the Red Cross warehouses in Berlin.

As regards the food it is in the nature of a ration of bread and meat, supplementary to the regular ration furnished to the prisoners by the German government. Each prisoner is now receiving 800 additional grams of bread a day, which, with the regular German allowance, gives him 600 grams daily. At the present moment the German civilian allowance is 375 grams daily. Clothing, underwear, socks, shoes, medical and surgical supplies and dressings and hospital diet foods are the chief contributions, however, of the American Red Cross. The actual distribution of these supplies is in the hands of the American army detachments at each camp.

This problem of finding work and occupation for the prisoners is one of the most difficult with which we have to contend. At Ruhleben the difficulty is increased by the fact that, unlike most of the other camps where perhaps one-half of the prisoners are at work on the farms in the vicinity, here the men have no regular occupation. We are meeting this problem by providing athletic supplies and organizing games. The Russians are not an athletic people, however; they are much more interested in our efforts to supply them with musical instruments.

RAISING RATTLESNAKES

Find There is a Good Living in a Farm for That Purpose.
The queerest farm in the Ozarks is that of Miss Rose Ahern and her brother, Henry. Several miles up Indian creek, in the heart of the rockiest and roughest part of the hills and bluffs, this brother and sister operate what they call their "diamond rattlesnake farm." And, being in a neighborhood where snakes are plentiful, they are doing a thriving business.

For three years the Aherns have been following this business, and they will probably have 300 or 400 snakes this season. They expect to do far better than ever before, now that the war has ended. The principal profits come from the extracting of poison from the rattlesnakes, which is sold at high prices to doctors, chemists and others. Physicians use this poison, after it has been prepared in a scientific manner, for the treatment of epilepsy and other diseases. It is known as crostalin.

They also get a good revenue from the sale of live reptiles to museums and traveling shows. The established rate is 2 cents a pound. A large, fat serpent usually brings several dollars. The smaller, poorer specimens are killed and rendered into oil, which has a steady sale at $1 an ounce.

SAW A MOVIE ONCE

But Then a Church Elder Opposed Plan for Showing Films.

Woodchoppers have come down from the north country of New Hampshire and expressed surprise that this country was at war with Germany, or that the war was over, but it remained for Arthur Shirley, elder of the Church of God at Manchester, to come forth with a surprise.

At a meeting held to decide whether it was proper for Manchester to see a certain film production, Elder Shirley after the picture was shown and upon being invited to speak on its merits or demerits said:

"I have never seen a motion picture in my life before, and I have lived in Manchester a good many years. I want to go on record as opposed to moving pictures, and will not approve this one."

INSECTS TAKE BIG TOLL

Yearly Loss to Crops Totals One Billion Dollars in United States.
Insects in the United States eat $1,000,000,000 worth of food annually, according to department of agriculture figures. This amount is lost each year because of insect depredations on various farm crops and fruits.

In addition to crop losses, there is a large loss of live stock from such pests as biting flies, parasite flies, ticks, mites and other insects.

Found Toads Deep Down.

While making an excavation on his farm in Bald Eagle township, near Bock Haven, Pa., and after digging through hard red clay to a depth of eight feet, Harry Eldred came upon two good-sized toads in a small pocket in the clay. On being exposed to the air the "hoppers" became quite lively. No one ever heard of toads wintering under the ground to such a depth and Farmer Eldred is greatly puzzled to know how the toads got there and how they managed to live. The facts are vouched for by Farmer Eldred.

HOW WHAT ARE KNOWN AS "STREAMER" HEADLINES GOT A START.

—Large "streamer" headlines, the kind that run one to three lines deep clear across the front page, first appeared in American newspapers as the result of the war with Spain. Even the European war did not produce any such glaring headlines as appeared during the Spanish-American war.

But the Spanish war "yellow" journalism was in its heyday, and it found a powerful weapon in the glaring "streamer." It not only increased in width but also in length, until some of the most sensational papers used one which occupied fully half of the first page, except a little corner in which the name of the paper appeared in small type. In the absence of exciting news, certain papers of the "yellow" shade used a method that was at least questionable. A half page would be given to the word "BIG BATTLE" in the largest, blackest letters. Underneath these two words and directly under the fold of the page would appear some qualifying phrase in smaller type, such as "Expected Tomorrow." The paper, as it appeared on the stand or in the hands of the newsboy, showed the public only the staring, startling "BIG BATTLE" part of the headline. For a time the victimized purchasers laughed, but soon the papers practicing the deception became discredited even when they did have big news.

BEATINGS OF HUMAN HEART

How Man's Primary Organ Might Be Utilized, if One Could Only Discover Method.

It is an astounding fact that the average heart beats 36,000,000 strikes every twelve months, working, resting, or sleeping. In that period it does work sufficient to fire with their present velocity a dozen of the largest projectiles that were used in the war, or to lift a light cruiser clean out of the water, says London Tit-Bits.

If such is the energy of a single man's heart, what is the aggregate force of 3,000,000 men in heartbeats? If it were concentrated into one explosion it would be sufficient to destroy utterly the Kiel canal.

Such an explosion, operating in a moment of time, has never been engineered by man, although nature has exceeded it many times in volcanic energies.

To put it another way, the hearts of 3,000,000 men force a broad river of blue, 900 feet wide and 6 feet deep over a course of seven miles in a single hour, and in the course of a day as far as from Liverpool to Edinburgh, and in a week as far as from Paris to Constantinople!

How Big Logs Were Handled.

In one of the great Virginia walnut groves where thousands of feet of lumber have been felled to meet government requirements, a ton-and-a-half truck was continuously in service hauling the logs out of the woods over rough mountain roads to the mills. To facilitate the work of loading the heavy logs on the truck, the owner devised a novel contrivance that proved highly efficient.

By attaching a bracket to the propeller shaft, on which he fastened an ordinary log chain, it was only necessary to jack up the rear end and shift into low gear to hustle the logs aboard. Winding the chain around the shaft, which with the bracket made a very serviceable pulley, rolled the logs off the skids and on to the truck quickly and with little effort.

Naturally this method of loading put a tremendous strain directly upon the propeller shaft, but, according to the owner, without in the least damaging the truck or causing any mechanical trouble whatever.

Why Ostrich Raisers Are Anxious.

Since the slump in the ostrich feather market occurred in 1914, schemes have been devised in this country to minimize the losses to ostrich farmers, many of whom had no other capital than their flocks of these giant birds. The eggs of the ostrich have long been a staple product on the market of Port Elizabeth and other ostrich centers, and have been mixed with hens' eggs by bakers in the manufacture of cakes and pastry. Lately two sealed cans, each containing 20 ostrich eggs in liquid form, have been shipped to London as an experiment. The results are awaited with interest. In large quantities, ostrich eggs packed are quoted at Port Elizabeth as 14 to 18 cents each. One of these eggs weighs between two and three pounds, and is equivalent to about two dozen hens' eggs.

Why Some Never Reach the Top.

"There are very few who ever rise to the top anywhere." Rabbi Leo M. Franklin said that to the members of the Open Forum recently, whereupon, someone demanded, "What is the top and what is the bottom?"
"The top is the place where the man does an honest day's work for an honest day's pay," said Rabbi Franklin, "and through which honest day's work he realizes the best in himself and at the same time adds something to the sum in the meaning of life. The bottom is the place where the man does the least he can with the most thought of himself and least thought of somebody else."

Support the Country Papers.

The following is sent us by E. R. Eastman of the Dairyman's League Inc.:

"If there is one industry that has prospered less in the last two or three years than dairying, it is that of the country press. Hundreds of country weeklies have been obliged to suspend publication, and this has meant a real calamity to their communities for the country paper has been second only to the church and the school in developing the best in the community. With the coming of the war, the country publisher was caught like the farmer, his costs increased by leaps and bounds and his product brought no more than formerly. His labor enlisted or was attracted away by the higher prices in the city. Paper became so scarce and so high in price that it was almost prohibitive. The worst of it is that even now when the war is over, the prospects of the country printer are not much better.

No daily or farm paper printed in a distant city can ever fill the place of the good old local paper. It has the sympathy and viewpoint with local affairs and ideals that no one outside can get. It tells the news of our neighbors whom we all know and in whom we are all interested. The local paper is the chief influence in boosting progressive affairs in the community and correcting local evils. When we move away from our home town, we still take the home paper, and how eagerly we look forward each week to the news about our old neighbors.

The country press is especially valuable to agriculture. Because the local paper is an enterprise that the community cannot get along without, the least we can do is to subscribe to the paper and keep our subscription paid up. When we have anything to buy or sell, there is no better or cheaper medium of finding a good market than through the advertising columns of the home paper. Drop around and see the editor and work with him to put your own community on the map."

July Milk For $3.01.

League milk for July has been sold for $3.01 per hundred pounds for 8 per cent milk. This is the base price at 200 miles from New York. The usual freight and butterfat differentials apply. During the months of April, May and June an arbitrary deduction of 15 cents was made because of large amount of milk produced in these months. But according to the plan no deductions are made except for these three months, and arbitrary additions are made in other months to allow for the cost of production. This addition for the July price is 16 cents a hundred.

Cayuga County Breeders.

Cayuga county breeders of livestock will form separate units to include their particular kinds of cattle, according to plans which were formulated at the meeting of the association held at the Osborne House in Auburn last Saturday evening.

Complete organization of the groups of breeders will be made at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the association called for Friday evening of this week.

Dinner was served at the Osborne House meeting Saturday night and music was furnished by a male quartet. Much reference was made to the "Holstein Cocktail" served at the beginning of the meal. Miss Mary E. Bowen, manager of the Cayuga County Home Bureau, was responsible for the formula of the cocktail and also had printed a number of ways of making other fine tasting milk drinks. Miss Bowen is a strong advocate of "Use More Milk at Home."

B. B. Andrews, president of the association, kept the meeting full of life.

The breeders of each type of livestock went into separate caucuses and the result of the nominations for the Board of Directors were: Earl Crocker, Sennett; W. A. Alexander, Union Springs, and Charles Hornburg, Ira, representing the Guernsey breed. A. L. Jenks, Genoa, B. B. Andrews, Weedsport, J. R. Wait, Auburn, representing the Holsteins; George Ferris, Atwater, will represent the Jersey breed, Harry Mansfield of Union Springs, the horse interest, E. G. Stephenson, Aurora, the hog breeders, and James Morse of Levanna, the County Sheep Association.

WATCH AND CLOCK REPAIRING A SPECIALTY

A Nation of Spenders, We Must Become Instead a Money-Saving People

BY THE WIFE OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR

MRS. W. W. BRYAN

As a people we have always been regarded as extravagant, and the accusation is not unjust. We have been wasteful in many different ways, and in looking for compensation for all the cruel sacrifices we have been forced to make during the war one's attention is called to the material benefits we can derive from the bitter experience if we are willing to learn the lesson. If we become a nation of savers instead of a nation of spenders some of the sacrifices will not have been in vain. When the actual fighting was over our interest in our country's welfare rather "slumped." It was, perhaps, the natural reaction from a long period of strain and excitement, but it was none the less to be regretted. Our country needs our assistance just as truly today as it did a year ago, and it is the plain duty of every citizen, man, woman or child, to ask himself the question: "How can I help?"

One of the most obvious ways is to give our financial support. This, however, differs from most of our war service in that it involves no sacrifice. It is absolutely the safest and most paying investment one can make, and one is no longer forced to argue that he should do this thing for his country's sake, or for his soul's sake, but it can now be put on the lower plane of a thing done for one's own interest which incidentally helps the nation's credit.

No amount of money is too small to be put away profitably in Thrift stamps, and there are always conveniently at hand places where the investment can be made, including the postman at our doors and the schools where we send our children.

When we open our purses we should address to ourselves the question: "Am I spending this money wisely, or could I make better use of it?" The trouble is that if we do not take this matter under more serious consideration than we have in the past our country's credit may be at stake.

With an apology for the bad taste of a personal allusion, my children spend a portion of their money allowance each week for Thrift stamps, and the competition involved in seeing who can possess the largest number has run the aggregate to a surprising extent. Thrift stamps and War Savings stamps have the value not only of creating a fund for a definite purpose, such as the education of a child, but teach the value of money and the lasting returns which can be gotten for it, at the same time inculcating all the traditional virtues which flow from saving a part of all the money coming into one's possession.

One of the permanent benefits that we can extract from this cruel and wasteful war, beyond the determination that it must never happen again, is the consciousness of a personal responsibility to our government, without which it cannot hope to hold the respect of the rest of the world.

War on Wheels

Practically All Equipment Mounted

This has been a war on wheels, great guns have been transported on and fired from railroad cars and autotrucks. Troops have been fed from "rolling kitchens" and "rolling bakeries."

Automobile machine shops, to make repairs, have accompanied the aircraft sections. Observation balloons have been handled and controlled from mototrucks. Field blacksmith shops and carpenter shops have been on wheels.

Many other things might be mentioned. But oddest of all perhaps were the field printing shops—such an affair being a mototruck with a little house mounted on its chassis, the latter containing a first-class printing press. On such presses a vast amount of printing was done—for a modern army needs a lot of it—including that of the newspapers written and issued by our soldiers.

History of the Great War Will Necessarily Be World's History for Last Four Years

Already, of course, we have histories of the great war—scores, even hundreds, of them. They began to appear on the bookstalls almost simultaneously with the roar of the big guns.

But who shall write the history, the one for which libraries, colleges and universities will subscribe? Certainly, not one man. This was a five-plane war; on the water and under the water; on the land and under the land—and in the air. From first to last more than a score of military fronts were involved, counting the western and the Italian fronts each as one, with a total extension of 800 miles.

But the military operations constitute only one division of the activities a historian will have to cover. A real historian will include such divisions as diplomacy, chemistry, mechanics, ordnance and aeronautics; food, fuel, labor, industry. In short, the history of the war has been the history of the world for the last four years.

Three Kinds of Wolves.

We have three kinds of wolves and they all travel in packs. There are black wolves, the gray timber wolves, and the great Siberian wolves of the North. The latter come across the ice from Siberia and hardly ever venture very far south. They are not trapped to any extent because the trappers would have to go to such great distances to get them.

Moran Is Confident Reds Have Good Chance to Win The Pennant This Season

A seasoned major leaguer like Pat Moran isn't given to idle boasting. Pat knows whereof he speaks, for no one is better equipped to discuss baseball authoritatively than he. And Moran sincerely believes the Reds have as good a chance to win the pennant this season as any other club in the National league.

"The Reds are going fast, but not beyond their normal pace, as some of the knockers appear to think," declared the genial Pat. "We have a mighty good pitching staff and a well balanced club, with a good wallop in its attack and adequately strong on defense. I'm going to see to it that those pitchers keep their current gait throughout the race. Keep your orbs on the Reds."

Young America Is Always Anxious to Match Strength

There is something chivalric in the unknown possibilities of big demands. Every youth with capabilities covets the chance to match strength with the victorious conquerors of his comrades. To him defeat is a thing to be proved. Talk of it only sets the itch for a trial going. The hint of its possibility primes his nerves for the effort. It matters not that others have been laid low. The ardent mind conjures up a thousand reasons for the failure. That cannot be his lot. Creakers of defeat have no place in his plans. Even advice, however wholesome, finds little chance for a hearing. The great thing is the challenge that offers a chance to measure strength.

WHY Experts Condemn the Use of Paris Green

Druggists and merchants handling spraying materials are being urged by the economic entomology department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture to purchase arsenate of zinc or arsenate of lead instead of paris green this year. Insecticides should be ordered by the grower in February or March, says L. F. Gentner, one of the entomologists, and the decision to use some other spray than paris green should be made now.

Experiments conducted in the field show that paris green is not an economical spray material, as it causes severe foliage injury. On potatoes two and one-half pounds of arsenate of lead or two pounds of arsenate of zinc to 50 gallons of water may be safely used. The spray must be applied evenly and must be put on when the young bugs are beginning to hatch.

Although the arsenate of zinc should not be used on any other plants than potatoes, arsenate of lead may be used on all kinds of crops. One pound of it is not so deadly in effect as a pound of paris green, but it will not burn, it spreads and sticks much better, and it is easier to handle in the spray.

Calcium arsenate has a still lower killing power and a slight tendency to burn, so it is not recommended where the other sprays are obtainable. The burning can be prevented by adding equal amounts of good air-slaked lime. It is so inexpensive that it may well be used in the garden.

BIRDS OBSERVE ROAD RULE?

Why There Are Few or No Collisions Between the Feathered Travelers in the Air.

"Collisions between airplanes are not uncommon, and a satisfactory 'rule of the road' seems a very difficult problem. If we could find out what the birds know of this matter it would be invaluable knowledge, for it is probable this risk of collision will eventually be the greatest of all in the air."

So writes Wilson Armistead, an English naturalist, in the course of an article on the effect of storms and wind currents upon the flight of birds.

"I have often wondered," he says, "whether teal flying down in a gale ever come to grief. I know nothing living that travels at such speed, for they are small compact birds and may not really be going as fast as they seem to be. There is one place in which I sometimes sit, where whenever there is a strong southwest wind, these birds pass me like bullets, and what is more they sound very like them, but I have never yet seen an involuntary collision between two birds in the air."

"This assuredly opens up an interesting question. We know that birds have flight lines. Have they by any chance a 'rule of road' or air? I think they must have. Among all the thousands of birds closely packed along our coasts in winter, there would undoubtedly frequently be collision if some such rule did not exist. As it is, one never sees a case of hesitation. Birds pass each other at full speed without the slightest sign of slowing down."

Why He Hadn't Registered.

A chap who ran a little general store at a certain crossroad in New Mexico was reported for failing to register. An official swooped down upon him who asked: "Don't you want to fight for your country?"

"Of course I do," was his reply. "Be you a recruitin' man? I was figurin' on enlistin' the first chanst I got."

"Well, I'm afraid you've got into trouble, as you failed to register."

"Shucks, you don't say so! I never had any use for them new fangled things. I puts the money in a cigar box an' gives the customer his change. But I don't see why the fact that I haven't a register oughter prevent me from havin' a chanst to lick them Hunns."

He got the "chanst."

Why Pigeons Are Useful in War.

Besieged Paris, as somebody has pointed out, taught Bismarck the value of homing pigeons in war, when some 800 pigeons were sent in balloons to Tours and provided communication between the two cities. After the peace, Bismarck established pigeon lofts in every fortress and in many of the cities of Germany. Other European nations, although less thoroughly, followed the example, but it was only about a year ago that the United States naval air service instituted 14 lofts in different parts of the country, with a total of about 8,000 pigeons in training for war service.

How It Affected Him.

"That old idea of employers requiring applicants to answer in their own handwriting is all bunk," remarked the iconoclastic guy. "Some of the world's greatest geniuses wrote so miserably they couldn't read their own stuff. Handwriting never gets you anything."

"Allow me to differ with you mister," broke in the chap with the closely-cropped head, who was recovering from an attack of huddle-step. "It got me three years for forgery."

How "Flu" Is Defeated.

The dwellers in Barrio Borinquen, an outlying district of Aguadilla, have apparently discovered an effective remedy for influenza. Treating it as a simple gripe attack they take orange juice, and live on a vegetable diet. As a result out of 300 cases there has been but one fatality, and that was a case where poverty and abandonment played a principal part.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

IT MUST BE RATIFIED.

By MRS. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN. Tune: "The King's Business."

The states are free to say They will be dry for aye, For congress passed an act That makes our hopes a fact. With power to fight the wrong, With voices clear and strong, The temperance forces sing this song:

CHORUS:

This is the message that we bring, O, make the very welkin ring: It can be ratified; It must be ratified; It shall be ratified this year.

To save our boys from sin, To give them strength to win The battles o'er the sea Where many perils be. To save the homes we love, To guide our thoughts above, The temperance forces sing this song: (Chorus)

Then work from sea to sea And make the country free; Vote for the men who stand For home and native land. To ev'ry candidate In ev'ry doubtful state The temperance forces sing this song: (Chorus)

DETROIT UNDER PROHIBITION.

"Detroit, the biggest dry city in the United States, is more prosperous than ever before," asserts Zach Farmer in a paper issued by the Detroit Real Estate board. "This is the consensus of authoritative opinion, deduced from an analysis of general conditions existing at the present time as compared to the pre-dry period. From all outward appearances a casual observer would never suspect that the 'Motor City' had once been one of the most flourishing hangouts of old demon 'Booze.' Briefly, the present situation is as follows: Seldom does one hear a conversation in which the absence of liquor is lamented. Many of the former saloons have been converted into soft drink emporiums and restaurants. Most of the vacancies created by suspension of the liquor business have been reoccupied and realtors, almost without exception, state that the real estate situation has not been impaired. To the contrary, in many instances, property values have been strengthened through the exit of illegitimate and the entrance of legitimate business in some sections of the city. The old rule of fear that the elimination of a saloon in a business block would mean a loss of business on both sides, has been dissipated."

THE PASSING OF THE WASHER-WOMAN.

Vote dry and you lose your washerwomen, say the householders of Indianapolis to the householders of wet states. A sad state of affairs prevails on wash day in the metropolis of the Hoosier state and prohibition is responsible. Under the old order of affairs whole family washings were done by the inmates of the woman's prison. Since John Barleycorn made his exit from the state, the number of women incarcerated has fallen off to such an extent that this work can no longer be handled. Since April 1, the day of the emancipation of Indiana from the saloons, the new arrivals at the woman's prison have been cut down to one-third the former number; the third floor of the prison has been closed and one of the kitchens is no longer needed. Strange as it may seem, the resident of Indianapolis, notwithstanding the inconvenience named, is more than reconciled to conditions which enable women to work in their own homes or engage in self-respecting labor elsewhere.

THAT LOSS OF REVENUE.

Continually we hear the liquor interests predicting great loss of revenue to the government as a result of prohibition. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, former head of the federal health bureau, answers them by saying: "Better it would be to raise the money by a tax on patent nostrums and stock gambling than to get it from the wholesale wrecking of lives, careers, and families. The amount of revenue collected by a nation does not measure its efficiency; but the amount of revenue collected from fermented and distilled spirits does measure the inefficiency of the nation."

Frank A. Vanderlip, former comptroller of the currency, later president of the largest bank in America, now serving without pay as chairman of the War Savings committee of the United States treasury, is also on the side of prohibition:

"The plea that government revenue will be seriously curtailed by nationwide prohibition should not influence action, for prohibition will induce a national efficiency which will open new and far richer sources of revenue."

WAR PROHIBITION.

On November 22 President Woodrow Wilson signed the special agricultural food production bill, which carries the war prohibition "rider." This provides that prohibition of both manufacture and sale shall begin July 1, 1919, and continue until demobilization is complete.

Dr. Howard H. Kelly, a famous physician in Baltimore, says that "whisky is not only useless, but harmful, in the treatment of influenza and pneumonia."

COAL SHORTAGE ON WAY; GOVT. SAYS BUY NOW

May Be Repetition of 1917-18
Conditions Next Winter Says
Geological Survey.

MINES IDLE WITHOUT ORDERS.

Those Who Delay Ordering
Longer May Not Get Their Fuel Later On.

The United States Geological Survey announces from Washington the probability of another general coal shortage next fall and winter. The announcement is based, the Survey states, upon a nation-wide study of conditions in the bituminous field. Unless steps are taken at once, the Survey says, to place the mines upon a basis of increased production there is every prospect of a repetition to some degree of the situation that prevailed in the United States during the winter of 1917-18.

The only way production can be stimulated at the present time, it is said, is by placing orders with the mines for coal which will be needed later on. Production during the first five months of the year, reads the statement, "fell 7,292,000 net tons, or approximately 5% below production during the first five months of 1918. Mines are producing coal now at the rate of from 8,000,000 to 8,500,000 tons a week. An average output of 10,700,000 tons a week must be maintained from June 1 to January 1 next if the country's estimated needs of 500,000,000 tons this year are to be met."

Evil of Delayed Orders.

At no time during this year has the rate of production approached the required tonnage. The tendency on the part of buyers to hold off placing their orders is limiting production, as the mines cannot store coal at the point of production, and when the rush of orders for the winter's needs comes next fall there is grave danger that the mines, with depleted labor forces and the probability of less adequate transportation, will be unable to meet the demands. The result of such a situation would be an insufficient supply for the requirements of domestic consumers, public utilities and industrial users generally.

"It is believed that requirements for this year," reads a Survey statement to Fuel Administrator Garfield, "will be about 530,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, of which approximately 30,000,000 tons have been used from stocks accumulated last year, leaving 500,000,000 tons to be produced. Of this 500,000,000 tons 178,000,000 tons were produced during the first five months, leaving 322,000,000 tons to be produced in the remaining 30 weeks, or an average of 10,700,000 tons a week.

"Thus far this year production has been at the rate of 8,200,000 tons a week. In 1918 production was at the rate of 11,300,000 tons a week.

"This production will be difficult of accomplishment. The capacity of operating mines at the present time with labor now on the payroll is about 10% lower than it was last year. This deficiency may be made up in part or wholly if the mines have orders sufficient to run them five or six days a week unless the threatened exodus of foreign-born labor occurs.

May Be Car Shortage.

"Present wage agreements between operators and miners expire with the proclamation of peace by the President. A suspension of mining operations while a new wage agreement is being negotiated would, of course, seriously interfere with the production of coal and if it should occur during the fall would cause a panic among buyers and consumers of coal."

There is no use in gambling upon this or any other contingency, fuel administration officials say. The firm or individual who wants to be sure of an adequate coal supply next winter can be certain by buying coal now. There is no other way such assurance can be obtained. Transportation also promises to be a limiting factor if the food tide of demand comes at a time when the country's record crops are being carried. In some districts it would appear certain that, notwithstanding the utmost endeavors of the Railroad Administration and the utilization of its experience last fall, car shortage will be a cause limiting bituminous coal production, and for that reason it is problematical whether the expected production of 500,000,000 tons can be attained this year.

Shortage of labor already is a factor in cutting down the output in some coal producing sections, according to the Survey's report. The operation report that from 38,000 to 40,000 foreign-born miners expect to return to Europe as soon as they can get passports and that many have already returned. If continued this movement will be capable of producing but one result—a reduction of the amount of coal mined in districts where the mine or is largely foreign-born, and there are many such districts.

Who needs coal should hesitate no longer. Now is the time to buy

The KITCHEN CABINET

Not what happened but the way we take what happened, determines our experience.
Not what we have, but do, makes our sum of joy or sorrow.
Most of us can if we choose make this world a palace or a prison.

HURRY-UP DISHES.

The housekeeper who keeps a list of dishes that may be quickly prepared for a sudden emergency is one who is never hurried or fussed by an unexpected company and the welcome is so much more genuine if in the back of the head a possible menu is stored. The food to be served will depend upon the time of day. If it is dinner a more elaborate menu will be needed than for a luncheon or supper.

Try not to use dishes for these occasions for the daily menus, but keep them just for the emergency. Provided you are sure of proper results, it is fatal to one's peace of mind to experiment on an unusual dish. Keep in your closet or on the emergency shelf such foods as shredded codfish, sardines, canned salmon, tuna, crab and clams, canned tomatoes, soup, grated cheese, salad dressing, preserves, dates, nuts and marshmallows. This list could be enlarged indefinitely and other attractive things may be added.

An omelet is a dish generally well liked; it may be preceded by a cream of tomato soup, which is soon prepared and followed by a potato salad if one is fortunate enough to have a few cold potatoes on hand, if not, cook a few, cut in dice and serve in a cream sauce. A cup of tea with a cookie or piece of cake and a dish of preserves for dessert will make a most satisfying meal.

The canned soup, of course, is quickly reheated and saves preparing one dish; a salad of the solid part of the can of tomatoes with a bit of salmon or tuna will make a fine salad with a good dressing. A can of pineapple with marshmallows and whipped cream with a tablespoonful or two of salad dressing makes a most delicious sweet salad, which may be served with wafers, a cup of cocoa or coffee as a dessert.

A pretty table, with a few well-cooked dishes and a hearty welcome will make a feast for any guest.

VARIETY OF PIE.

To prepare chicken pie cut a well cleaned chicken into pieces, and place in a saucepan, adding the neck, giblets and the skinned feet. To prepare the feet, wash well, then plunge them into boiling water then dip in cold water, when the outside skin will be easily removed. Add one cupful of finely diced celery, one large carrot cut in dice, two large chopped onions, cook all together until the chicken is tender. Remove the breast to cool and remove the meat. Place the wings, legs and thighs in a glass casserole and add the meat from the breast, the other vegetables and six quartered and parboiled potatoes. Thicken the gravy with flour mixed with cream or rich milk, cover with baking powder biscuit dough after seasoning well and bake until brown.

Fruit Mince Pie.—Take one pound each of raisins, dried peaches, one-half pound of dried apricots, one pound of prunes, one-half pound of candied citron, orange and lemon peel shredded fine; two quarts of cranberries. Put all through the meat chopper using the coarsest knife. Place in a preserving kettle and add two and one-half pounds of brown sugar and a cupful of any canned fruit juice or water. Cook slowly and carefully for one hour, then cool and add five pounds of chopped apple with the peeling left on. Add one pound of suet chopped fine, one pound of the seedless raisins, four tablespoonfuls of cinnamon, one of ginger, one of cloves, one of allspice and one-half of nutmeg and one of salt. Cover with one quart of elder boiled ten minutes. Mix thoroughly and can boiling hot.

Mince from Preserves.—Take one glass of spice grape jam, one pint jar of cherries, free from juice, one pint jar of peaches, sliced and strained, one pint of plums, pits removed and strained from the juice; one glassful of quince preserves, one glassful of apple butter, four quarts of chopped apple, one cupful of chopped suet, one pound of raisins, four ounces each of candied lemon, citron and orange peel shredded fine, two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of nutmeg, one-half tablespoonful each of cloves, allspice and ginger.

Songs by the Sea

By REV. GEORGE GUILLE
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Then sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord—Ex. 15:1.

The first song in the Bible! And on the wilderness side of the sea!

Long ages before, at the dawn of creation, there had been a song, "when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, but that infinite anthem has not been preserved nor the words of the song recorded. God seems to have hastened in his account of creation in order to tell out at length his mighty work of redemption. He made man by his breath; he saves him by his blood. It is in what he has done for man's redemption that he is to be forever glorified, and while the symphony of the stars still rings in his ears, yet here, at the Red sea, is sweeter music for his heart than theirs, and of such delight to him that he writes down every word of it as a part of Holy Scripture.

No song had Israel in Egypt, but sighs and groans and a cry. But now they are out of Egypt and Canaan looms before their eyes. The chains of bondage were snapped on the Passover night when, sheltered by that all-protecting blood, the judgment that fell upon Egypt passed over them. Now their deliverance is a realization. Pursued by Pharaoh's armies and hemmed in between the mountains and the sea, they cry out in a frenzy of despair. When lo! the sea divides and through it they go dry-shod and unharmed to the other side. And looking back they saw the sea that had opened to let them out of Egypt closing to shut them out and closing over their enemies. Then they sang!

The passage of the sea has put them in a wilderness, and yet they sing. And the wilderness is just what this world has become to those who know what that mighty work of the cross has done for them and who, in spirit, have seen just beyond the wilderness the heavenly Canaan to which that cross has secured an enduring title. And this song of praise from the hearts of redeemed sinners who have looked across the place of death and beheld a triumphant Savior is what our Father God is waiting still to hear.

And now can we sing, for by this way of the sea have we come into this pilgrim path with God. It is the shepherd's hand that holds that rod stretched out across the sea. And our Shepherd who giveth his life for the sheep has opened for us a safe path through his death. That "strong east wind" of adversity blowing through all that night of his anguish on the cross, where for our sins he was nailed, has cleared a way for us by which we pass out of Egypt, out of the whole sphere to which the "law of sin and death" applies. Christ's death, in all its value, is ours, and our hearts, once desolate because of sin, have now a song.

In vain does one look in this song for anything that man has done. Such a note would make an awful discord. Every word of this is the celebration of what Jehovah has done, and its first strain tells of the source of all praise: "I will sing unto Jehovah for he hath triumphed gloriously." It is this that makes melody in the heart. As Israel saw, so have we seen a triumphant Savior, and that sets the heart a-singing.

The second measure celebrates the deliverance. It was all the work of God. We only looked on. Alone he wrought and without any assistance from us. Alone he finished that work to which we could add nothing save to mar it. But not power alone is necessary for salvation, and the third stanza tells of God's holiness. "Glorious in holiness" is he who has saved us, so that the very holiness that was against us as sinners is now on our side making us secure. And here is another source of praise.

And this gives complete assurance as to the future, for "Thou leadest in thy mercy the people thou hast redeemed; thou guidest them with thy might to thy holy habitation." There are no misgivings as to the end and no slandering God with expressions of railroads and fear. Such things cannot exist in the heart that knows the triumph of Christ.

In the fourth measure of the song they see all enemies laid low. And the Christian counterpart of this is the challenge of Rom. 8:31-39, "If God be for us who can be against us? Who is he that condemneth?"

The song closes with the land of promise as the end of the journey. "Thou shalt plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance." And in these words we hear our Lord saying to us "I go to prepare a place for you . . . that where I am there ye shall be also." A prepared place for a prepared people, and God leading the way into it. There is no more to say and the song closes.

O soul, hast thou learned to sing?

TAKE THREE DAYS TO WED

Armenian Couple Must Be Patient in the Matter of Tying the Marriage Knot.

In Armenia everybody has a good time at a wedding except the bridegroom. First of all, the friends assemble, and an entertainment, with dancing, takes place. The bridegroom is expected to arrive when the entertainment is at its height and it is considered good form for him to appear with his face covered with powder to simulate pallor induced by the solemnity of the occasion. Friends of the bridegroom then shave him publicly and fall upon him and strip him of all his clothes, after which he is supplied with a new set of garments and completely dressed again. While they are performing the offices of valet to the groom the young men present are supposed to hold lighted candles in their right hands.

The day after this opening marriage feast the bride rides to church, and the bridegroom walks. The priest who receives them in the porch reads a short sermon on their duties in the matrimonial state, and then the wedding party proceeds to the altar, where the foreheads of the high contracting parties are bound together with gold chains. The wedding festivities continue for at least three days after this, and the couple are not regarded as married until the ceremonies have been concluded. The social celebration of the wedding is carried through as conscientiously as the religious part.

COULD NOT DISLodge ROCK

When Nature Placed Freak on Berkshire Hills, She Evidently Put It There to Stay.

The famous "balanced rock" near Lanesboro, Mass., in the historic Berkshires, is one of the strange sights of this region of hidden mountain caves, snow-capped hills and folk-lore that rivals fiction. This rock, which weighs several tons, is apparently in a precarious position on the sheer edge of another rocky formation beneath it. One would think that a very slight push indeed would dislodge it from its position.

"Balanced rock" is located on Constitution hill, the eminence named after "Constitution" Smith, who was instrumental in ratifying the American Constitution. An old farmer of Lanesboro thought he could pull "balanced rock" from its position by harnessing up several pairs of oxen, attaching a chain to the rock and having the animals strain on the rock together. The experiment failed. The rock could be rocked back and forth, but could not be dislodged.

The ice flow of the glacial period is believed to have been responsible for placing the huge rock in its present position.
