REASONS FOR OWNING HOME

Fourteen Points That Will Not Cause So Much Controversy as Another Famous Set.

1. In the long run the home owner is more prosperous than the renter.
2. The home owner is permanent; the shifter does little good to his city or himself.
3. The home owner is progressive; the renter is not interested in progressive movements.
4. Habits of thrift learned in home buying add to the wealth of the individual and the city.
5. The home owner beautifies the city; the renter does not.
6. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better worker than the renter and keeps his position after the renter is discharged.
7. The owner of a home has an ever present protection against poverty and will not become a charge upon the community.
8. No city of renters can ever succeed. No nation of tenants ever became great.
9. A city that is worth living in is worth owning a home in.
10. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better citizen, a better soldier, a better American than the renter.
11. The prosperity of any city depends upon the prosperity of its individual citizens.
12. The more beautiful our city is the more people will be attracted to it.
13. Home owners add to the buying power of a municipality. Tenants detract.
14. Self-respect and independence are the greatest assets in life. Health and happiness are the children of success.

NURSERY-GROWN TREES BEST

Excellent Reasons Why Wild Varieties Are Not Suitable for Growth in Cities.

Digging wild trees for home planting is not successful as a rule. In the first place wild trees are likely to grow where they are crowded and are drawn out taller than they should be. Others have not had an opportunity to develop evenly and may be well shaped on one side only. Then the roots have been left to spread out at long distances and the trees cannot be removed without breaking off important roots, so the trees will be a long while in recovering and a large percentage will die.

Nursery-grown trees are grown where they develop evenly on all sides, and are frequently transplanted and root pruned, which keeps them from growing too spindling and the roots are thus confined to a small area, so the trees can easily and safely be transplanted.

In making home plantings it is a grave error to attempt to use wild trees.

If many trees are to be used it is advisable to visit a nursery and personally select each specimen.

Urges Value of Beechnut.

A writer in the Chicago Daily News makes a plea for the beechnut. A high-grade quality of this nut might easily be made a delicious article of food. The beech tree, well grown, is an object of great beauty. In Europe extensive avenues of them are found, and the fruit carefully conserved. Many a township could easily handle along its roadsides 10,000 noble beeches and as many hickories, not to speak of a large sprinkling of other nut trees and shrubs, all of them largely taking care of themselves. Each town or county could have its own nursery for fostering a high grade of nut trees and shrubs.

To Get Rid of Ants.

Powdered borax sprinkled around the infested places will exterminate both red and black ants. Powdered cloves are said to drive them away. Another plan is to grease a plate with lard and set it where these insects abound. They prefer lard to anything else, and will forsake sugar for it. Place a few sticks around the plate for the ants to climb up on. Occasionally turn the plate bottom side up over the fire, and the ants will fall in with the melted lard. Or, use a small amount of oil of turpentine, run into the cracks with an ordinary sewing machine oil can.

Home Gardens Pay.

Garden work is health giving, especially for those whose occupations are indoors. To allow land that might grow food to lie idle is almost criminal, in this war-impooverished world. The products of the garden are simply indispensable to a wholesome diet. When home grown their quality must be better than any that can be bought. Next year should see a further increase, instead of a further decrease, in home gardens.

Life.

Our life is precious to us for the activity that we are capable of, and still more because that activity may be so adjusted as to give us the consciousness of being in harmony with the divine mind.

ROLL CALL WILL SUPPORT GREAT HOME PROGRAM.

American Red Cross, Besides Serving in Disasters, Will Conduct National Movement for Health Betterment

The American Red Cross has announced for the week of November 2 to 11, a nation-wide campaign to be known as the Third Red Cross Roll Call. This membership campaign is for the support of the future home activities of the Red Cross.

Rapid-Fire Relief.

As a comrade-in-arms to the American soldier, following him and often preceding him into the thick of battle, and on all occasions typifying the loving care and solicitude of the folks at home, the Red Cross won the gratitude of every fighting unit that went into action. With the Twenty-Seventh and Seventy-Seventh Divisions the Red Cross representatives distinguished themselves for the performance of rapid fire relief measures which saved the lives of hundreds of the fighters in both New York Divisions. These services were typical also of the services to other American Divisions.

Major-General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the Twenty-Seventh Division, signified his gratitude for these services by volunteering to do all in his power to aid the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross in the approaching campaign, and will serve as chairman of the third Red Cross Roll Call in the Atlantic Division. Col. Charles W. Whittlesey, of the Seventy-Seventh Division's "Lost Battalion," Brigadier-General George R. Dyer, commander of the First Brigade of the New York State Guard, and many other military leaders and service men have enlisted under the Red Cross banner, a token of their appreciation for services rendered.

Why the Red Cross Must Go On

The war is over, but the work of the American Red Cross is far from ended. Its gigantic organization for relief and human betterment today faces tasks even more momentous than those it faced and solved during the days of the war. In the disorganized and plague stricken countries of Eastern Europe—in Poland, Siberia, and the Near East—it is combating fearful epidemics of typhoid and cholera which, unchecked, would sweep over Western Europe and eventually to America with more disastrous results than those of the Influenza Epidemic of 1918. Its program of relief cannot be abandoned in those countries without removing the one bulwark against disease and disorder which protects the rest of the civilized world.

The Red Cross has other obligations in Europe which make it not only humane, but economically imperative, that its program be carried through to successful completion.

Supplies of the American Army abroad have been turned over to the Red Cross for administration and disposal.

The proper utilization of these supplies for humanitarian purposes makes it necessary that the Red Cross keep some of its forces in Europe for a long time to come. Another duty to be performed is the establishment of schools to train native workers in the war-stricken countries in American standards of sanitation and social work. Unless this vital measure is accomplished the value of much that has been done for the relief of Europe will be lost.

Peace Program at Home.

In addition to these European obligations, the Red Cross is laying the foundation for a great Peace Program at home. It is applying the lessons learned in war to the problems of peace, and will be the great teacher of public health, sanitation, care of the child, first aid and home hygiene in all the communities of the United States where well-organized social agencies do not exist.

Already the Red Cross has organized, in hundreds of rural districts and city slums, its classes in Public Health Nursing, where wives and mothers, school children and industrial workers are being taught the simple principles of health and sanitation.

The Red Cross must go on. It must carry on in Europe until the obligations of the American people are fulfilled; it must carry on at home as an auxiliary to the Army and Navy of the United States, as the care-taker of our wounded and disabled soldiers, as a disaster relief organization to bring relief in fires, floods and epidemics, and as the one great unifying, cooperative agency in the field of public health.

WHY

Statistics Are Unsafe Guide to Conclusions

Statistics, though often interesting, are sometimes most misleading and futile. For example, it is interesting to know from the census bureau the number of prison commitments among the foreign-born population of the United States, but it would be most unsafe to base any generalizations upon them, for the number of commitments to prison is no indication of the number of crimes committed, and there are many more criminals at large than behind the bars.

Those in prison were not clever enough to escape. They got caught. Those at large were able to commit their crimes and elude detection.

British statistics show that in only 15 per cent of the indictable offenses that are committed is the perpetrator convicted.

The figures for America are probably not very different. Therefore 85 per cent of the criminals are at large. It is fair to assume that this 85 per cent is more intelligent than the 15 per cent that got caught. Therefore the 15 per cent for which the statistics are given is a highly selected group, and any conclusions based upon such statistics are untrustworthy, as applied to criminals in general, however valuable they may be as to the comparatively small number that are in jail.

CALL INSANITY FIXED ERROR

How Physicians Determine Absence of Normal Mentality Revealed as a Simple Matter.

The sole difference between a sane and insane man is that the former retains the power of adapting himself to his circumstances, while the latter has lost it.

This is the definition of an English authority who says that as long as a man is able to alter his actions to suit any change in himself or his environment, so long is he mentally normal. A man can effect such alteration either by changing his circumstances, or by changing his own actions.

The madman fails to make the proper adjustments and he does not recognize such failure as an error, but persists in it. Thus, insanity might be defined as permanent error.

Here lies the boundary between mistake and madness:

If a man's circumstances change in such a manner as to affect his welfare, this writer goes on to explain, he will, as long as he is sane, alter his action so as to adapt himself to the change.

If the weather becomes cold, he will light a fire, or put on more clothing, or both; and vice versa if the weather turns hot. If his income increases or diminishes, he will increase or diminish his expenditures accordingly. If a new law that affects him is passed, he will alter his conduct so as to conform to it. As his children arrive at an educable age, he will take measures for their education.

Normal action is such as to adjust the relation between the self and the circumstances, either by altering the circumstances, as when we put on more clothes in cold weather; or by altering ourselves, as when we learn a new language on going to a new country; or by altering our action, as when we stop at home and go to bed instead of going to business when we find ourselves suffering from fever.

How Science Aids Warfare.

Wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony, now commonplaces, suggest the possibility of transmitting energy by wireless waves. A Roumanian engineer, M. Constantinesco, has been experimenting in England with a method that seems novel.

Nature says he uses a tube filled with water or some such liquid, in which vibrations of the nature of sound waves are produced at one end and the energy is reconstructed at the other end in a mechanical form. The details of the apparatus are kept secret, but Constantinesco's researches have been financed by the British government and it has already been applied in mechanism that stops the discharge of bullets from the rapid-firing gun of an airplane each time that the blade of the propeller passes before the muzzle. This is what makes it easy to fire 2,000 shots a minute from a propeller-driven machine.

Snails Operated Plane.

The celebrated French airman, Georges Dornbrival, has utilized the well-known instinct which scientists have long observed is possessed by snails. For some unknown reason, a snail when placed on an inclined plane crawls toward the highest part.

When M. Dornbrival was informed of this he placed on the upper plane of his Maurice-Fatman machine 88 pounds of snails, two-thirds of which were the large, slow snails of Bourgoigne, beloved by epicures, the remainder of smaller and more agile variety. After rising to about 1,500 feet he was able to take his hands off the controls for the rest of his two hours' flight. The snails moved in a mass toward the upper part and re-established the equilibrium whenever the machine dipped, either laterally or longitudinally, thus keeping the airplane in perfect line of flight.

Hot One for Lawyers.

Here is a hot one on lawyers and a certain sort of sportsman.

An attorney was arrested for violating the game laws—catching 16 fish out of season. He pleaded guilty, but when $30 per fish was the fine imposed he withdrew his plea and got a brother lawyer to defend him. The jury, in spite of the plea of guilty, brought in a verdict finding him guilty of catching one fish only, and fixed the fine at $10. One of the jurors explained to the angry game warden as follows:

"Yes, we knew he pleaded guilty and admitted catching 16 fish. But the jury, you know, were all of the same mind. He was a lawyer AND a fisherman."

Prohibition in Lithuania.

Prohibition, which grew up overnight in America, has long been an issue in Lithuania, the small Baltic republic that is asking for a self-government that it has long demonstrated its ability to use. Lithuania has a small brewery and a still in almost every home. It has little intoxication. And it has a prohibition society with 172 branches and 29,000 members throughout the country.

An ideal coat for the cool evenings. It is of soft camel's hair, with transparent bone buttons and buckles. The trimming is indeed effective and the coat is regarded as the acme of style.

TO CLEAN BLACK STRAW HATS

Alcohol and Water With Coloring Substance, Will Aid in Renovation of Millinery.

Black straw hats may be cleaned with alcohol and water and some of the commercial coloring substances used to restore color and luster. White straw hats may be cleaned with a solution of one teaspoonful of oxalic acid to a pint of cold water, or by suspending the hat, after it has been thoroughly wet, in a barrel at the bottom of which sulphur is burning in a tin dish.

Black satin ribbons may be renovated by laying them on a board and sponging with ammonia and water or alcohol and water. They should then be pressed while damp after they have been covered with a piece of tissue paper.

Velvet may be steamed by one of two methods. By the first, the velvet is held in front of the spout of a steaming kettie and the steam allowed to pass through the velvet. The velvet must not be held too close or steam spots will be made. The velvet must be brushed immediately after the steaming. By the second method the velvet is held over a hot iron which has been covered with a damp cloth. The steam from the cloth will pass through the velvet and the velvet may be brushed at the same time.

HOMESPUNS LEAD FOR WRAPS

Capes Reaching to Knees, Rounded in Front, Have Slits for the Armholes.

If a wrap is needed with a tailored suit it is found in a rough serge or homespun cape. These capes reach only to the knees. They are rounded in front, have slits for the armholes and a rolling collar that goes to the hem in front. They are in gray, sometimes in white, but often in dark blue. When serge is used it is often ornamented with openwork bands, the threads pulled out to outline squares of the material.

These capes are not lined; their seams are so arranged that they can be worn without lining. They are quite comfortable and look better than the satin cape. They give more warmth, and warmth is something that every American desired the past summer in Paris. The price of wool is high and there have been few American rooms in which it has not been burning every forenoon to dry out the room as well as to warm it.

FLOWER FROCKS FROM PARIS

New Gown May Suggest Full-Blown Rose, Shaggy Chrysanthemum or Dreamy Poppy.

The very newest models from Paris demand the petal frock. The frocks have all blossomed with flowers—a delicious conceit, and bound to become popular on this side of the Atlantic as well. These petal frocks are without lining and follow the lines of the body with no suggestions of stiffness. They may suggest a full-blown rose by the soft draperies unfolding at the waistline, or they may develop into shaggy chrysanthemums, with supple elongated petals, or into dreamy poppies. These frocks are difficult to wear and demand an excellent figure, but the effect of fluttering and airy grace with which they invest the wearer will prove alluring to all women even if they must undertake strenuous physical culture.

ORGANIZED TREASON IS HEAVILY FINANCED

LUSK TELLS OF STARTLING CONDITIONS REVEALED BY HIS INQUIRY.

TROAITORS ARE MULTIPLYING.

Drastic Action Necessary to Stamp Out Un-American Acts of Enemies of Democratic Institutions, Declares Senator.

New York City—(Special)—Senator Clayton R. Lusk, chairman of the legislative committee investigating Bolshevism, industrial unrest, etc., declares that the country is face to face with organized treason, heavily financed from abroad, and that drastic measures will be necessary to put down the menace.

"We have just passed through war on a gigantic scale," said Senator Lusk, "and when I say war I mean not only active participation in it but, what is equally important, preparation for it. This has necessitated the turning of the industries of this country from the channels of peace to the channels of war and back again from the channels of war to the channels of peace. It was impossible to do this without seriously disturbing industrial conditions. Necessarily, the normal relations between wages and the cost of living have been affected. In many cases this has been accompanied by hardships. Discontent and unrest among our people are inevitable. If these were the only conditions that existed, the American people would soon readjust these relations and put them upon an equitable basis.

"The danger in our present situation arises from the fact that we have in this country today organized treason.

"The published and unpublished investigations of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee investigating conditions here conclusively prove that there is at the present time in this country a movement to overthrow the established government by violence and revolution. Facts obtained by the committee in its investigations also establish that this movement to destroy our government is highly organized, heavily financed, largely inspired and financed from abroad, and that the converts to this treasonable movement against our government are many more in number than we have dared to admit.

"With plausible economic theories which appeal to the criminal, ignorant and thriftless; with a large and very efficient bureau of publicity reaching all classes of our people; with our own government and people meeting these assaults upon our institutions almost without protest and with no serious effort to expose the movement and lay the truth before the American people and to apply the hand of the law to these criminal agitators, no man can foresee what the immediate future in our own country will bring forth.

"The industrial system advocated by these agitators when put into effect in Russia has not only resulted in wanton violence to the persons and property of all classes of people but has been a complete failure industrially and has brought these people to starvation and degradation. This is in no way discouraging the men and women who are advocating the adoption of the system in the United States. The reason for this has been made obvious by our investigation. The men and women who are back of the movement in this country do not seek to better the conditions of any class of people here. Their object, as revealed, is to break down industry, overthrow representative government and create a condition of disorder and disaster which will accrue to their benefit in their ambitious scheme of industrial and political conquest.

"The history of the men and women who are engaged in this effort to overthrow our government is that they were pro-German before the war, pro-Radical during the war and pro-Radical following the war. An examination recently conducted of the proprietors and managers of between forty and fifty extremely radical publications in New York City showed that all of these but two were being financed by these same formerly pro-Germans, now pro-Radical men and women who are persistently seeking through the circulation of over three million copies of these papers among the discontented working people of this country to overthrow our government, break down industry, do away with all established churches, discredit the institution of marriage, and destroy the civilization and morality which has been built up through centuries.

"The time has come for the loyal American people to assert themselves. There never was a time in the history of the nation when it was so essential that our people think clearly on political questions as now. An attack is being made on Speaker Sweet at the assembly. Oswego county has become the political battle ground of the state. The charge is made that Speaker Sweet is reactionary and represents a reactionary party. He is being charged with having defeated the will of the people of this state in certain legislation, principally the so-called welfare measures.

"The Republican party of the state of New York has a history of welfare legislation of which it may justly be proud. Among the measures passed by Republican legislatures are the following: Factory inspectors' bureau, State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, Saturday half holiday law, the designation of the first Monday in September as Labor Day, Workmen's Compensation law, Workmen's Compensation Commission, Eight-Hour Day law for state employes, prevailing rate of wages law, employer liability law, laws doing away with technical defenses for injuries to railroad employes, bureau of employment in the Department of Labor, Bureau of Industry and Immigration, Bureau of Women in Industry, Widowed Mothers' Pension Bill, laws providing for payment of wages in cash at frequent intervals and protecting employes against insolvent employers; laws giving recognition to the Union label and safeguarding it against improper uses, and an act for the establishment of industrial aid bureaus whereby unemployed and their dependents may receive temporary relief in the way of fuel, shelter, food and clothing without applying to the charity departments.

"The Democratic party which opposed many of the above measures and was for years the reactionary party in the state, has, with the advent of Woman Suffrage, assumed an elaborate program of so-called welfare measures for the obvious political reason of appealing to the sentiments and emotions of the women of the state to attract them into the party. It has cut its anchor rope, unfurled its sails and is drifting before the winds of public sentiment as it sees it with no regard to destination or the shores on which it may be carried by the shifting winds of a sentiment founded upon unconsidered and little understood measures whose titles appeal to the public imagination.

"The Republican party is absolutely consistent. It stands today, as it always has stood, for the welfare of the people of this state. It believes, however, today, as it has in the past, that all measures should be consistent with the principles of our government and should be such that they will work for the ultimate benefit of the people of the state. One of the great dangers of the day is the demagogue—the man who is willing to promote any measure, however unsound it may be, however disastrous it may be in its final workings, provided it serves its temporary purpose of political advancement. Among the measures advocated by the Democratic party in the State of New York during the past year and defeated by the Republican party, and for which defeat Speaker Sweet is being attacked, are Health Insurance, Eight Hours a day for Women and Minimum wage."

HUNS MADE A CLEAN SWEEP

What They Couldn't Steal in the French City of Douai They Ruthlessly Destroyed.

"My home was in Douai, writes Jean Proix in Everybody's. When I visited the town, soon after the Germans left it, I found it untouched by shell fire. Strange as it may seem, the houses are standing and the roofs are on the houses. But every place has been ransacked; so much so that in my house the only article of furniture left are two stools, one of which is of no value. The other, a light gilt footstool in the drawing-room, is smashed. Every other article of furniture has been stolen.

The valueless contents of every drawer were thrown on the floor and soiled. Some valuable paintings by Corot were hanging in one of the rooms. They were carefully selected, the canvas was cut out of the frames in the cleanest possible way and removed by the Germans, whereas a hole was kindly kicked through the others.

This is a precise instance of their methodical theft. When the people who lived in the house were turned out by the Germans they took away the few papers that were in the safe which was fast to the wall; they left the key on the safe door and the door ajar, as much as to say that there was no need to break it open. On the safe I found a short hatchet, by means of which the door had been smashed. Is this destruction for its own sake? No, this is methodical destruction. The safe would eventually have to be replaced, and very likely by one of German make.

How Not to Take Vacation.

More abstinance from work does not constitute a real vacation. A vacation has the idea of benefit in it. Sometimes it develops into a loafing match that is more harmful than good. That's the way it goes with Peter Jones. Pete will vacate at home. That is, he will vacate his bed when he gets tired lying in it. He will also vacate all jobs and responsibility until necessity drives him back to a job. The front porch will be his lounging place until the sun drives him elsewhere. The rest of the day will find him on the shady side of anything that isn't too hard to reach. He'll go back to his job, lazy-limbed, stomach-stalled, and brain-fogged, less fit for work than when he took to vacating. There's sense and nonsense in it.—Pennsylvania Girl.

 —Considering the inclement weather last Friday evening, there was a large attendance at the Halloween supper at the Baptist church. An excellent supper, with appropriate table decorations, was served, and the receipts were over $20.  —See William Farnum in the 1918 version of "The Plunderer," which is being shown at the Genoa Gem Theatre Saturday evening. This is a real Farnum picture, full of red-blooded battles for righteousness, and it has a romance that is ever pleasing. It is one of those worthwhile photoplays. MAJOR GENERAL JOHN F. O'RYAN.

The commander of the old Twenty-seventh Division which was made up of National Guardsmen of New York State, is rallying thousands of returned fighting men around him in the determination to go "over the top" in the membership campaign, November 2 to 11, Armistice Day.

To Direct Third Red Cross
Roll Call in Three States—
Army Men offer Help.

Major General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the famous Twenty-seventh Division, whose brilliant fighting qualities helped smash the "Hindenburg line," will direct the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2 to 11, in the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. The Roll Call is for the purpose of enrolling 5,000,000 members in the territory of the Atlantic Division and a minimum of 20,000,000 for the country.

General O'Ryan's appointment to the position of campaign manager followed his unsolicited offer to aid the American Red Cross as an expression of his appreciation for its services in behalf of soldiers and sailors generally and the men of his division particularly.

"So efficient and comprehensive was the work of the Red Cross which came under the observation of the officers and men of the division which I commanded," said General O'Ryan in a letter to Dr. Livingston Farrand, head of the American Red Cross, "that I feel sure I represent their sentiments of appreciation when I assume to offer to you, which I now do, all the help the old Twenty-seventh can give you.

"We appreciate that the problems to be met and which can best be solved by an organization like the Red Cross are not solely war problems and that to meet existing and future problems the Red Cross organization must have an acting and understanding membership of great strength. We will do what we can to bring to the attention of the many friends of the division the accomplishment of the Red Cross as we saw it in the war and the further field for the continuance of its effort."

Prompted by the action of General O'Ryan, the returned rank and file of the A. E. F. are preparing to rally to the call of the American Red Cross for a great national membership. Officers of high rank, noncommissioned officers and privates are going to canvass for memberships. In many instances local posts of the American Legion and National Guard organizations are going to campaign in a body for the Third Red Cross Roll Call.

Other Army Officers Appointed. The Red Cross Chapters in the five boroughs of Greater New York joined in the selection of Brigadier General George R. Dyer, commander of the First Brigade of the New York National Guard, as chairman for their war campaign. Scores of chapters in the Atlantic Division have followed the example of the division headquarters and the Greater New York Chapters by appointing army officers to take charge of their campaigns.

The enthusiasm and efficiency with which General O'Ryan is recruiting volunteers and developing his organization for the Roll Call is reflected also in the work of the army men who are now serving with him as chapter campaign managers.

Boy Scouts in the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut will participate in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, Major General John F. O'Ryan, leader of the Atlantic Division campaign, announced following the receipt of a letter from James E. West, chief scout executive, stating the scout organization would help in every way possible.

Commenting on the service of the Boy Scouts during the ten days' drive for 5,000,000 members in the Atlantic Division between the dates of November 2 and November 11, General O'Ryan said that their services would prove invaluable, for they can be utilized as messengers, couriers, distributors and aides in the organization of 500,000 volunteers which is being built up for the Roll Call.

The letter from the chief scout executive to Major General O'Ryan follows: "I have been very much pleased to learn that you have been made chairman of the Roll Call Committee for the Atlantic Division.

"I am also very happy to assure you that in line with our program of service the Boy Scouts of America in all communities throughout the country will be delighted to do everything consistent with our constitution and by-laws to make the Roll Call Campaign completely successful. The wonderful program of the American Red Cross for affording organized relief in a practical and substantial way merits the enthusiastic and loyal support of every citizen of our country.

"I am confident that every Boy Scout Leader and Scout who is given the opportunity will gladly do his utmost toward this same end."

BELGRADE.—Working in the American Red Cross sewing rooms during the past three months, 129 young Serbian girls have turned out 10,701 garments, using 14,970 yards of cloth. Most of them had to be taught the craft. In the same school a group of boys made 40 pairs of shoes for war orphans.

New York.—The art of making two flowers bloom where but one bloomed before isn't half so hard as that of making two garments exist where but one existed before; yet even this can be accomplished, according to reports recently received by the American Jewish Relief Committee from relief workers abroad. A whole army of little Jewish orphans, clad in the cut-down pajamas of the American doughboys, now metamorphosed into stylish street clothes, exist in proof of their contention.

Cloth of any kind, either cotton or wool, is practically impossible to obtain in Eastern Europe, except at prohibitive prices. A round million little Jewish children in these unhappy lands are clad in the rags that they have worn all through the war, their little bodies showing through great tatters. Some of these children are still sleeping on the streets, since there are at present neither orphanages nor funds enough for all.

Miss Harriet B. Lowenstein, of New York, sent to Europe as a commissioner of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, was able to purchase more than a carload of pajamas from the salvage department of the American army in France. Those were sent to Eastern Europe, and in the workrooms opened there were made over into clothing for children.

Each pair of pajamas made at least two Russian blouse suits for little boys, it was reported. The larger pieces left over in the cutting were used for the cloths that the children of Eastern Europe bind around their feet, in lieu of shoes.

CHILDREN STARVING AS MOTHERS WATCH

Relief Workers Witness Terrible Conditions Abroad.

New York.—The patient resignation with which a mother in Poland accepts what the fates have in store for her children, who frequently die of starvation before her eyes, is one of the things that leaves a lasting impression on relief workers there.

Jacob Bashein, who has just returned from abroad, where he had charge of a relief unit for the Joint Distribution Committee, which disbursed funds raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and other bodies, said that food distribution to the children in Loda on a ration basis, and that where the small folks were unable to appear in person because of lack of clothing or illness from the "starvation sickness," the allotment was given to the mother. On one occasion a little woman with great hunger-appealing eyes, asked for four rations. The following day she appeared again and asked for but two.

"Two?" repeated the distributing agent. "Why, you received four yesterday."

"Yes, but today I need only two, because—" and the worker may have only imagined that he caught a note of relief in the utter hopelessness of the curiously quiet answer—"two of my little ones died during the night."

BOOTS GO MARCHING ON

Trusty Hob-Nailed Shoes of Dough-boys Still Tramping Across Central Europe.

The trusty hob-nailed boots of the American doughboys, like the soul of John Brown in the old song, are marching on. But they are marching today on woman's feet.

Two carloads of these new or mended boots, size 5, were recently purchased in France by Miss Harriet B. Lowenstein, of New York, a representative of the Joint Distribution Committee of American funds for Jewish War Sufferers, and shipped to the Jewish women of Poland, many of whom have been barefoot during the five years of the war.

Refugee Jews in Orient.

Countless numbers of Jewish refugees fleeing from Russia to America, who got as far as Japan and could proceed no further for lack of funds are being cared for by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society in Yokohama; and each month a part of the moneys raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and similar Jewish organizations, and distributed through the joint distribution committee, go to that institution.
