Resolutions.

In memory of brother John Albert Mack who died April 26, 1919.

Once again death hath summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home. He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the afflicted, in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery, and as his reward has received the plaudit, "well done," from the Supreme Master.

Whereas, The all-wise and merciful Master has called our beloved and respected Brother home; and

Whereas, He having been a true and faithful Brother of our Mystic Order, therefore be it

Resolved, That Genoa Star Lodge, 483, I. O. O. F., in testimony of its loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

All in a Day's Work.

A newspaper publisher has to do a great many things in his calling that are personally disagreeable to him. To do his paper justice he at times sacrifices friendships that are priceless. He is forced to forget himself as an individual and recognize himself as a part of the machine. He goes after stuff that does not interest him personally a bit, but he does it as a duty.

Sometimes he is met by a haughty grandee who wants to know what business of his it is if he does so and so, and the editor is given the insult direct. But he doesn't pay any attention to insults. If he did he wouldn't last a day. In a little country town these insults are borne as a business policy—but not forgotten, says a Minnesota exchange.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all of the neighbors and friends for their kindness during our sad bereavement; especially the Rev. Mr. Fargo for his kind words, the singers, the neighbors for flowers and the Red Cross.

Mrs. J. A. Mack,
Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Comstock and family.

If you want prosperity—buy Victory notes.

Five Corners.

Clarence Hollister was elected trustee at the school meeting Tuesday night.

Misses Agnes and Arsenia Kelley of Auburn spent last week Wednesday with their mother, and attended the dance at North Lansing that evening.

Miss Agnes returned to Auburn Thursday morning, Miss Arsenia remained until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy made a business trip to Ithaca Tuesday.

We learn that Peter Hall is quite poorly.

A sister from Syracuse spent a week recently with Mrs. Wm. Knox. It really seems good to have the store open once more.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gosbee spent Monday in Ithaca.

The Ladies' Aid society met at the home of Mrs. Purdy Weeks Friday. A very good attendance and a fine dinner was served. The teacher, Miss Pearl Carson, and pupils ate dinner with them.

Mrs. Albert Gillow of Myers is spending a little time with Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer.

Miss Julia Smith of Lansingville spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Ward White and husband.

James O'Daniels and Chas. Barger were in Ithaca Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hoffman Palmer, wife of M. A. Palmer, after a long illness of ten years, passed away last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. She was a great sufferer, but was never heard to complain and was very patient during all her illness. She was a good Christian woman—a model wife and mother. She had been a member of the Presbyterian church here a long time and until failing health prevented was a regular attendant. She had a large circle of friends, and was loved by all who knew her. She will be greatly missed in her home and by her friends. Her youngest son, A. L. Palmer and wife, formerly of Ithaca, left their home and business at the time their father was stricken with paralysis and have been with them ever since. The funeral obsequies will be held from her late home Tuesday afternoon. Burial in the family lot here. Rev. E. L. Dresser of Ithaca officiates, assisted by Rev. Glenn Brewster of the Belltown church. She leaves beside her invalid husband, three sons, John, Claude and Lockwood, all of this place. The family and other relatives have the sympathy of their many friends in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. Harriet Wager.

Mrs. Harriet Wager, widow of Geo. Wager of Ithaca, died very suddenly of heart trouble at her home in that city on Friday morning last. She had not been well for several months, but was able to be about much of the time and was sitting in a chair reading when suddenly stricken. Mrs. Wager had resided with her niece, Mrs. Geo. Townley, since last fall.

The deceased was 77 years of age and leaves no near relatives. She had frequently visited in Genoa, at the homes of Mrs. Lucy Mead and A. J. Bothwell, to whom she was related.

Funeral services were held at her late home on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at Ludlowville.

Born, May 3, 1919, a son to Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bradley. The child died May 3.

Mrs. Maud Rapp is visiting relatives in Genoa.

Miss Sarah Smith of Ithaca spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hand and children of Genoa were also guests at the same place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCormick have moved to his father's farm, known as the Atwater farm, a mile and a half south of King Ferry.

Mrs. Thomas Pidcock has been ill the past week. Dr. Gard of Genoa was called.

Mrs. F. Cleaver, who has been ill the past week, is some better. A nurse, Miss White of Auburn has been caring for her at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Bradley.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weyant and sons of Sherwood were Sunday guests at the home of his brother, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Weyant.

Fred Hier is in Syracuse a few days on business.

The remains of Mrs. Margaret Britt of Auburn, who died at the Willard Hospital March 30 were brought to the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Holland of this place. The funeral was held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Lady of the Lake church. Burial in the Lady of the Lake cemetery. Mrs. Britt was formerly of this place. The relatives have the sympathy of her many friends in King Ferry.

Marshall E. Sperry Dies.

Marshall E. Sperry, of Ludlowville, died at 5:40 o'clock Monday morning at the age of 74 years. He was a native of Ludlowville and spent his life in that vicinity. Early in life he was engaged in the hardware and tin business in Ludlowville, later in the manufacture of spokes. He for many years also had a boating business on Cayuga lake. About thirty years ago he bought the farm on which he died.

In 1870 Mr. Sperry married Miss Elizabeth Carr, of Ludlowville, who died nineteen years ago. In 1905 he married Miss Susie Johnson, who survives him; he also leaves four children, Mrs. Walter Drake, Ithaca; Clayton Sperry, Savannah; Mrs. Thomas Bradley and Miss Helen Sperry, of Ludlowville.

The funeral was held at the home on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and burial was made in Pine Grove cemetery.

Value of Green Vegetables.

Though green vegetables and fresh fruits have little food value, they are universally desired by mankind. The Journal of the American Medical Association says this is explainable by the fact that they seem to be a safeguard to health. The recent studies of C. B. Osborne and L. B. Mead on the properties of green leaves show that these contain large quantities of vitamins which though not food, are necessary to health. According to these investigators spinach contains far more of the vitamin that promotes normal growth than do whole wheat, soy beans, eggs, meat, milk or potatoes.

Boost Coffee by Advertising.

A New York press dispatch announces that 480 coffee traders are co-operating with planters in South America to encourage the consumption of coffee. They are confident that with the prohibition of the liquor traffic, coffee will become the national drink in America.

It is planned to spend $1,200,000 in advertising to encourage coffee drinking in the United States, says this dispatch. Establishment of coffee houses as social centers to replace the saloon will also be advocated by the boosters of the coffee campaign.

WOMEN TO PICTURIZE VICTORY LOAN DRIVE

Professionals and Amateurs Will Form Camera Battery to Help Sell Notes.

If you don't like to have your picture taken, look out for the women camera sharpshooters of the great Victory Loan army which is mobilizing for its next drive. The camera is going to play a vital part in the new campaign. Every professional woman photographer, as well as those with whom photography is merely a hobby, will be enlisted until the end of the Loan drive. Every woman's activity of the campaign will be pictured by them, and will constitute a great mass of impressive and interesting material which will tell the story of what you and the next woman are doing to fulfill our contract with "the boys."

To put this undertaking on a working basis, Women's Victory Loan Camera Clubs are in process of organization all over the State. In New York City the club already has been formed with Mrs. Walter L. Ehrlich, a celebrated portrait photographer as its chairman. The membership of this club is representative of the best in professional photography and includes also many amateurs who have exhibited noteworthy work. The idea of the club is not to interfere in any way with the professional or regular channels for obtaining photographic publicity for the Victory Loan, but merely to supplement it.

The object of the club is to secure photographs of Women's Loan activities of every possible sort and in every city, town and hamlet of the State. Any work or any worker that helps a woman buy a Victory bond, sell a Victory bond or save to finance the Victory Loan is an eligible subject for the Woman's Victory Loan Camera Club.

A woman ploughing up her garden in order to raise her own vegetables, so that she may save money with which to buy bonds, will be considered as a good pictorial news assignment for instance. The club members not only will take pictures on assignments furnished them through the various Victory Loan Committees in their towns, but will furnish material in their wide activities in business, social, educational, literary and political life.

LET'S MAKE IT AN APRIL SHOWER

The All-Reaching Drive.

The starfish scuttled out of the sea and rested upon the wet sand. "Good morning," said the fiddler crab. "What brings you into shore?" "Only one thing," said the other, sitting up as the spume tossed by. "I read about these Victory Notes in the Mermaid News and came in to buy one if I can find anybody selling them."

"Much obliged," said the fiddler crab, at the same time producing a subscription blank from his waistcoat pocket. Sign here.

And in less than a jiffy the first payment had been made, and the patriotic little fellow was on his way back to his Atlantic estate.

Turn About Is Fair Play.

It is true that many loans, money as well as cups of sugar, are forgotten or unpaid. Our Uncle Samuel, however, gives us a bond for our little loan—"Lest We Forget" he even pays interest on it to make it interesting. We used to borrow from our Uncle; now our Uncle is borrowing from us.—Bolton Hall in "Thrill."

Investing Is Economy.

The faith that moves mountains is the faith that gets a steam shovel instead of that old hoe. Time-saving and labor-saving is what you want. The thing that saves his earning power is what every business man wants.—Bolton Hall in "Thrill."

GLASS HAS NO DOUBTS ABOUT LOAN'S SUCCESS

Secretary of the Treasury Confident That Fifth Liberty Issue Will Go "Over the Top."

Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, is a confirmed optimist when it comes to the question of the United States financing itself. What is more the Secretary has facts and figures to support his opinion, to say nothing of his faith in the determination of the American people to see a task completed once it is begun.

Senator Calder, junior Senator from New York, recently wrote the Secretary suggesting President Wilson call a special session of Congress to pass legislation to protect holders of the outstanding Liberty Loan issues.

Secretary Glass, in his reply, after pointing out that the best financial opinion in the country was agreed that the falling off in market quotations of the Liberty Bonds was traceable to other causes than interest rates and terms, shows that the adverse influences on the market following the armistice have spent their force. Secretary Glass also finds that business conditions now are such that the country may look forward with assurance to an era of prosperity that will send Liberty bonds well above par before their maturity. The wave of pessimism following the armistice has disappeared, and the Secretary gives figures to show our financial status is stronger than ever.

"Today," he says, "there is no insufficiency of credit for any useful enterprise, and business is already forging ahead. Our national debt is less than $25,000,000,000, and when all the war debts are met it should not exceed $30,000,000,000 against which are held foreign obligations of about $10,000,000,000. As to national expenditures, while they reached a maximum of $2,000,000,000 a month shortly after the armistice, they would after the war bills are paid shrink to not more than $2,000,000,000 a year."

In conclusion the Secretary expressed his belief that the market for Liberty Bonds will improve as the true understanding of the financial strength of the United States is more fully disseminated and as the Victory Liberty Loan campaign proceeds.

When your country calls Lend more than your ear.

GET BUSY! THE HARVEST IS RIPE.

Hear the Call.

DEMOCRACY.

Towards this word we have a leaning, And we've been shown its meaning. For we can all invest The poor along with the rest. And now we're given another chance, And all of us can see with a glance. That if we want our earnings secure, Uncle Sam's notes are the kind that endure! —Mary Graham Bonner.

AN APPEAL TO THE AMERICAN FARMER FROM MEN WHO KNOW

TO THE FARMERS OF AMERICA:

No finer patriotic service was ever rendered than when the farmers of America, short of labor, credit and farm supplies, still grew the increased crops without which we could not have won the war. The farm women and children gave their labor in the fields and the farms sent more than a million of their best to join the colors. The more that is known about the war, the more glorious our farmers' part in it will shine.

The Victory Liberty Loan Drive begins April 21 and continues until May 10. We appeal to you, farmers of America, to finish what you have so well begun. Make this loan as superb a success as the war crops you have raised. See to it that the farmers lead in putting the Victory Loan over the top.

Make your participation in the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN both in money and service, the measure of your devotion to the great cause of democracy—the democracy for which many of our boys have made the supreme sacrifice. Let your subscription and your effort be both an offering of thanksgiving for the return of peace and the means by which the world may measure the strength of your patriotism and your determination to see to it that the war shall not have been fought in vain.

DON'T FORGET THE ROOF!

Our Peace Envoys Emphasize Importance of Victory Loan

In a message to the American people the United States delegates to the Peace Conference at Paris, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, General Tasker H. Bliss, Colonel E. M. House and Henry White, emphasize the necessity for successfully floating the Victory Liberty Loan. The importance of making the Allies' victory complete is stressed in the statement that it is necessary that internationally as well as nationally the campaign go "over the top."

The message reads: "We have had the opportunity here in France to see and realize the magnitude of the accomplishment of our country in this war and the magnificent spirit with which this great task has been carried through to a triumphant issue.

"What has been done and what remains to be done before normal conditions are restored demand your continued and united support with the same spirit of self-sacrifice and of determination as that which was manifested by the nation while the German armies faced our men at the Marne and in the Champagne, at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne. We must not relax our efforts until every soldier of the republic is landed on the soil of America.

"To finish this mighty task imposes upon the government of the United States a great financial burden. The Victory Liberty Loan must thrive. If it should fail it would indicate that the nation is willing to leave its task uncompleted.

"To secure the ideals for which Americans fought and died this great demand on national patriotism and united effort should meet a generous and universal response. Let us all do our duty to the end.

A SPRING SONG--
With Notes.

By EARL BALDWIN THOMAS.
Oh, Spring is on the harbor now and ships sail out to sea to fish, the pasture's pleasing to the cow and silken is milady's swish; the bees are in the clover sweet, the apple blossoms pink and white, fall gently at the farmer's feet and everything's a joysome sight; the robins 'gin to build their nests and dig for worms most everywhere, and students swell their puny chests with oratorical fanfare debating whether, man for man, man measures up to woman's stride, or whether in his early span, his vision isn't half so wide; the daffodils raise golden heads, the pansies purple into flower and other things in garden beds jump up to live their little hour, while Paris frocks and baby smocks and other zephyr-like attire prepare the stronger sex for shocks to come when Summer brings its fire; a harmony, supremely fair, is swelling from the birdies' throats; for nothing now let's have a care, except--of course--Buy Victory Notes!

Whose Turn Next?

No matter how rich you are, or think you are, it is not thrifty to let your boys, and especially your girls, grow up without learning to do something useful well enough to get real money for it, and to invest it prudently. The time may come when they have only their time to sell.--Bolton Hall in "Thrift."

The public service commission has directed the Iroquois Natural Gas company, which supplies Buffalo, Lackawanna, Olean, Salamanca and other Western New York places, to reduce the rate from 37 to 32 cents with a 2 per cent discount. The new rates are effective one year from May and thereafter, until they shall be changed by the commission. The company will appeal.

Supreme Court Justice Rudd in Albany upheld the contention of the public service commission, Second district, that increased rates by the New York Telephone company and the Western Union Telegraph company and proposed increased rates by the New York Telephone company were illegal and unlawful, and issued injunction orders preventing enforcement of the increases which were ordered by the postmaster general.

Sixty-three per cent of the pleasure cars in this state are machines under 25 horsepower. There are a trifle over 30 per cent of from 25 to 30 horsepower and only 6 per cent running from 35 to 50 horsepower. Less than 1 per cent are of 50 horsepower or more. These facts are brought out for the first time by figures just compiled by Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo in connection with his official capacity as head of the state motor vehicle bureau.

Adoption by the state compulsory health insurance for workers was recommended to Governor Smith by the state reconstruction commission in a report made public in New York. The commission termed such a policy "a foremost measure of essential and enforceable health protection" and announced its intention of continuing the study of the subject, in order to assist the governor and the legislature in framing legislation to be presented at the next session of the lawmaking body.

New York city must turn over to the state treasury $600,000, representing the balances of estates administered by the city, under a decision of the court of appeals. The decision upholds the contention of the attorney general that the provisions of the state finance law require the city chamberlain to transfer to the custody of the state all intestate funds which have been held for 20 years. The moneys constituting this fund of $600,000 have been accumulating over a period of 75 years and represent 33,000 small estates of persons who died in New York without next of kin.

At a meeting of the western New York Publishers' association, held in Rochester at the Powers hotel, John E. DuBois of the Newark Union-Gazette, was elected president. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Carl G. Clarke, Perry Record; secretary and treasurer, James D. Pollard, Seneca Falls Courier-Journal; executive committee, Edward M. Perkins, Le Roy Gazette-News; M. Reed Scott, Genesee Republican; Guy Comfort, Perry Herald. Committees were appointed to arrange for the summer meeting of the association to be held on Saturday, July 19, in Lyons.

For the Victory Loan.

Here's to the men, who take Vict'ry loan
Of the land that's for you and for me;
In no better way can love be shown
For the land that's for you and for me.
Here's to the women, who always do care
For the home, that's for you and for me;
Of Victory Notes, they're taking a share
For the home, that's for you and for me.
Here's to all, who will answer the call
Of the flag, that's for you and for me;
Then let us reveal, the love we feel
For the flag, that's for you and for me.
Here's to the flag which the Vict'ry won,
Let it wave o'er the brave and the free;
Our thanks we show, for what has been done
With Vict'ry loan from you and from me.

Americans All.

In a recent issue of The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia, George Pattullo tells how a mountaineer from Tennessee, named Alvin C. York, a member of Company G, 328th Infantry, killed twenty Germans, captured 132 prisoners including a major and three lieutenants, put 35 machine guns out of business, and so broke up an entire enemy battalion which was about to attack in the Argonne sector on Oct. 8. York did the fighting and killing single handed, but there were others who had to do the thing which made it possible for him to pick off his men, and compel so many to surrender in batches--namely, to guard the prisoners as they came in. Who did this? What were the names of these Americans to whom the German major, almost bereft of speech when he watched the operations of his captor, ejaculated "Good Lord!"? Read them. Cutting and Dymewski, Savage and Weiler, Waring and Swanson, Donahue and Konotski, Beardsley and Muzzi, Wills and Sacina, Johnson and Sak--Americans all! From them, who did so much for America, comes the call to us to do our duty to our country--from them and from thousands of others whose stilled tongues startle us to action with the thunders of silence.

Making the box lunch palatable is not always easy. In the spring, especially, fruit helps wonderfully. A productive orchard, a good garden, laying hens, and cows which pay their board will help make any farm a desirable farm.

The dome of the United States Capitol at Washington is kept in excellent condition by painting it every few years. For this work forty painters are steadily employed for three months' time. Over five thousand gallons of paint are required for one coat. The reason for painting the Capitol dome at regular intervals is to prevent disintegration of metallic surface.

THE COSMETIC OF THE INANIMATE.

- ¶I am the savor of surfaces.
- ¶I am the world-old preserver.
- ¶Noah knew me, for he pitched the ark within and without.
- ¶The Pharaohs sought me as an adornment for their tombs—their mummies endure because I conserve.
- ¶I am the woad of the ancient Britons: their blue battle hue.
- ¶Because of me the treasures of the Sistine Chapel defy effacement.
- ¶I am the keeper of the antique.
- ¶I am the servant of progress.
- ¶Columbus found me bedecking the savages who watched him plant Ferdinand's banner on the shores of New Spain; and the very sails of his caravels resisted the elements of the West through my aid.
- ¶The pioneers westward wending their way daubed the prairie schooners with my protection.

THE QUINCY MANSION, QUINCY, MASS., BUILT IN 1635.

America's classic example of a clapboard building preserved for over two hundred years by careful and frequent painting. It has secret panels, chimney shafts and hiding places, said to have been used by smugglers. Later the home of great sea-men and of the famous belle, Dorothy Quincy.

ANTIQUITY OF DECORATIVE ART

Strange Sources From Which Pigments Used by Modern Painters Are Derived.

PRESERVATION OF SURFACES.

Crude but Effective Processes Employed by the Egyptians and Greeks of Piny's Day—Noah Prudently Waterproofed the Ark.

Whether paint was invented in answer to a need for a preservative or to meet a desire for beauty is a question fully as knotty as the ancient one about the relative time of arrival of the chicken or the egg. It was invented, though, and it serves both purposes equally; so whether it is an offspring of mother necessity or an adopted son of beauty remains forever a disputed question.

The first men, covering under the fierce and glaring suns of the biblical countries, constructed rude huts of wood to shelter them. The perishable nature of these structures caused rapid decay, and it is probable that the occupants, seeking some artificial means of preservation, hit upon the pigments of the earth in their search. It is perhaps natural to suppose that it was the instinct of preservation that led men to the search, although the glories of the sunsets and the beauties of the rainbow may have created a desire to imitate those wonders in their own dwellings.

The earliest record of the application of a preservative to a wooden structure dates from the ark, which was, according to the Bible, "pitched within and without." The pitch was a triumph of preservation whatever it lacked as a thing of beauty.

Decoration applied to buildings first comes to light with ancient Babylon, whose walls were covered with representations of hunting scenes and of combat. These were done in red and the method followed was to paint the scene on the bricks at the time of manufacture, assuring permanence by baking. Strictly speaking, this was not painting so much as it was the earliest manifestation of our own familiar kalsomining.

The first Hebrew to mention painting is Moses. In the thirty-third chapter of the book of Numbers he instructs the Israelites, "When ye have passed over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, then shall ye drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you and destroy all their pictures."

At later periods the Jews adopted many customs of the peoples who successively obtained power over them and in the apocryphal book of the Maccabees is found this allusion to the art of decorating, "For as the master builder of a new house must care for the whole building, but he that undertaketh to set it out and paint it, must seek out things for the adorning thereof."

Although Homer gives credit to a Greek for the discovery of paint, the allusions to it in the books of Moses, the painted mummy cases of the Egyptians and the decorated walls of Babylon and Thebes fix its origin at a period long antecedent to the Grecian era. The walls of Thebes were painted 1,900 years before the coming of Christ and 996 years before "Omer smote his bloomin' lyre."

The Greeks recognized the value of paint as a preservative and made use of something akin to it on their ships. Pliny writes of the mode of boiling wax and painting ships with it, after which, he continues, "neither the sea, nor the wind, nor the sun can destroy the wood thus protected."

The Romans, being essentially a warlike people, never brought the decoration of buildings to the high plane it had reached with the Greeks. For all that the ruins of Pompeii show many structures whose mural decorations are in fair shape today. The colors used were glaring. A black background was the usual one and the combinations worked thereon red, yellow and blue.

In the early Christian era the use of mosaics for churches somewhat supplanted mural painting. Still, during the reign of Justinian the Church of Saint Sophia was built at Constantinople and its walls were adorned with paintings.

In modern times the uses of paint have come to be as numerous as its myriad shades and tints. Paint is unique in that its name has no synonym and for it there is no substitute material. Bread is the staff of life, but paint is the life of the staff.

No one thinks of the exterior of a wooden building now except in terms of paint coated. Interiors, too, from painted walls and stained furniture down to the lowliest kitchen utensil, all receive their protective covering. Steel, so often associated with cement re-enforcing, is painted before it goes to give solidity to the manufactured stone. The huge orders of the skyscrapers are daubed an ugly but efficient red underneath the surface coat of black. Perhaps the best example of the value of paint on steel is found in the venerable Brooklyn bridge, on which a gang of painters is kept going continually. It is scarce possible to think of a single manufactured article which does not meet paint somewhere in the course of its construction. So has paint grown into the very marrow of our lives.

Flowers Express Essential Feeling of Joyous Easter

"The altar is snowy with blooms, The font is a vase of perfume; On pillar and chancel are twining Fresh garlands of eloquent bloom!"

ALL the churches are decorated for the festival after Resurrection; and the lily, emblem of purity, sweetness, and grace combined, is the favorite flower for decoration.

Flowers voice the essential feeling of Easter. Each fragrant blossom is the fulfillment of a divine promise. For the perennial miracle of an awakened earth is in full harmony with the aspiring note of religion reiterating its faith in the promise of a new life.

Flowers, like music, speak the language of the heart. They are capable of conveying the most personal and individual ideals while yet appealing to a common universal vision and imagination.

This characteristic of flowers fits them especially both to express the private affections of the giver and enrich the symbolism of the altar. A basket or a cross of flowers can say all the heart wishes to say and say it without obtruding personal feeling.

In medieval times flowers spoke a definite language, the interpretation of which seems almost lost for a season. The palm, the classical symbol of victory, was early taken as the symbol of martyrdom. It was outlined on the tombs of the early martyrs, and it was placed in the hands of those who suffered in the cause of truth, to express their final victory over the powers of sin and death.

Roses white and red voice innocence and love. The Madonna was the "Rose of Sharon." A wreath of roses is placed upon the brow of St. Cecilia. Roses and fruit are borne by St. Dorothy. A white anchor of camellias, with its top a cross, expresses faith and hope.

The lily has long been regarded as expressive of purity. In Bermuda, the home of our Easter lily, all the roads are full of people, white and black, carrying lilies to the churches at dawn on Easter day. With them the doorways, altars and pulpits are decorated, and the graves are completely covered. Each lily and each Easter flower thus bestowed is vocal, like one of those old litanies that have descended to us from time immemorial, full of wholesome piety and charity—common prayer to all devout souls. The flowers are of yet older birth than the ancient prayers—primeval litanies before ever music was.

Their eloquence is growing on us from year to year, as we bring roses, lilies and other Easter flowers to deck the altars of God, to hallow with their perfume and beauty the resting places of the departed and to dedicate our homes to Christ with our bright, sweet, sacred emblems.

"Christ is risen! with glad lips we utter, And far up the infinite height Archangels the psalm re-echo And crown him with lilies of light!"

The Lilies' Message

O, lilies, snow white lilies,
O, lilies, radiant, sweet,
Ye are angels trooping earthward
To kiss our Savior's feet.

CHEST BOY TO SPEND ONLY A DOLLAR A WEEK

Thomas Austin Yawkey Intends to Continue the Practice of Thrift.

It used to have a quarter a week spend and now he's worth $20,000, but early habits of thrift—such as the Government seeks to encourage through War Savings Stamps—have kept wealth from turning the head of sixteen-year-old Thomas Austin Yawkey, a student in the Washington Irving School, of Tarrytown, N. Y. He has become the "Rich Boy in America," through a bequest of his uncle, William H. Yawkey of New York City. His attitude towards his recent inheritance is an ideal from the standpoint of the private school to which he is sent in his ninth year, Tom is a frugal living. His spending was regulated to a quarter a week, the disposal of which he accounted for. Now his week-allowance will be raised to a dollar but he intends to still keep a full account of how it is spent. The boy appreciates a thrifty life means to live it. He is content to get along each week on the price of Thrift Stamps. He wants to be a good business man and a wise philanthropist. He already is planning how to take care of his fortune in a way that will do the most good for the world. He intends to spend less than his income and to employ the surplus in charitable work. Tom's ideas of thrifty living and the disposition of his surplus income for charity are unquestionably good ones. The United States Government has made it possible for everyone to do so, perhaps on a smaller scale, with equal benefit to themselves. The purchase of Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps is a sure and easy means of establishing a sum for future use. Living well within income is one of the first rules of thrift. Putting the small amounts in such an elastic medium as Savings Stamps is the next step toward provision for future happiness. Thrift removes the handicaps of many people who really want to do, but who never have made definite effort to provide themselves with capital.

CHILDREN GET THRIFT BOOKS.

Practically every child in every school throughout New York and the twelve northern states of New Jersey has received a Penny Savings School Book, issued to help children learn the value of thrift stamps. Many illustrations are being introduced into the work in the schools. Well known military experts and aviators will address the young. Pictorial releases and features will be used to inspire patriotism. Reports from leading cities of the state show a remarkable increase in War Savings Societies, also, Rochester and Binghamton making a particularly good record.

Easter Morning Breakfast Made a Time of Real Joy

IT WAS my good fortune one time to be visiting in a family where Easter was celebrated in a very pretty fashion. When we came down to the breakfast table in the morning we found it looking so beautiful it seemed a pity to disturb its beauty by the prosaic act of eating. The dining room was a particularly sunny, attractive room to start with, and the beautiful table this morning was set with its usual gay blue and yellow china, but in addition the center of the table held a great mass of yellow daffodils standing in a clear crystal float. For the benefit of the children little yellow ducks and chickens were perched along its edge and at each plate we found one of the flowers for our personal adornment. Everything we had for breakfast that morning seemed to glow with yellow; the grapefruit had a brighter tinge than usual, the rolls and toast a delicious golden brown; and when our eggs were served each one had been baked in a little yellow ramekin. The whites had been beaten until they puffed up above the cup and tinged a delicate yellow brown in the oven, and nestled in the top of each fluff was the yellow yolk of the egg. At the plate of each child was an attractive yellow basket with a little nest of variegated colored tissue paper—for had not the bunnies been busy during the night leaving eggs around the house for the children to gather in the morning? They could hardly wait to eat their breakfast so eager were they to be off. Such queer places as these little animals had left the eggs! In the corners of stuffed chairs, back of table legs, tucked away in the big piano, under sofa cushions, on the mantelpiece, in the fireplace—every spot, in fact, that could be found not too hard for the children to discover.

This is, of course the pretty custom which grew out of the old superstition that if the children of the household were truthful kind and obedient a white hare would come into the home at night and hide colored eggs in odd corners of the house. The egg as we all know is the symbol of the resurrection. Easter day is governed by the moon, and the hare is the ancient symbol or figure of the moon.

There are a number of amusing customs connected with Easter, as with all the other holidays, some of which are familiar to us and others not. We are all of course quite accustomed to the idea of new clothes on Easter, but the people who scorn this fashion and wear theirs a few weeks before or after that day little know of the risk they run of having bad luck the rest of the year. The day used to be known as "Joy Sunday," and there was an old superstition that unless one wore something new on that day bad luck would follow throughout the year. Another belief was that if the wind blew from the east on Easter morning, and if you drew some fresh water and bathed your face and hands it would then be impossible for the east wind to harm you throughout the year.

"Bring Flowers"

Easter Offerings. Costly Easter offerings are flowerpots of cut glass, silver rimmed, filled with half a dozen tall lilies. The same idea can be carried out economically by choosing a single potted jonquil, hyacinth, tulip or other spring flower and send it in a dainty china or reed jardiniere.

PAINT AS AN ASSET.

Bankers Say They Lend More Money on Property When Buildings Are Well Painted.

AN INDICATION OF THRIFT.

One Concern Advances 25 Per Cent. More if Repainting Is Done Every Five Years.

Does it pay to paint carefully farm buildings? Does it add to the selling value of a farm when buildings are properly kept up and regularly painted? A careful inquiry of a number of leading bankers in the Mississippi valley, including such states as Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri, reveals the fact that in nearly every case the bankers did not hesitate to say that they would lend all the way from 5 to 50 per cent. more on land where farm buildings were well painted and kept in good condition. They maintain that well kept-up and well painted buildings and fences are an indication of thrift and that the thrifty farmer is a good client, and to him money can be safely loaned. An average of the returns from these bankers shows that the increased loan value because of painted buildings is around 22 per cent.

Some of these bankers make interesting comment. A Michigan concern says that, while not especially prepared to advise definitely in response to this inquiry, the officers would loan more money on farms where buildings were painted than where they were not so treated. This bank also finds that where houses, barns and fences are well taken care of the farm is a profitable proposition, and bankers in general consider the farmer a good client. Another Michigan bank says "farm buildings out of repair and needing paint indicate that the owner is slow pay." Such farms are rated at about one-third of the assessed value for loans. Where the farm buildings are in good shape the rating is one-half. The president of a middle western bank says that when real estate loans are considered, painted buildings are always taken into consideration in making an estimate. The general appearance of the property surrounding the house and barn and also the fields and fences would be carefully observed. He further says that he has no hesitancy in saying that he would absolutely refuse a loan on farms where the buildings were not kept up and well painted. In his judgment, unpainted farm buildings would reduce the loan value at least 25 per cent.

A Minnesota banker says that he is much more willing to loan money where the buildings are well painted. In his particular case he believes that he would loan 20 per cent. more than if the buildings were not properly taken care of. A farmer who will keep his buildings painted takes a much deeper interest in his work than one who does not. Another Minnesota banker says that well painted buildings have resulted in securing from his bank sometimes as high as 25 per cent. more money than where the buildings are not painted. An Ohio concern says that it will loan 25 per cent. more money on a well kept farm where buildings are painted at least once every five years. A southern Illinois bank says that it has no fixed rule about this, but it does make a decided difference when owners of farm lands apply for loans. If the buildings are well painted and thus well preserved the loan rate would not only be cheaper, but the amount of money borrowed would be larger. A northern Illinois bank does not hesitate to say that it would loan fully 50 per cent. more on a farm where buildings were well painted and in good order than where they were not. The vice president, who answers the inquiry, goes on to say: "There probably are many farmers good financially and morally who permit their buildings to remain unpainted, but as a rule the most substantial people who live in the country keep their buildings well painted."

An Iowa bank, through its vice president, states that it would make a difference of at least 25 per cent. in favor of the farm with painted buildings. Another Iowa concern says that it would make a difference of at least 20 per cent.

All this being true, it is perfectly evident that it is a good business proposition to keep the farm buildings well painted. They not only look better and are more pleasing to the owner, but the farm would sell to better advantage, the loan value of the property would be greatly increased and the buildings themselves would last much longer and need less repair.—The American Agriculturist.

PAINT AND ILLITERACY.

Curious Fact Comes to Light That Localities Least Using Books Avoid Paint Also.

Washington, D. C.—A curious fact has been brought to light by the Educational Bureau and the Bureau of Industrial Research here. It is that in the states where illiteracy is most prevalent paint is least used. The paint referred to is the common or barn variety, of course, for the backwoods countries have no need for the finer pigments or facial adornments. It is true, though, that in the sections of all states where white illiteracy is highest painted homes are rare and painted outbuildings and barns are practically unknown. Probably the illiterates do not use paint on their buildings because they do not understand its value as a preservative.

HOW CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE WAS SAVED

New Process Invented to Preserve Surface of Monolith in Central Park.

HIROGLYPHS OBLITERATED.

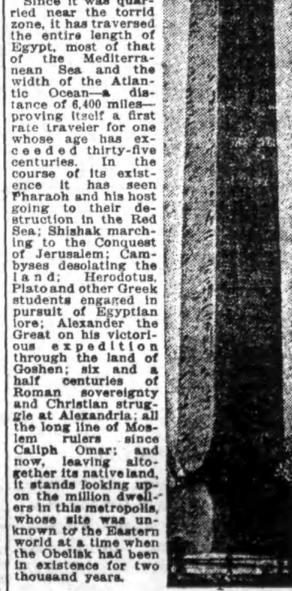

Rigors of Western Climate Caused Khedive's Gift to Disintegrate. Painting Ancient Obelisk With Special Preparation Stopped Decay—Ruined Portions Restored.

New Yorkers awoke one morning to find in their breakfast headlines the news that a zealous park employee had discovered signs of disintegration on the surface of the city's most treasured antique—Cleopatra's Needle. Photographs revealed that the monolith was peeling, large pieces of sandstone having fallen from the tall shaft, carrying with them part of the prized hieroglyphs. London's twin sister of Cleopatra's Needle was reported as resting comfortably and enduringly on the banks of the Thames, and the rival port wondered whether a preparation would be found to stay the attacks of their harsher climate. Such a preparation was soon forthcoming. A new paint combination as a preservative for stone was invented

THE OBELISK.

The Obelisk was presented to the City of New York by the Khedive of Egypt. Lieutenant Commander Goringe, U. S. N., after a three years' effort, obtained possession of it and moved it to its present position, at an expense of nearly $100,000. It was finally swung into position at noon, January 22, 1881.

The height of this monument from base to tip, is 69 feet, 2 inches. The measurement of the base, square through its axis, is 7 feet, 1/4 inches. The entire weight of the monolith is 213 1/2 tons.

Since it was quarried near the torrid zone, it has traversed the entire length of Egypt, most of that of the Mediterranean Sea, and the width of the Atlantic Ocean—a distance of 6,400 miles—proving itself a first rate traveler for one thousand years. The course of its existence it has seen Pharaoh and his host going to their destruction in the Red Sea; Shishak marching to the Conquest of Jerusalem; Cambyses desolating the land; Herodotus, Plato and other Greek students engaged in pursuit of Egyptian lore; Alexander the Great on his victorious expedition through the land of Goshen; six and a half centuries of Roman sovereignty and Christian struggle at Alexandria; all the long line of Moslem rulers since Caliph Omar; and now, leaving altogether its native land, it stands looking upon the million dwellers in this metropolis, whose site was unknown to the Eastern world at a time when the Obelisk had been in existence for two thousand years.

PAINT PROTECTION AND ITS ECONOMY.

The preservation of structural materials, which may be obtained through the application of paint, constitutes a most vital means of furthering the conservation of our natural resources. It is, moreover, the most economical method of sustaining the appearance and general upkeep of any community.

A structure coated with sheets of India rubber would not be as well protected with a good oil paint. This is due to the fact that a sheet of rubber is not so durable or as waterproof as a thin dried film of paint. The latter material when applied dries to a continuous elastic film containing finely divided particles of metallic, wear resisting pigments. A square foot of such a film upon a wooden surface costs less than a penny, yet it will beautify and protect a dollar's worth of surface for many years. This is a low rate of insurance.

Dwellings, barns, outbuildings, sheds, posts, fences, stock enclosures, wagons, implements, windmills and other structures, whether of wood, iron or cement, should be preserved, through the use of paint, from rapid decay. High grade paint may be used successfully for all such purposes. Colored paints will be found the most serviceable, the coloring matter in the paint adding from two to three years to the life of the coating.

The dome of the United States Capitol at Washington is kept in excellent condition by painting it every few years. For this work forty painters are steadily employed for three months' time. Over five thousand gallons of paint are required for one coat. The reason for painting the Capitol dome at regular intervals is to prevent disintegration of metallic surface.

ANTIQUITY OF DECORATIVE ART

Strange Sources From Which Pigments Used by Modern Painters Are Derived.

PRESERVATION OF SURFACES.

Crude but Effective Processes Employed by the Egyptians and Greeks of Piny's Day—Noah Prudently Waterproofed the Ark.

Whether paint was invented in answer to a need for a preservative or to meet a desire for beauty is a question fully as knotty as the ancient one about the relative time of arrival of the chicken or the egg. It was invented, though, and it serves both purposes equally; so whether it is an offspring of mother necessity or an adopted son of beauty remains forever a disputed question.

The first men, cowering under the fierce and glaring suns of the biblical countries, constructed rude huts of wood to shelter them. The perishable nature of these structures caused rapid decay, and it is probable that the occupants, seeking some artificial means of preservation, hit upon the pigments of the earth in their search. It is perhaps natural to suppose that it was the instinct of preservation that led men to the search, although the glories of the sunsets and the beauties of the rainbow may have created a desire to imitate those wonders in their own dwellings.

The earliest record of the application of a preservative to a wooden structure dates from the ark, which was, according to the Bible, "pitched within and without." The pitch was a triumph of preservation whatever it lacked as a thing of beauty.

Decoration applied to buildings first comes to light with ancient Babylon, whose walls were covered with representations of hunting scenes and of combat. These were done in red and the method followed was to paint the scene on the bricks at the time of manufacture, assuring permanence by baking. Strictly speaking, this was not painting so much as it was the earliest manifestation of our own familiar kalsomining.

The first Hebrew to mention painting is Moses. In the thirty-third chapter of the book of Numbers he instructs the Israelites, "When ye have passed over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, then shall ye drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you and destroy all their pictures."

At later periods the Jews adopted many customs of the peoples who successively obtained power over them and in the apocryphal book of the Maccabees is found this allusion to the art of decorating, "For as the master builder of a new house must care for the whole building, but he that undertaketh to set it out and paint it, must seek out things for the adorning thereof."

Although Homer gives credit to a Greek for the discovery of paint, the allusions to it in the books of Moses, the painted mummy cases of the Egyptians and the decorated walls of Babylon and Thebes fix its origin at a period long antecedent to the Grecian era. The walls of Thebes were painted 1,900 years before the coming of Christ and 999 years before "Omer smote his bloomin' lyre."

The Greeks recognized the value of paint as a preservative and made use of something akin to it on their ships. Pliny writes of the mode of boiling wax and painting ships with it, after which, he continues, "neither the sea, nor the wind, nor the sun can destroy the wood thus protected."

The Romans, being essentially a warlike people, never brought the decoration of buildings to the high plane it had reached with the Greeks. For all that the ruins of Pompeii show many structures whose mural decorations are in fair shape today. The colors used were glaring. A black background was the usual one and the combinations worked thereon red, yellow and blue.

In the early Christian era the use of mosaics for churches somewhat supplanted mural painting. Still, during the reign of Justinian the Church of Saint Sophia was built at Constantinople and its walls were adorned with paintings.

In modern times the uses of paint have come to be as numerous as its myriad shades and tints. Paint is unique in that its name has no synonym and for it there is no substitute material. Bread is the staff of life, but paint is the life of the staff.

No one thinks of the exterior of a wooden building now except in terms of paint coated. Interiors, too, from painted walls and stained furniture down to the lowliest kitchen utensil, all receive their protective covering. Steel, so often associated with cement re-enforcing, is painted before it goes to give solidity to the manufactured stone. The huge orders of the skyscrapers are daubed an ugly but efficient red underneath the surface coat of black. Perhaps the best example of the value of paint on steel is found in the venerable Brooklyn bridge, on which a gang of painters is kept going continually. It is scarce possible to think of a single manufactured article which does not meet paint somewhere in the course of its construction. So has paint grown into the very marrow of our lives.

Flowers Express Essential Feeling of Joyous Easter

"The altar is snowy with blooms, The font is a vase of perfume; On pillar and chancel are twining Fresh garlands of eloquent bloom!"

ALL the churches are decorated for the festival after Resurrection; and the lily, emblem of purity, sweetness, and grace combined, is the favorite flower for decoration.

Flowers voice the essential feeling of Easter. Each fragrant blossom is the fulfillment of a divine promise. For the perennial miracle of an awakened earth is in full harmony with the aspiring note of religion reiterating its faith in the promise of a new life.

Flowers, like music, speak the language of the heart. They are capable of conveying the most personal and individual ideals while yet appealing to a common universal vision and imagination.

This characteristic of flowers fits them especially both to express the private affections of the giver and enrich the symbolism of the altar. A basket or a cross of flowers can say all the heart wishes to say and say it without obtruding personal feeling.

In medieval times flowers spoke a definite language, the interpretation of which seems almost lost for a season. The palm, the classical symbol of victory, was early taken as the symbol of martyrdom. It was outlined on the tombs of the early martyrs, and it was placed in the hands of those who suffered in the cause of truth, to express their final victory over the powers of sin and death.

Roses white and red voice innocence and love. The Madonna was the "Rose of Sharon." A wreath of roses is placed upon the brow of St. Cecilia. Roses and fruit are borne by St. Dorothy. A white anchor of camellias, with its top a cross, expresses faith and hope.

The lily has long been regarded as expressive of purity. In Bermuda, the home of our Easter lily, all the roads are full of people, white and black, carrying lilies to the churches at dawn on Easter day. With them the doorways, altars and pulpits are decorated, and the graves are completely covered. Each lily and each Easter flower thus bestowed is vocal, like one of those old litanies that have descended to us from time immemorial, full of wholesome piety and charity—common prayer to all devout souls. The flowers are of yet older birth than the ancient prayers—primeval litanies before ever music was.

Their eloquence is growing on us from year to year, as we bring roses, lilies and other Easter flowers to deck the altars of God, to hallow with their perfume and beauty the resting places of the departed and to dedicate our homes to Christ with our bright, sweet, sacred emblems.

"Christ is risen! with glad lips we utter, And far up the infinite height Archangels the psalm re-echo, And crown him with lilies of light!"

The Lilies' Message

O, lilies, snow white lilies, O, lilies, radiant, sweet, Ye are angels trooping earthward To kiss our Savior's feet.

CHEST BOY TO SPEND ONLY A DOLLAR A WEEK

Thomas Austin Yawkey Intends to Continue the Practice of Thrift.

Used to have a quarter a week and now he's worth $20,000, but early habits of thrift—such as the Government seeks to encourage through War Savings Stamps—have kept wealth from turning the head of sixteen-year-old Thomas Austin Yawkey, a student in the Washington Irving School, of Tarrytown, N. Y. He has become the "Rich Boy in America," through a bequest of his uncle, William H. Yawkey of New York City. His attitude towards his recent inheritance is all an ideal from the standpoint of the private school to which he is sent in his ninth year. Tom was brought to frugal living. His spending was regulated to a quarter a week, the disposal of which he also accounted for. Now his weekly allowance will be raised to a dollar but he intends to still keep a careful account of how it is spent. The boy appreciates a thrifty life means to live it. He is content to get along each week on the price of Thrift Stamps. He wants to be a good business man and a wise philanthropist. He already is planning to take care of his fortune in a way that will do the most good for the world. He intends to spend less than his income and to employ the surplus in charitable work. Tom's ideas of thrifty living and the location of his surplus income for charity are unquestionably good ones. The United States Government has made it possible for everyone to do this, perhaps on a smaller scale, with equal benefit to themselves. The purchase of Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps is a sure and easy means of establishing a sum for future use. Living well within one's income is one of the first rules of thrift. Putting the small amounts in such an elastic medium as War Savings Stamps is the next step in the provision for future happiness. Thrift removes the handicaps of many people who really want to succeed, but who never have made a definite effort to provide themselves with capital.

CHILDREN GET THRIFT BOOKS.
Practically every child in every school throughout New York State and the twelve northern States of New Jersey has received a Penny Savings Book, issued to help children save for thrift stamps. Many variations are being introduced in the work in the schools. Well known military experts and aviation officers of the aviation corps will address the youngsters. Pictorial releases and other features will be used to arouse patriotism. Reports from leading cities of the State show a remarkable increase in War Savings Societies, also, Rochester and Burlington making a particularly good record.

Easter Morning Breakfast Made a Time of Real Joy

IT WAS my good fortune one time to be visiting in a family where Easter was celebrated in a very pretty fashion. When we came down to the breakfast table in the morning we found it looking so beautiful it seemed a pity to disturb its beauty by the prosaic act of eating. The dining room was a particularly sunny, attractive room to start with, and the beautiful table this morning was set with its usual gay blue and yellow china, but in addition the center of the table held a great mass of yellow daffodils standing in a clear crystal font. For the benefit of the children little yellow ducks and chickens were perched along its edge and at each plate we found one of the flowers for our personal adornment.

Everything we had for breakfast that morning seemed to glow with yellow; the grapefruit had a brighter tinge than usual, the rolls and toast a delicious golden brown; and when our eggs were served each one had been baked in a little yellow ramekin. The whites had been beaten until they puffed up above the cup and tinged a delicate yellow brown in the oven, and nestled in the top of each fluff was the yellow yolk of the egg. At the plate of each child was an attractive yellow basket with a little nest of variegated colored tissue paper—for had not the bunnies been busy during the night leaving eggs around the house for the children to gather in the morning? They could hardly wait to eat their breakfast so eager were they to be off.

corners of stuffed chairs, back of table legs, tucked away in the big piano, under sofa cushions, on the mantelpiece, in the fireplace—every spot, in fact, that could be found not too hard for the children to discover. This is, of course the pretty custom which grew out of the old superstition that if the children of the household were truthful kind and obedient a white hare would come into the home at night and hide colored eggs in odd corners of the house. The egg as we all know is the symbol of the resurrection. Easter day is governed by the moon, and the hare is the ancient symbol or figure of the moon.

There are a number of amusing customs connected with Easter, as with all the other holidays, some of which are familiar to us and others not. We are all of course quite accustomed to the idea of new clothes on Easter, but the people who scorn this fashion and wear theirs a few weeks before or after that day little know of the risk they run of having bad luck the rest of the year. The day used to be known as "Joy Sunday," and there was an old superstition that unless one wore something new on that day bad luck would follow throughout the year. Another belief was that if the wind blew from the east on Easter morning, and if you drew some fresh water and bathed your face and hands it would then be impossible for the east wind to harm you throughout the year.

"Bring Flowers"

Easter Offerings.
Costly Easter offerings are flowerpots of cut glass, silver rimmed, filled with half a dozen tall lilies. The same idea can be carried out economically by choosing a single potted jonquil, hyacinth, tulip or other spring flower and send it in a dainty china or reed jardiniere.

PAINT AS AN ASSET.

Bankers Say They Lend More Money on Property When Buildings Are Well Painted.

AN INDICATION OF THRIFT.

One Concern Advances 25 Per Cent. More if Repainting is Done Every Five Years.

Does it pay to paint carefully farm buildings? Does it add to the selling value of a farm when buildings are properly kept up and regularly painted? A careful inquiry of a number of leading bankers in the Mississippi valley, including such states as Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri, reveals the fact that in nearly every case the bankers did not hesitate to say that they would lend all the way from 5 to 50 per cent. more on land where farm buildings were well painted and kept in good condition. They maintain that well kept-up and well painted buildings and fences are an indication of thrift and that the thrifty farmer is a good client, and to him money can be safely loaned. An average of the returns from these bankers shows that the increased loan value because of painted buildings is around 22 per cent.

Some of these bankers make interesting comment. A Michigan concern says that, while not especially prepared to advise definitely in response to this inquiry, the officers would loan more money on farms where buildings were painted than where they were not so treated. This bank also finds that where houses, barns and fences are well taken care of the farm is a profitable proposition, and bankers in general consider the farmer a good client. Another Michigan bank says "farm buildings out of repair and needing paint indicate that the owner is slow pay." Such farms are rated at about one-third of the assessed value for loans. Where the farm buildings are in good shape the rating is one-half. The president of a middle western bank says that when real estate loans are considered, painted buildings are always taken into consideration in making an estimate. The general appearance of the property surrounding the house and barn and also the fields and fences would be carefully observed. He further says that he has no hesitancy in saying that he would absolutely refuse a loan on farms where the buildings were not kept up and well painted. In his judgment, unpainted farm buildings would reduce the loan value at least 25 per cent.

A Minnesota banker says that he is much more willing to loan money where the buildings are well painted. In his particular case he believes that he would loan 20 per cent. more than if the buildings were not properly taken care of. A farmer who will keep his buildings painted takes a much deeper interest in his work than one who does not. Another Minnesota bank says that well painted buildings have resulted in securing from his bank sometimes as high as 25 per cent. more money than where the buildings are not painted. An Ohio concern says that it will loan 25 per cent. more money on a well kept farm where buildings are painted at least once every five years. A southern Illinois bank says that it has no fixed rule about this, but it does make a decided difference when owners of farm lands apply for loans. If the buildings are well painted and thus well preserved the loan rate would not only be cheaper, but the amount of money borrowed would be larger. A northern Illinois bank does not hesitate to say that it would loan fully 50 per cent. more on a farm where buildings were well painted and in good order than where they were not. The vice president, who answers the inquiry, goes on to say: "There probably are many farmers good financially and morally who permit their buildings to remain unpainted, but as a rule the most substantial people who live in the country keep their buildings well painted."

An Iowa bank, through its vice president, states that it would make a difference of at least 25 per cent. in favor of the farm with painted buildings. Another Iowa concern says that it would make a difference of at least 20 per cent.

All this being true, it is perfectly evident that it is a good business proposition to keep the farm buildings well painted. They not only look better and are more pleasing to the owner, but the farm would sell to better advantage, the loan value of the property would be greatly increased and the buildings themselves would last much longer and need less repair.—The American Agriculturist.

PAINT AND ILLITERACY.

Curious Fact Comes to Light That Literates Least Using Books Avoid Paint Also.

Washington, D. C.—A curious fact has been brought to light by the Educational Bureau and the Bureau of Industrial Research here. It is that in the States where illiteracy is most prevalent paint is least used. The paint referred to is the common or barn variety, of course, for the backwoods countries have no need for the finer pigments or facial adornments. It is true, though, that in the sections of all States where white illiteracy is highest painted homes are rare and painted outbuildings and barns are practically unknown. Probably the illiterates do not use paint on their buildings because they do not understand its value as a preservative.

HOW CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE WAS SAVED

New Process Invented to Preserve Surface of Monolith in Central Park.

HIROGLYPHS OBLITERATED.

Rigors of Western Climate Caused Khedive's Gift to Disintegrate. Painting Ancient Obelisk With Special Preparation Stays Decay—Ruined Portions Restored.

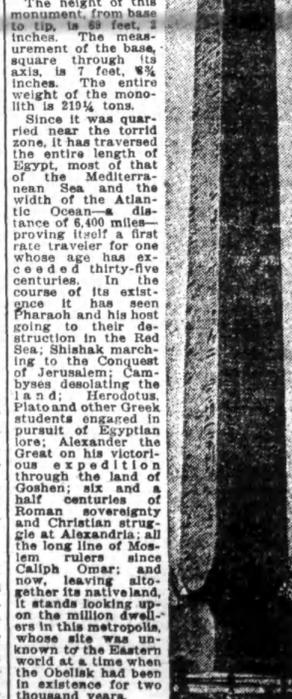

New Yorkers awoke one morning to find in their breakfast headlines the news that a zealous park employee had discovered signs of disintegration on the surface of the city's most treasured antique—Cleopatra's Needle. Photographs revealed that the monolith was peeling, large pieces of sandstone having fallen from the tall shaft, carrying with them part of the prized hieroglyphs.

London's twin sister of Cleopatra's Needle was reported as resting comfortably and enduringly on the banks of the Thames, and the rival port wondered whether a preparation would be found to stay the attacks of their harsher climate.

Such a preparation was soon forthcoming. A new paint combination as a preservative for stone was invented

THE OBELISK.

The Obelisk was presented to the City of New York by the Khedive of Egypt, Lieutenant Commander Gorringer, U. S. N., after a three years' effort, obtained possession of it and moved it to its present position, at an expense of nearly $100,000. It was finally swung into position at noon, January 22, 1881.

The height of this monument from base to tip is 122 feet 6 inches. The measurement of the base, square through its axis, is 7 feet, 8 1/2 inches. The entire weight of the monolith is 219 1/2 tons. Since it was quarried near the torrid zone, it has traversed the entire length of Egypt, most of that of the Mediterranean Sea, and the Atlantic Ocean—a distance of 5,400 miles—proving itself a first rate traveler for one whose age has exceeded thirty-five centuries. In the course of its existence it has seen Pharaoh and his host going to their destruction in the Red Sea; Shishak marching to the conquest of Jerusalem; Cambyses desolating the land; Herodotus, Plato and other Greek students engaged in pursuit of Egyptian lore; Alexander the Great on his victorious expedition through the land of Goshen; six and a half centuries of Roman sovereignty and Christian struggle at Alexandria; all the long line of Moslem rulers since Caliph Omar; and now, leaving altogether its native land, it stands looking up on the million dwellers in this metropolis, whose site was unknown to the Eastern world at a time when the Obelisk had been in existence for two thousand years.

PAINT PROTECTION AND ITS ECONOMY.

The preservation of structural materials, which may be obtained through the application of paint, constitutes a most vital means of furthering the conservation of our natural resources. It is, moreover, the most economical method of sustaining the appearance and general upkeep of any community.

A structure coated with sheets of India rubber would not be as well protected from decay as a structure coated with a good oil paint. This is due to the fact that a sheet of rubber is not so durable or as waterproof as a thin dried film of paint. The latter material when applied dries to a continuous elastic film containing finely divided particles of metallic, wear resisting pigments. A square foot of such a film upon a wooden surface costs less than a penny, yet it will beautify and protect a dollar's worth of surface for many years. This is a low rate of insurance.

Dwellings, barns, outbuildings, sheds, posts, fences, stock enclosures, wagons, implements, windmills and other structures, whether of wood, iron or cement, should be preserved, through the use of paint, from rapid decay. High grade paint may be used successfully for all such purposes. Colored paints will be found the most serviceable, the coloring matter in the paint adding from two to three years to the life of the coating.

NO farmer is rich enough to feed high-priced butter to his hogs or his calves in partially skimmed milk.

It's a waste of money and food that your pocketbook, your neighbors, your country, all condemn.

But it's a waste that is going on today wherever an inferior or half-worn-out cream separator is being used, or the wasteful "gravity" method.

Why not put a stop to this needless waste with a De Laval Cream Separator?

There is no other separator that can compare with the De Laval in clean skimming, capacity, ease of operation, freedom from repairs, and durability. It's the world's greatest cream saver.

THE LAST CAMPAIGN.

"I am exceedingly sorry that this will be the last Liberty Loan campaign," said a county chairman who has been through three Loans. "One of the greatest experiences of my life has been the participation in scores of Liberty Loan meetings in the little schoolhouses in various parts of the state, where folks foregathered in the genuine spirit of democracy and busied themselves about democracy's business. I had always envied the women who lived in the days when America was in process of building, but I don't any more, for I feel as if we women of this day have been able to play as interesting a part as ever they did, with the schoolhouse very often the stage again."

"In these Liberty Bond meetings we felt that we were not far from the real heart of the people. There we came face to face with altruism, self-sacrifice and white hot patriotism. Also painful as it is to tell it, with distrust, selfishness and disloyalty. The work called for every ounce of equipment we had, but it was a great educating medium for us as well. We have no fears about putting over the Victory Loan. We have a wonderful organization this time, and expect to go through all the little forests of doubts and hesitations engendered by the glooms of every community like a tank."

 * A LOAN OF PATRIOTISM. *
 * "I may have put the Loan on a *
 * commercial basis, that I do not *
